NABA San Francisco – Executive Board Biography
FY 2020 - 2021

Chika Obih

Vice President

Chika Obih has served on the NABA San Francisco Chapter Professional Board for the last 13 years. This fiscal year will be truly unique. Her goal is to see NABA membership grow stronger in numbers with a renewed commitment to professional & student development, community uplifting and social justice through strengthened corporate partnership initiatives. She believes achieving goals is a matter of knowing the desired outcome, creating a plan, having team support, and tackling those goals one task at a time.

Chika Obih is a self-proclaimed tax nerd. She is the Owner of Obih Collective Inc. -a tax & accounting firm servicing small businesses. Chika enjoys helping her clients save hundreds of thousands of dollars on taxes by educating them on dense tax topics and giving them practical ways to stay organized, proactive, and engaged with understanding the money side of their business. She enjoys motivating entrepreneurs in the online space: providing business and tax tips to her following both on social media and through her email newsletter. Working smart, not hard, is how Chika has been able to sustain her company for over a decade.

Chika has a Bachelor's of Science degree from the University of California, Berkeley-Haas School of Business. She became a CPA back in 2009 when she worked at PwC San Francisco in Corporate Taxation. For over 15 years, she has served on the National Association of Black Accountants San Francisco Board both on the Student chapter and the Professional chapter. She currently serves as the Executive Vice President for the NABA San Francisco Chapter. In the role, she assists the President in establishing, implementing and achieving Chapter goals.

When she's not nerding out on numbers, you can find Chika outside in nature taking walks, picnicking with friends, or playing tennis. She also enjoys lounging on the beach, Bikram yoga and stand-up comedy.
