

SUPPORTING REAL ESTATE EDUCATION AT THE LUNDQUIST COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

"I am graduating this spring with a major in applied economics, business, and society with a minor in entrepreneurship. This will be my fourth year in the student real estate club where I have gained extensive knowledge about various facets of the real estate industry. With the skills and connections I have gained via the club, I am currently seeking entrepreneurial investment opportunities and partnerships."

REAL WORLD REAL ESTATE SKILLS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

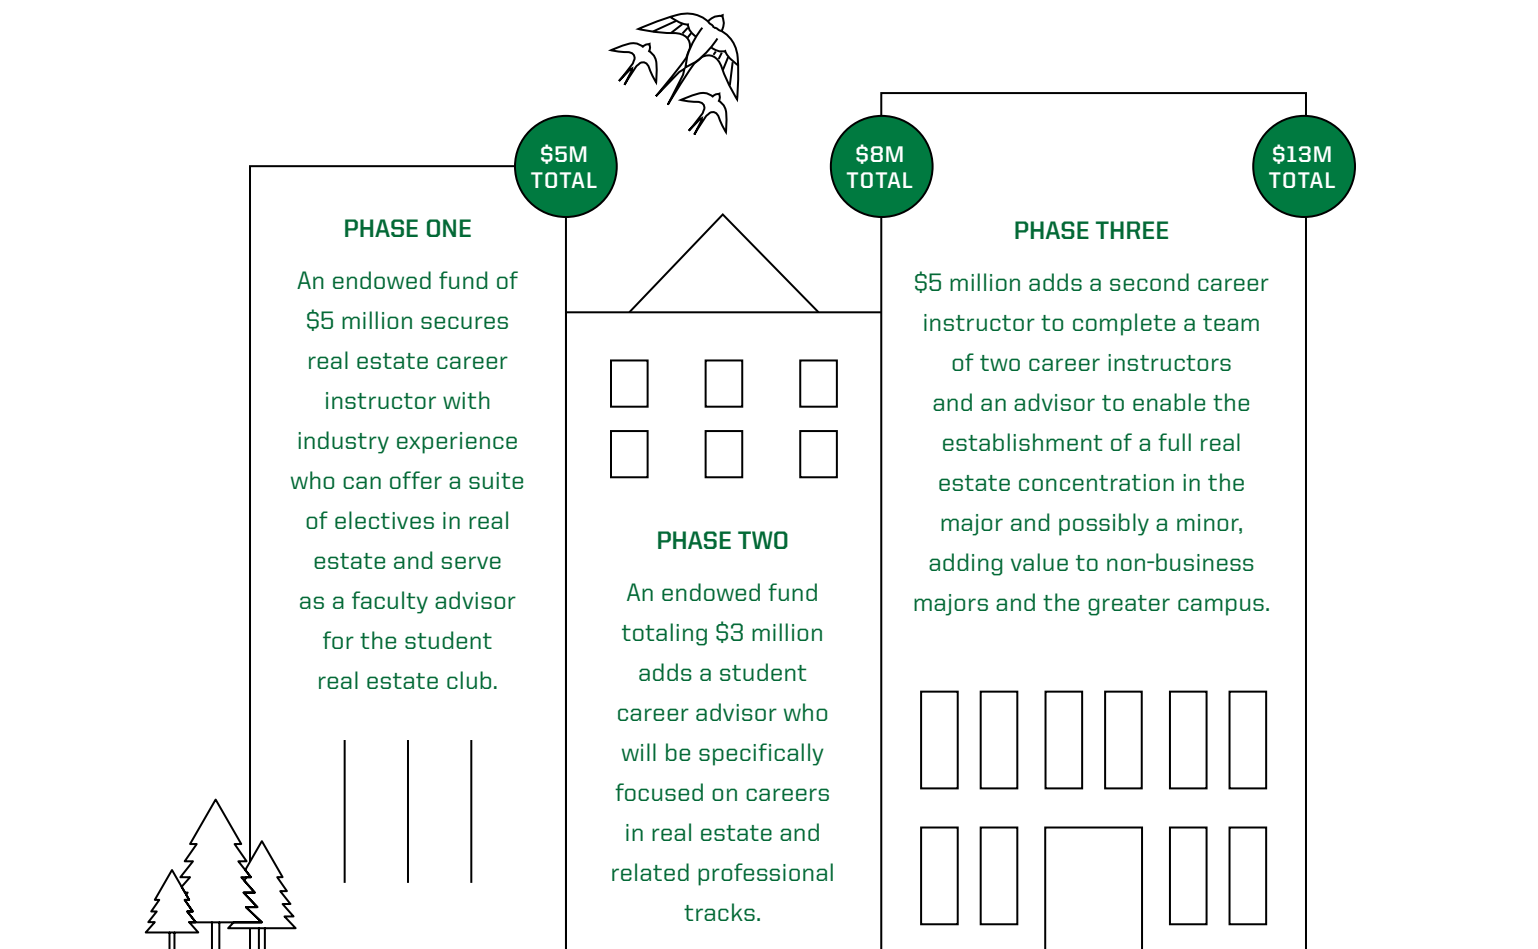

Our current students, UO business alumni, and industry professionals have made our call clear: the region needs real estate education and the University of Oregon Lundquist College of Business is the leader to deliver it.

With the support of alumni and friends, and heavy interest from students, now is the time to increase real estate offerings at the Lundquist College and we need donor support to make it happen.

We know from the formation of the student real estate club there are dozens of students like Miah, high achievers interested in pursuing a career in real estate through the University of Oregon. Now we have an opportunity to build that path.

"Dedicated professors and advisors will be crucial for the success of our students and the real estate program," said Bruce Blonigen, Edward Maletis Dean of the Lundquist College. "Our current students, alumni, and industry partners are already championing such a program. With your investment, we can answer the call."

Here is how your support will make the difference.

STEERING COMMITTEE MEMBERSHIP

The Lundquist College of Business plans to establish a steering committee to inform the creation of a real estate program. This committee will provide input in the planning process, including course development and sequencing. Members of the committee will be asked to leverage their expertise and relationships in the industry to help secure philanthropic support and build a network of alumni to assist students in professional development.

POSSIBLE COURSES

Real Estate Process, Real Estate Finance, Valuation in Real Estate, Real Estate Law, Real Estate Investment Analysis, Pro Forma Excel Modeling

We are excited to partner with donors and industry friends to meet this growing need. If you are interested in supporting real estate education at the Lundquist College, please contact:
