IPWEA presents this new workshop for practitioners in infrastructure financial planning. This is intended for accountants and engineers to help them to talk the same language.

The Workshop focuses on the importance of asset management and how it relates to long-term financial planning and much more.

The workshops are based on the concepts & guidelines presented in:

IPWEA's Australian Infrastructure Financial Management Guidelines

Workshop Objectives:

- Better understanding of accounting for infrastructure
- Understanding depreciation, valuation, useful life, fair value
- Manage financial sustainability
- Integrate asset management planning & long term financial planning
- Meet national frameworks for financial reporting

Key Topics Covered in the Workshops:

- The roles of Asset and Finance Managers
- Providing appropriate services at agreed service levels at lowest life cycle cost
- Auditing of Infrastructure
- Regulatory framework
- Asset revaluation
- Long-term financial planning

Who Should Attend:

- Financial professionals
- Asset Managers; Engineers, Technical Staff

Applicable to local government, public works or other organisations (public or private) that rely on all types of infrastructure assets to provide services for their community, customers and stakeholders.

The Workshop also provides the opportunity for participants to network and share their experiences.

PRESENTERS

We are very fortunate to have 2 of the 3 principal authors of the AIFMG presenting at each of the courses:

John Howard

Associate, JRA

John is a Civil Engineer with qualifications in Economics, Town Planning and Management. John has worked at all levels up to CEO, linking local government political, strategic and operational performance measurement and has excellent knowledge of local government political, corporate planning, management, business and human resources systems and processes.

Jim Dixon

Associate, GAAP Consulting

Jim Dixon FCPA, has extensive experience in advising on financial reporting gained from working with entities and agencies across both the private and public sectors. Jim's most significant recent challenge has been to address accounting and auditing issues arising from the implementation of AIFRS across the Victorian Public Sector. An important part of this work has been to advise and train staff within the Office of the Victorian Auditor General (VAGO) on the many aspects and issues arising from the implementation of AIFRS.

John Comrie

John is principal of JAC Comrie Pty Ltd. John has previously headed the South Australian Government's Office of Local Government and prior to that the Local Government Association of SA and was CEO of a large local government in metropolitan Adelaide. He has extensive experience as a trainer and expertise in local government governance matters and in particular council member and staff roles and relationships and financial sustainability improvement issues. He was a key contributor in initiating and developing many of the legislative reforms in these fields over the past decade that now apply in the SA local government sector. He has often spoken on these subjects at SA and national forums.
