“Interviews with eight of the world’s most respected futurists revealed all were in agreement on one thing ... that the greatest challenge human-kind faces today is coping with the ever increasing speed of change in the world. Little wonder that stress-related illness and depression is the number one diagnosed disease in the western world.”

The high performance imperative

The stakes in the workplace are higher than any time in history. Demands placed on people and teams to perform and keep producing results are tougher than ever before and job security is not a given.

High achievers in this environment recognise that they need to continue improving. Standing still is not an option as it means in effect they are going backwards. The people who will not only survive but prosper will be those who understand what it is that they need to do to keep improving.

IPWEAQ’s Executive Development program - “Improving Performance and Productivity” is a dynamic one-day course offering local government and consulting directors and senior managers practical high performance insights to assist you to:

- > boost your potential and improve performance
- > improve your mental toughness
- > apply new thinking to old problems
- > deal with challenges more effectively
- > lead your team to better outcomes.

Who should attend?

Local government and consulting directors, management and senior engineers responsible for maintaining / exceeding performance benchmarks.

Valuable insights and outcomes

If you want to develop a more united and cohesive team built on an open, more communicative and trusting platform, where information and ideas are freely exchanged - this course is for you! There will be a strong focus on:

- Developing higher levels of self awareness. Why do I behave the way I do? What underlying beliefs do I have and how are they influencing my results in life?
- Introducing and conditioning new high performance thought strategies. What thought strategies do high achievers operate with? How do I incorporate these into my life?
- Exploring values and belief systems and getting them aligned with what we ‘do’ in life to increase our effectiveness.
- Developing an understanding of emotional states and the impact they have on energy levels, our ability to use our brain more productively, the way people relate to us and our ability to influence others.

Your investment: $985 inc GST per person for the one-day program and post consultation session.
