Fragile families – and never married families - need mediation services as much as any other segment of domestic relations practice, if not more. Never married individuals are especially at risk and present unique challenges to mediators and other professionals who seek to help them. Zenell Brown has been engaged with this issue for many years and brings a unique perspective, helpful hints and important insights to share.

Information on how to access the dial-in instructions and any written materials will be provided on your seminar confirmation.

Cost
