

Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Indirect Rate Development and More....

Delivering projects and initiatives on budget is a customer expectation. Controlling costs, including indirects, is an essential part of any project. Our credibility and reputation with our customers are on the line.

"It really does not matter what you are estimating, whether it is a small project or large line item, it is critical that overhead rates be reliable and accurate," said Hopkins.

Hopkins will give a practical overview of how his firm develops, monitors, and manages indirect pools at Savannah River Nuclear Solutions (SRNS).

With 14 years at SRNS, Carter Hopkins is the Chief Financial Officer responsible for fiscal oversight and day to day operations of the Financial organization. Carter graduated from University of South Carolina Aiken in 2012 BS degree in accounting. He holds a Project Management Professional (PMP) certification with PMI, and is a proud veteran of the United States Marine Corps.
