School Spotlight–Belle Plaine High School

In August of 2022, Belle Plaine High School officially opened their doors to “Dragon Daycare.” Students in the Child Development class have the opportunity to work daily in the daycare with children. This experience is an amazing opportunity for them to get hands-on skills with kids ranging from infants to four years old. Students help prepare meals and plan lessons for the children. The high school students also earn college credit through Cowley Community College while participating in this program.

Kansas State University Report--Gina Bergin

Kansas State University has 22 students in the FCS Ed program. Eight of them will be student teaching this spring.

The Family & Consumer Sciences Education Organization has been focusing on professional development and learning from those already in the field. They had a knife skills demonstration for their October meeting and have a FAID guest speaker lined up for their November meeting.

Students will have the opportunity to attend UAC in the spring as well as the FCCLA State Leadership Conference.
