SUE OLSON, LEED AP
EndureWalls
Brand Manager

In 2016 I transitioned to full-time manufacturer's representative and retired from teaching. Currently, my role has evolved to a Brand Manager for Endure Walls. I continue to educate about materials and their suitability for interior spaces.

The difference between ordinary and extraordinary is that little EXTRA!

I grew up in a family of "do-it-yourself-ers". This is where I learned to appreciate the value of craftsmanship and the love of materials for interior spaces. My parents built and remodeled almost everything in our homes. They instilled an interest in how to figure it out, before the era of Google.

My degree in Interior Design has grown and evolved just as I have personally. My commercial design career began working for a design-build firm and furniture dealer. After starting a family, the role of adjunct faculty at Harper College made a wonderful fit. For 20 years I relished teaching in the Interior Design program.

In 2007 my career added a new dimension as a manufacturer's representative. This next chapter brought more learning and many experiences with different manufacturers. All the while I was able to weave in more education in the field of sustainability for materials and design.

In 2016 I transitioned to full-time manufacturer's representative and retired from teaching. Currently, my role has evolved to a Brand Manager for Endure Walls. I continue to educate about materials and their suitability for interior spaces.

I enjoy traveling, networking, and meeting others in the industry for trade shows and interior design-related events.

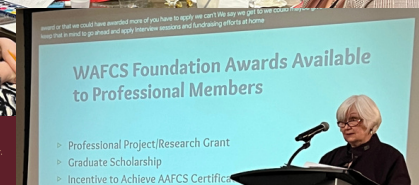

Thank you for attending the
