

University of New Mexico Dean, College of Nursing

The University of New Mexico seeks an academically distinguished nurse executive with exceptional leadership abilities to serve as the next Dean, College of Nursing (CON).

As an integral part of the University of New Mexico Health Sciences Center (UNM HSC) and the University of New Mexico, the CON is committed to providing exemplary and innovative education, research, practice, service, and leadership that improve state, national, and global health. The CON serves as a vital resource for the state addressing critical nursing challenges related to human health and health equity in the surrounding multiethnic and rural communities and beyond through education, scholarship, practice, and service. Today, over 900 students are enrolled across the Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctoral (DNP and PHD) programs. The College of Nursing is a leader in online education making the PhD, DNP, RN-BSN programs, and the MSN concentration in nursing education accessible to students throughout New Mexico and beyond.

A national search is now underway to recruit a recognized scholar in Nursing with exceptional vision and leadership abilities who will become the next Dean and architect of the College of Nursing's future. The Dean will bring a vision for nursing at UNM and guide the execution of the strategic plan to achieve the CON and organizational mission. This individual will help UNM adapt and thrive in an evolving health care industry, and will inspire the organization to deliver its vision of bolstering nursing research and working with community partners to help New Mexico make more progress in health and health equity than any other state.

The next Dean will have the qualities required to be a successful leader in a complex environment, including the ability to promote a strong collaborative culture and build strategic partnerships both within and beyond the UNM HSC Campus. The Dean must be a compelling leader whose passion for the educational, clinical, and research missions energize the students, faculty, and staff, to commit themselves to a shared, strategic vision of excellence in all missions.

This is an unparalleled opportunity for an academic executive in nursing to serve as an integral leader at one of the most comprehensive university health science complexes in the nation.
