

VOLUNTEER WITH AAPS

GIVE BACK TO THE PHARMACEUTICAL SCIENCES
IN THE MOST REWARDING WAY

“Volunteering allows you to immerse yourself in the science and make a real impact, and to develop deeper connections in the AAPS community.”

Heather A. Myler, Ph.D.
AAPS Member Since 2006

AAPS offers a variety of volunteer opportunities that match your interests, experience, and availability:

- Join a committee about meetings, posters, career development, awards, and other programs
- Propose a session for an AAPS conference and share your research and insights
- Join an AAPS Community leadership team
- Write for the AAPS Newsmagazine or propose a webinar
- Be a mentor in the AAPS Mentoring Program

HOW TO VOLUNTEER

1. Maintain your AAPS membership throughout your service.
2. Keep your email up to date—AAPS emails opportunities to members.
3. Visit www.aaps.org/volunteer to view current volunteer opportunities.
4. Complete a detailed application showcasing your skills and experience by the deadline.

HOW ARE VOLUNTEERS SELECTED?

Applicants must meet basic qualifications and be a current member. Qualified applications are then blinded and screened by a selection committee. The selection committee recommends candidates to the AAPS Board for approval.

Advancing Pharmaceutical Sciences, Careers, and Community

AAPS DIVERSITY STATEMENT

Diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging are critical to the work of the AAPS and the larger pharmaceutical community. AAPS believes that everyone's unique contributions accelerate innovation and advances pharmaceutical sciences. Learn more at www.aaps.org/policies.
