Quick & highly interactive partner energiser.

How To Play

- 1. Form into pairs facing each other.
- One partner begins by calling "SET" which will cause both partners to place their hands behind their backs and extend a certain number of fingers on one or both hands.
- 3. When ready, the other partner will call "GO" causing both people to thrust their hands forward so that all four hands can be seen.
- 4. The first person to call out the correct sum of all extended fingers wins that round.
- 5. Play several rounds, then swap partners.

Variations

- Mix & Mingle: Invite your group to simply mingle about a space, and once someone spies a willing partner, they face-off with them. This pair will engage in one or more rounds, and at some point, move on to find a new rival, or more truthfully, someone less adept at mathematics!
- More Hands: Involve three or four players, each using one or two hands.
- Subtractor: The group calculates the sum of all the fingers other than those extended by the designated 'subtracter' person, whose fingers you subtract from the sum of everyone else's fingers.
- Multiplier: As above variation, designate one person as the 'multiplier,' where you multiply their number of extended fingers with the sum of everyone else's fingers.
- Active Sums: Take a look at Around The World for a brilliant active variation of this game.
