Details:	This classroom course, hosted by the North Texas Chapter, will provide an interactive experience by working through scenarios to put risk assessment into practice: GCP compliance is all about avoiding or resolving issues related to risks that could potentially jeopardize patient safety, quality of data, and regulatory compliance. This highly interactive one-day classroom course allows you to put risk assessment into practice through collaborative instructor-led group exercises such as scenarios and quizzes. This course is free from lecture; instead you will assess for yourself in a group setting whether the presented scenarios are a GCP compliance risk, while assigning a level of risk (low, medium, or high) for each to the sponsor, site, and IRB/IEC. Once the risk and its severity has been identified, you will learn to define the actions required to resolve the problem as presented in the scenario and to prevent it in the future, as well as how to prioritize each. In order to reduce the risk of non-compliance and to increase the likelihood of GCP compliance, a clinical researcher needs to exhibit, both individually and in a team, certain qualifications and characteristics which will become clear to you during your course interactions. This course will leave you much better equipped to tackle GCP-related issues and risks immediately and independently in the field. Please visit the course page for more details.
