

Learning At Home Activity

Story Skits

What to do:

Choose a few books that you would think your student would not mind acting out. Make sure the story is one they are familiar with, such as Goldilocks and the Three Bears or Caps for Sale. Read the story and ask the student what happened and what will happen next. Talk about the characters roles and ask your child to act out his favorite character. As your student acts out the story, parents may serve as a narrator to direct the student. Feel free to use props or costumes if you like.

Materials:

Books

Questions to ask your child:

- Who is your favorite character?
- What would your favorite character do next?
- Why did you pick the character?

Why is this activity important?

This activity reinforces students' enjoyment and comprehension of books, acting, engaging in sociodramatic play, and interactions during reading experiences.
