For the past decade, M. Gale has partnered with nonprofits large and small, on various aspects of their fundraising initiatives. The company's first major client engagement was a feasibility study and management of a capital campaign to raise money to renovate and upgrade Camp El Tesoro in Granbury, Texas, for the Camp FireFirst Texas Today. M. Gale continues to work with a variety of nonprofits including Texas Health Resources, the San Antonio Museum of Art and Arlington Life Shelter.

"Working for a large nonprofit early in my career, I was able to tap into the expertise of the consultants with whom we worked and I realized that by forming a philanthropy consulting firm, I could bring a really talented group of people together so we could collectively help smaller nonprofits achieve their goals and deliver on their missions," says Missy Gale, president of M. Gale & Associates.

"Over the past ten years, we have had the opportunity and great fortune to work with some really incredible organizations on projects big and small. It's been a blessing to us because the wonderful and beautiful thing about philanthropy is that while you are giving, you are receiving. We're grateful for what we've received from working with these organizations."

With the opening of its new office, M. Gale & Associates is proud to be a part of the Six Points Race Street community. Race Street is located just northeast of downtown Fort Worth and is part of an urban redevelopment and revitalization project called Six Points Race Street which has recently received an urban walkable place designation through Center for Real Estate and Urban Analysis at The George Washington University.

"The physical office space allows us to collaborate and develop a team who can consistently develop, sustain and deliver high quality, innovative, strategic philanthropic services to our clients," says Gale. "Our new home really represents our guiding philosophy when working with clients...partnering and collaborating to create a dynamic, success-driven team. As a firm, we focus on helping our clients utilize the tools available to them to strengthen their organizations."
