

Myra Savage is a Vice President and Philanthropic Client Manager at Bank of America Private Bank. She serves as the primary point of contact for institutional clients, endowments, private foundations, and nonprofit organizations across Texas and the Midwest market.

She provides fiduciary and strategic management of philanthropic assets for affluent individuals, families, and non-profit institutions. Furthermore, she collaborates closely with her clients to discern how she can leverage the diverse capabilities of the Private Bank to enhance operational efficiencies that are in line with her clients' objectives and organizational missions. Bank of America, N.A. serves in a Trustee or Co-Trustee capacity for a wide variety of discretionary charitable foundations. Myra works on behalf of these foundations to award meaningful grants in accordance with the donor's intent and charitable legacy.

Myra joined Bank of America in 1999. Before her current role, she was a Trust Officer with Private Bank managing complex fiduciary assets including investment management, IRAs, and various trusts for affluent clients and their families. Prior to joining the Private Bank (formerly U.S. Trust), she held multiple roles at Bank of America in Global Operations and Consumer Banking.

Driven by her passion for supporting the community, Myra currently serves on the Board of Directors for Trinity Habitat for Humanity, Reading Partners, JPS Foundation and a founding board member of Fort Worth Forum.

Myra holds a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from the University of Texas at Arlington. She is also a graduate of the Texas Banker's Association Trust School. Myra resides in Fort Worth, TX and has one adult son and one daughter.
