

Ashley Calhoun Bio

Ashley Calhoun recently joined Atlantic Impact as the Development and Partnerships manager. She enjoys empowering others to support and strengthen their communities through philanthropy, volunteerism, and sustainable change. Ashley has been in the nonprofit industry for 10 years and has focused on development for five years. She wants to create a global community of individual, organizational, and corporate supporters who connect to organizational missions through relationship building and resource sharing. She is currently a board member for the Association of Fundraising Professionals Greater Detroit Chapter, and she leads the Marjorie S. Fisher Fellowship program for new and/or young nonprofit development professionals. She has previously worked with United Way for Southeastern Michigan, CultureSource, Michigan Primary Care Association, and InsideOut Literary Arts. Ashley is also a co-founder of Literary Detroit, and she graduated from Tufts University with a degree in Art History.
