Call for Speakers

Are you a development expert with creative ideas and excellent presentation skills?

You're invited to submit a speaking proposal for Rocky Mountain Philanthropy Institute, Colorado's leading conference for fundraising professionals. This annual conference brings thought leaders together from across the state to teach and learn from one another about the hottest topics in our industry. Plus, it's an unbeatable way to network!

AFP Colorado is committed to advancing the field of fundraising through best practices combined with innovation. If you or someone you know is interested in presenting, please consider submitting a speaking proposal by April 1, 2019 at 5:00 pm Mountain.

This is a unique opportunity to grow your professional profile. Don't miss the opportunity to contribute to the advancement of fundraising!

Institute for Leaders in Development is Now Accepting Applications

The Institute for Leaders in Development (ILD) at the University of Denver is a highly selective program that identifies Colorado professionals who have the potential to become the state’s next fundraising leaders. To effectively prepare tomorrow's nonprofit leaders, this nine-month program includes monthly in-depth classroom experiences. Participants are given one-on-one mentoring and the opportunity to create a plan addressing a development challenge at their organizations.

If this sounds like the perfect program for you, click here to apply now!
