

Marianna DiVietro, Senior Associate and Search Consultant with Aspen Leadership Group

She brings more than 15 years of experience in the nonprofit sector and over a decade as an independent career consultant. Known as a thoughtful colleague, trusted mentor, and supportive friend, Marianna is deeply committed to helping others grow and thrive in their careers.

Before joining ALG, Marianna served as Director of Organizational Development and Engagement at the Denver Zoological Foundation, where she led efforts in employee engagement, performance management, and staff training. Prior to her work in human resources, she was Director of Development at Denver Zoo, overseeing planned and major giving, annual giving, and special events.

Earlier in her career, Marianna was part of the advancement leadership team at the University of Colorado Denver, where she supported philanthropic efforts for the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences, College of Arts & Media, School of Public Affairs, and the Alumni Board.

She began her career in higher education as a career coach at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Across every role, Marianna's people-first, purpose-driven approach has been a defining throughline.

Her personal philanthropy and community involvement reflect her values, with a focus on higher education, early childhood education, and children's health issues.

Marianna holds a master's degree in Higher Education Administration from Ball State University and a bachelor's degree in Political Science from Bradley University.
