

Jon Wheeler is a dynamic global human resources executive with over two decades of experience aligning human capital strategy with high-stakes business and cultural objectives. He currently serves as the Global Head of Talent at Fastly, a high-growth technology company based in San Francisco, California. Jon specializes in architecting global talent frameworks that connect business strategy with leadership development that enables leaders to build inclusive team cultures. As Global Head of Inclusion & Diversity Learning at Visa, he partnered with executives to engineer global learning strategies, mitigate implicit bias, and create talent pathways for underrepresented professionals. His background also includes roles as Senior Director HRBP and Talent Management at AbbVie. He holds a B.S. in Human Services and certifications in instructional design, cultural difference and organizational change.