

Lucas Land, CFRE (they/them) Director of Development, The Delores Project

Lucas Land is a fundraising professional, nonprofit leader, and community organizer based in Denver. As Director of Development at The Delores Project — a Housing First organization providing 24/7 shelter, supportive housing, and wraparound services for women, transgender, and nonbinary people experiencing homelessness — Lucas leads fundraising, communications, and community engagement with a commitment to equity and collective action.

Lucas co-stewards CCF Denver, the local chapter of Community-Centric Fundraising, where they work alongside fundraising professionals to confront systemic inequities in the philanthropic sector — including how BIPOC expertise, labor, and leadership are undervalued and undercompensated. Grounded in years of work across direct service, international nonprofit, and development contexts, Lucas brings both practical expertise and a values-driven lens to building a more accountable and equitable profession.
