

Mat Lichini, Chanda Center for Health

Mat is a Colorado native committed to expanding opportunities and improving outcomes for all people. He serves as the Senior Director of Finance & Accounting at the Chanda Center for Health, providing strategic financial leadership, operational oversight, and cross-functional collaboration across Finance, Accounting, Facilities, Care Coordination, and key HR and IT functions. As part of the Executive Leadership Team, Mat helps shape and execute initiatives that strengthen long-term sustainability and advance the Center's mission.

Mat holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration (Finance) from the University of Denver and an MBA from Colorado Christian University. His career includes leadership roles at the Denver Scholarship Foundation, the University of Denver, the Daniels Fund, and Young Americans Bank, giving him broad expertise in finance, accounting, treasury management, tax reporting, commercial insurance, regulatory compliance, internal controls, and enterprise risk management.

He currently serves on the advisory board of Adelante Community Development and previously served as Board President for the Rocky Mountain Chapter of the Huntington's Disease Society of America. Mat is also a member of the Rose Community Foundation's Generation Now Circle and was selected for the 2020 American Enterprise Leadership Network.

Today, Mat brings this depth of experience to his presentation, offering a strategic, mission-driven perspective on financial leadership in the nonprofit sector.
