Re: Canadian COVID-19 Legal Monitoring

As discussed with you, we are monitoring and reporting on legislative, regulatory and public policy measures which may affect the business of AGRiP’s Canadian reciprocal exchange members. In particular, we are monitoring developments at the Federal level as well as within B.C., Alberta and Quebec relating to:

- expansions or restrictions of insurance coverage;
- additional requirements or easing of requirements for insurance companies or self-insured entities;
- financial packages that include or do not include insurance companies or self-insured entities;
- workers compensation benefits or funding related to COVID-19;
- employee benefits or funding related to COVID-19;
- liability for COVID-19 exposures;
- emergency funding for local governments or schools;
- expansions or restrictions of local governments or schools authority; and
- other mandates placed on local governments or schools.

The developments that have been announced so far are set out in the chart below. We will update this memorandum on a regular basis in order to keep you informed of ongoing developments. New and amended announcements since the previous report are highlighted in yellow.

For employers who pay on an annual basis, premiums will be deferred until March, 21 2021. Additional information can be found here.• For employers who are eligible for, and in receipt of subsidies under the Canada Emergency Wage Subsidy program, WCB will waive premium payments for employees who have been furloughed, retroactive to March 15, 2020. Claims Guidance: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• WorkSafeBC has posted an FAQ page for employers confirming when COVID-19 would be considered a work-related condition and when to report.• WorkSafeBC has stated that COVID-19 would be considered as work-related when a worker contracts it as a direct result of their employment. Entitlement would be allowed if there is evidence that the worker has contracted COVID-19 (either through a medical diagnosis or non-medical factual evidence) and where the nature of their employment created a risk of contracting the disease that is significantly greater than the ordinary exposure risk for the general public.• WorkSafeBC does not provide coverage for people who, on a precautionary basis, are quarantined, self-isolating or sent home.

Alberta	WCB Premium Deferrals: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> WCB premiums will be deferred until early 2021 for all private sector employers. Additional information can be found here. For small and medium businesses, 50% of the 2020 premiums will be waived. Small and medium businesses are considered those that make $10M or less in insurable earnings for 2020. The deferral applies automatically and employers who have already paid their 2020 WCB premium will be refunded automatically. No interest charges will be applied for unpaid 2020 premiums. Claims Guidance: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Alberta WCB has published both employer and employee fact sheets outlining COVID-19 guidance. The factsheets state that workers would be entitled to a claim for COVID-19 when it is a direct result of the duties of their employment. It must be shown that the nature of the employment involves sufficient exposure to the source of the infection and the nature of the employment is shown to be the cause of the condition, or the nature of the employment creates a greater risk of exposure for the worker. Alberta has taken the position that most instances of COVID-19 will not be work-related, with a few exceptions. Where a worker is sent home because of a risk of high exposure, the claim does not need to be reported as there is no illness, and therefore, no claim. Employers are advised to report a case of COVID-19 to WCB Alberta if the worker is at greater risk than the general public of contracting the virus while at work, and if they lose time from work after contracting the virus. A claim does not need to be reported if staff are not at greater risk than the general public of contracting the infection.
Québec	Quebec has announced that 1,000 officers from several government departments and agencies will visit workplaces throughout the province (but particularly in Montreal). These redeployed officers will work in conjunction with the Commission des normes, de l'équité, de la santé et de la sécurité du travail ("CNESST") to educate employers and workers on COVID-19 health and safety

They intend to visit more than 200,000 businesses registered with the CNESST, covering more than 20 industry sectors including retail, finance, manufacturing, construction, personal care. Additional information can be found here. The CNESST has updated its Question and Answer Page with respect to COVID-19. Workers who contract COVID-19 during the course of their employment may be entitled to benefits. The worker must be diagnosed with the disease and it must be shown that the worker came into contact with the virus in the course of their work. For all COVID-19 claims, the worker must consult a physician to obtain a medical certificate confirming the diagnosis. However, in exceptional cases, the CNESST may process a claim for a confirmed or probable COVID-19 infection if the worker completes the Worker's Claim form, declares that they are a carrier of COVID-19 and have received a positive test result or have been ordered to self-isolate by a nurse. As a result of COVID-19, employers have until August 31, 2020 to pay the amount indicated on their Statement of Account for their CNESST premiums. In addition, no penalties or interest will be charged during this time. Employee benefits or funding related to COVID-19:
Federal	Extension of Temporary Lay-off Period under Canada Labour Code: The Canada Labour Standards Regulations have been amended to temporarily extend the time periods given to federally regulated employers to recall employees laid off due to the COVID-19 pandemic before their employment is deemed terminated. Prior to these changes, federally regulated employers could temporarily lay-off their employees for up to three months if no notice with a recall date was provided, or for a period of up to six months if they provided a notice with an expected recall date, before the lay-off became a deemed termination. The amendments temporarily extend these time periods by up to six months as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • For employees laid off prior to March 31, 2020, the time period is extended by six months or to December 30, 2020, whichever occurs first. • For employees laid off between March 31, 2020, and September 30, 2020, the time period is extended until December 30, 2020, unless a later recall date was provided in a written notice at the time of the layoff. These changes, which came into effect on June 22, 2020, do not apply to employees who are covered by a collective agreement that contains recall rights. These changes also do not apply to employees whose employment had already been terminated prior to the coming into force of the amendments. This is a temporary measure and these amendments have no impact on layoffs beginning after September 30, 2020.

Solvency Special Payments Relief Regulations, 2020: These regulations, which came into force on May 27, 2020, provide temporary relief for federally regulated defined benefit pension plan sponsors in the form of a moratorium on solvency special payments from May 27 until December 30, 2020. The regulations also provide accommodations for solvency special payments made since April 1, 2020.

Discussions surrounding Paid Sick Leave: On May 25, 2020, Prime Minister Trudeau announced that the government will be having discussions with the provinces and territories to ensure that, as we enter the recovery phase of the pandemic, every worker in Canada will have access to 10 days of paid sick leave per year. The details of this proposal are unclear at this time, including whether employers would be responsible for bearing the cost of these sick days.

Introduction of the Canada Emergency Response Benefit (the “CERB”): The CERB provides financial support to employed and self-employed Canadians who are directly affected by COVID-19. The CERB provides a payment of $2,000 for a 4-week period ($500 a week) for up to 24 weeks and is available from March 15, 2020 to October 3, 2020. The CERB is available to workers:

- residing in Canada, who are at least 15 years old;
- who have stopped working because of COVID-19 or are eligible for Employment Insurance (“EI”) regular or sickness benefits or have exhausted their EI regular benefits between December 29, 2019 and October 3, 2020;
- who had employment and/or self-employment income of at least $5,000 in 2019 or in the 12 months prior to the date of their application; and
- who have not quit their job voluntarily.

When submitting a first claim, the individual cannot have earned more than $1,000 for 14 or more consecutive days within the four-week benefit period of the claim. When submitting subsequent claims, the individual cannot have earned more than $1,000 for the entire four-week benefit period of the new claim.

Introduction of the Canada Emergency Student Benefit: This benefit will provide support from May to August 2020 to students and new graduates who are not eligible for the Canada Emergency Response Benefit. Most eligible students will receive $1,250 per month. Eligible students with dependents or disabilities will receive $2,000 per month.

Changes to Employment Insurance: A medical certificate is no longer required for EI. If EI eligibility occurs on or after March 15, 2020, EI Regular and Sickness benefits are automatically delivered as part of the CERB.

Introduction of the Canada Emergency Wage Subsidy (the “CEWS”): The CEWS covers 75% of an employee’s wages – up to $847 per week - for employers of all sizes and across all sectors who have suffered a drop in gross revenues of at least 15% in March, and 30% in April and May. Initially, the program was to be in place for a 12-week period, from March 15 to June 6, 2020. However, the CEWS program has been extended for another three months to August 29, 2020. Employers eligible for the CEWS are entitled to receive a 100% refund for certain employer contributions to EI, the Canada Pension Plan, the Quebec Pension Plan, and the Quebec Parental Insurance Plan paid in respect of employees who are on leave with pay. Public institutions are not eligible for the subsidy; this includes municipalities and local governments, Crown corporations, public universities, colleges, public schools, and hospitals. However, on May 15, 2020, the government approved regulations to extend eligibility for the CEWS to the following groups:

- Partnerships that are up to 50-per-cent owned by non-eligible members;
- Indigenous government-owned corporations that are carrying on a business, as well as partnerships where the partners are Indigenous governments and eligible employers;
- Registered Canadian Amateur Athletic Associations;
- Registered Journalism Organizations; and
- Non-public colleges and schools, including institutions that offer specialized services, such as arts schools, driving schools, language schools, or flight schools.

On May 15, 2020, the government also announced that it intends to propose legislative amendments to the CEWS, which would:

- Provide flexibility for employers of existing employees who were not regularly employed in early 2020, such as seasonal employees;
- Ensure that the CEWS applies appropriately to corporations formed on the amalgamation of two predecessor corporations; and
- Better align the treatment of trusts and corporations for the purpose of determining CEWS eligibility.

Future changes to the CEWS program are anticipated, as the government recently requested feedback from businesses and other organizations on the program.

	Changes to the Canada Summer Jobs Program: The Canada Summer Jobs program is intended to create quality summer work experiences for youth between 15 and 30 years of age by providing wage subsidies to not-for-profit organizations, the public sector, and private sector organizations with 50 or fewer full-time employees across Canada. The Government of Canada has made temporary changes to the program, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • an increased wage subsidy, so that private and public sector employers can also receive up to 100% of the provincial or territorial minimum hourly wage for each employee; • an extension to the end date of employment from August 28, 2020 to February 28, 2021; • allowing employers to adapt their projects and job activities to support essential services; and • allowing employers to hire staff on a part-time basis (less than 30 hours per week). Changes to the Federal Work Sharing Program: Work-Sharing is a program that helps employers avoid layoffs when there is a temporary decrease in business activity beyond the control of the employer. The program provides EI benefits to eligible employees who agree to reduce their normal working hours and share the available work. The Federal Government has made temporary changes to the program, including extending the maximum duration of the program from 38 weeks to 76 weeks for employers affected by COVID-19. EI benefits received by employees through the Work-Sharing program reduce the benefit that the employer is entitled to receive under the CEWS. Public sector employers, including government or publicly-owned corporations, such as crown corporations, are not eligible for Work-Sharing. Temporary Salary Top-up for Low-income Essential Workers: The government announced an agreement with all provinces and territories to share the cost of wage top-ups for essential workers. The federal government will provide up to $3B for this new benefit, and the provinces and territories will contribute up to $1B. Each provincial and territorial government will determine the eligibility criteria for essential workers and how the benefit will be distributed in their respective jurisdictions. COVID-19 Leave of Absence under Canada Labour Code: The Federal Government has passed legislation introducing a new, job-protected leave of absence under the Canada Labour Code. Employees who are unable or unavailable to work for reasons related to COVID-19 are entitled to a leave of absence of up to 16 weeks, or such number of weeks that may be set by regulation. During this period of leave, benefits and pension contributions must be continued (among other requirements).

Jurisdiction	Developments
B.C.	Introduction of Pandemic Pay: A $4 per hour “Pandemic Pay” premium will be provided to employees working in public health, social, and corrections services. The premium will be payable to employees who have actively worked in these services, and excludes management personnel. The pay will be retroactive to March 15, 2020 and is payable for up to 16 weeks. Discussions about Paid Sick Leave: Premier John Horgan has announced during several press conferences that his government intends to introduce paid sick leave provisions into the Employment Standards Act, and that is currently working with federal and other provincial governments to determine a centralized, government-sourced funding for the paid leave. Introduction of the BC Emergency Benefit For Workers: This benefit provides a one-time payment of $1,000 for workers whose income has been affected by COVID-19. Introduction of COVID -19 Related Leaves of Absence under the Employment Standards Act: The Government has amended the Employment Standards Act to provide mandatory, job-protected leaves of absence for employees who are unable to work for reasons related to COVID-19. This includes employees who are unable to work due to self-isolation requirements, as a result of child-care obligations consequent to school closures, or an inability to return to B.C. as a result of travel restrictions. Employees are entitled to leave for the time that the prescribed circumstance exists, and is retroactive to January 27, 2020. Introduction of Single Site Staffing Restrictions for Health Care Workers: The Provincial Health Officer has restricted health care workers, with some exceptions, from working at multiple health care facilities. The Order applies to acute, long term care, assisted living, private hospital and complex care facilities. The Order applies to employees of employers operating such facilities, as well as contractors and subcontractors at those facilities. At the time of writing, regional Health Authorities and Health Officers have developed and continue to develop implementation and staffing plans for specific worksites. As a result of this and related Orders, all unionized health care workers will be receive wage increases equivalent to Provincial Master (HEABC) Collective Agreements, regardless of whether the employer is a party to the Provincial Master (HEABC) Collective Agreement.
Alberta	Employer Grants for Relaunch Costs. The Alberta government has announced that it will be offering up to $200M in new financial supports for small and medium sized employers. Businesses with less than 500 employees will be eligible for a one-time payment of up to 15% their monthly sales revenue, up to a maximum of $5,000, in order to offset a portion of their relaunch costs. The funds can be used for implementing measures to minimize the risk of virus transmission, (such as physical barriers, personal protective equipment and disinfecting supplies), rent, employee wages or replacement of inventory. Specific details of the program and the application process are still being determined.

	COVID-19 Leave of Absence under Employment Standards Code: The Provincial Government introduced a new, job-protected leave of absence under the Employment Standards Code. Employees who are unable or unavailable to work due to the requirement to self-isolate or care for a child or dependent who is required to self-isolate are entitled to an unpaid leave of absence of up to 14 days. Further COVID-19 related amendments to the Employment Standards Code: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the maximum time for a temporary layoff has increased from 60 days to 120 days (retroactive to layoffs that occurred on or after March 17, 2020); • employers are no longer required to provide group termination notice to employees and unions when 50 or more employees are being terminated; • job protected leaves for employees caring for children affected by school and daycare closures; • employers are no longer required to give two weeks' notice for changes to work schedules under averaging agreements; and • employers are no longer required to give 24 hour written notice for shift changes. New Health Care Facility Staffing Restrictions: These restrictions prohibit health care employees and contractors from working at more than one health care facility. A new ministerial order details how facility operators must implement and apply the new restrictions. Additional information can be found here. Funding and Relief Measures for Continuing Care Facilities: The Provincial Government has announced additional funding in order to increase staffing and alleviate operational pressures in continuing care facilities. These measures include increased health care aide staffing levels; a wage top up of an additional $2 per hour for health care aides, paid student practicum positions, and $24.5M to facility operators to address cost pressures. Additional information can be found here. Ministerial Order Permitting Receipt of Both Provincial Income Support Payments and CERB: Recipients of provincial income support under the Income and Employment Support Act who have lost employment income as a result of COVID-19 are allowed to receive a portion of the Canada Emergency Response Benefit without having such income affect their provincial income support benefits.

Québec	On May 27th, the Quebec government announced it will launch a campaign to convince the population to take training to become beneficiary attendants. The duration of this training will be three months and will run from mid-June until mid-September. Those who agree to take this training will be paid $21 an hour (they will be paid as “service assistants”). Following the training, these people will be able to receive an annual salary of $49,000. Credit on Employers Contribution to the Health Services Fund in Respect of Employees on Paid Leave: Employers that can benefit from CEWS and that maintain an establishment in Quebec could benefit from a credit on their contribution to the health services fund in respect of employees on paid leave. This credit will be granted for a period of up to 12 weeks, retroactive to March 15, 2020. Additional bonuses for Health Services workers: An investment of $70M was announced on May 7, 2020 to encourage people to return to work and work full-time (at least 36.25 hours per week). All employees who offer full-time work in CHSLDs (residential and long-term care centres) will receive $100 per week. If there is at least one COVID-19 case in a given CHSLD, its employees will receive an additional bonus of $200 after two weeks full time and $400 after four weeks full time. These same measures will be applied in designated “red zone” hospitals in the greater Montreal region, but only for the following employees: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • nurses (including clinicians and auxiliaries); • respiratory therapists; • beneficiary attendants; and • maintenance workers. Subsidies will also be paid to residences for the elderly, intermediate family-type resources and private CHSLDs, so that these environments are able to offer the same bonuses to their staff. In addition, all employees in the health and social services network who agree to temporarily transfer from a region to Montreal, Laval or the Montérégie (warm regions) to come and lend a helping hand will receive an amount of $2,000 per month, which can be added to the premiums stated earlier.

	Introduction of the Incentive Program to Retain Essential Workers (“IPREW”): The Québec government has announced a new financial assistance program for individuals working essential jobs during the COVID-19 pandemic. The assistance amount offered under the IPREW will make up the difference between the CERB and an eligible individual’s wages. Thus, in addition to their wages, essential workers could receive a taxable benefit of $400 per month, for a total of $1,600 for the full 16-week period of the program. Payments will be made every two weeks starting on May 27, 2020. Introduction of the Programme d'actions concertées pour le maintien en emploi (“PACME”): The PACME offers direct financial support to eligible employers to promote training, to implement good human resources management practices and to optimize the operation of businesses and the labour market. The program aims at taking advantage of the current interruption to increase the skills of employees or self-employed workers by offering training programs. The government has announced a $100M budget for this project, which will be used to reimburse eligible expenses incurred by companies for eligible training activities. Reimbursements, per company, will be: 100% of eligible expenses of $100,000 or less and 50% of eligible expenses that are between $100,000 and $500,000. Salary Increases: The government has implemented salary bonuses and hourly rate increases for certain employees in the health and social services sectors, including 8% bonuses for salaried persons working in: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • emergency units (except psychiatric emergencies); • intensive care units with at least one diagnosed case of COVID-19; • clinics (screening and evaluation) specific to COVID-19; and • home care support services. Incentivizing farm work: In order to incentivize Quebecers to work on the province’s farms during the COVID-19 pandemic, the government has announced a program of $45M to pay bonuses of $100 per week to agricultural workers.

Other Developments of Note:
Federal	A federal prisoner has filed a lawsuit against the Federal Government for breach of his constitutional rights on the basis that he has been dangerously subjected to the COVID 19 virus due to the lack of social distancing measure in prison.
Ontario	A lawsuit and injunction application has been commenced by social justice groups against the City of Toronto for relief relating to the alleged failure of the city to provide beds and housing for homeless people which are compliant with COVID-19 social distancing procedures. The legal basis for the claim is that the city’s housing services for homeless people are unconstitutional and contrary to human right legislation in that they expose homeless people to injury and harm. No hearing date for the injunction application has been set. A copy of the claim is attached with this report. This lawsuit, while speculative, gives some indication as to the possible legal basis of claims which could be made against municipalities related to COVID-19. The immediate take-away from the lawsuit is that social services provided by municipalities which are inconsistent in COVID-19 related regulations and rules may be challenged. There have been numerous recent individual and class action lawsuits in Ontario against private operators of nursing homes arising from the death of residents. More of these types of lawsuits against nursing homes operators are expected.
