If you’re like many schools, you may not have written a strategic enrollment management plan. Or prepared for board meetings in a consistently data-driven way. Or have effective strategies in place to plan for leadership or staffing transitions.

The Process

- Pre-visit surveys for key school stakeholders and a thorough review of all admission data and materials
- One-and-a-half day onsite visit with the 360 Assessment team to meet with your key constituents
- Feedback about the structure and efficiency of the admission operations as well as ideas and recommendations on evolving vital elements of your enrollment management program
- Summary Report (20-25 pages) delivered two weeks after site visit—an actionable document offering immediate, mid-term and long-term recommendations
- Professional development roadmap for members of the admission office based on AISAP’s Learning and Development Framework and Professional Competencies
- Follow-up conference call to discuss the findings and next action steps
- Connections to other professionals doing industry-leading work in areas where you may have challenges
- A list of additional resources to use for potential deep dives on issues such as demographic analysis, brand development, and marketing
