

JSM Business Meeting Agenda (DRAFT)
August 10, 6:30-8:00

1. 6:30-7:00 - Pre-meeting social
2. 7:00-8:00 - Business meeting
 - a. (Tintle) Welcome

The Section on Statistics and Data Science Education promotes the teaching and learning of statistics by offering opportunities for all teachers. Teachers include academics, K-12 teachers, as well as informal or formal education in a professional context like business, journalism, medical research, consulting, and policy making.

The section's active involvement include:

- Offering opportunities for all statistical educators to share and discuss ideas through professional meetings, online discussion groups, and personal connections made through the section.
- Providing educational resources for the extended statistical community, including research findings, professional development, and funding opportunities.
- Creating and shaping policies of the ASA and professional communities regarding educational innovations.

If you are not yet a member but you are interested in discussing pedagogy, sharing resources, or shaping policies, join the Section on Statistics and Data Science Education

Meeting purpose: Share updates, celebrate and be together....in person!

- h. (Green) JSM Program report (2022), and looking ahead to 2023
- i. JSM 2023, One Community: Informing Decision and Driving Discovery, and share that SSDSE has 3 invited sessions and tentatively 5 topic-contributed sessions allocated. SSDSE can also submit up to two proposals for invited sessions competition, and if they are selected, then they would be added to the JSM 2023 program.
 - ii. Naomi shared that ASA is using a different submission system this year. All invited session proposals must be submitted through that system by the deadline (September 8th, 2022) to be considered. I encourage anyone who has an idea for an invited session to start organizing it and submit a proposal soon.
