

Public Lands Alliance

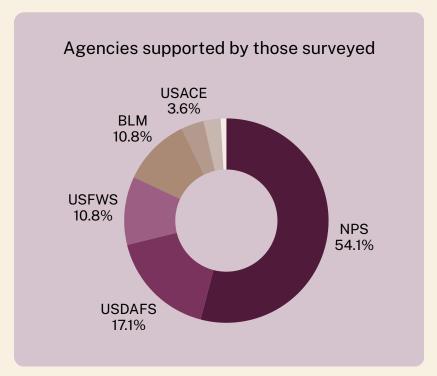

Government Shutdown Industry Survey

PLA has collected and analyzed data to understand the impact of the federal government shutdown on the nonprofit partners of America's public lands.

Who is Represented

Nonprofit partners are organizations with formal philanthropic or operational agreements with federal land management agencies. They provide critical services and support.

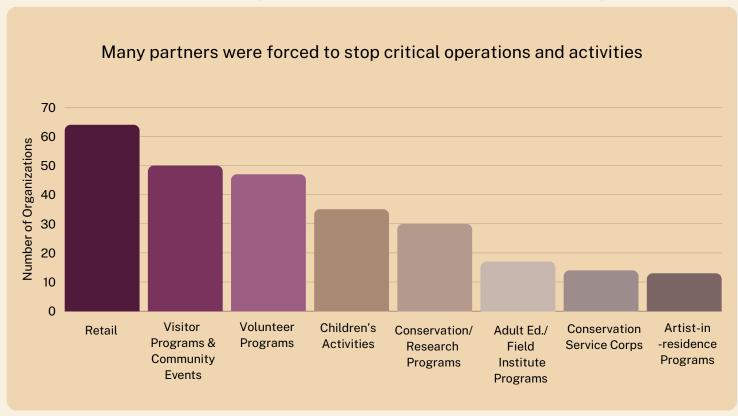

How Partners Stepped Up

Nonprofit partners already operate on tight margins with limited staff. Their tireless efforts to keep public lands open and operational were remarkable and should be commended.

How Partners Were Impacted

Partners often share critical facilities and infrastructure with their agency partners. If facilities are not open, partners cannot operate. As independent organizations, there is no opportunity to recoup funds lost during a shutdown.

$7.3 Million

in lost retail and program revenue

These funds would have been reinvested into critical programs and operations on our public lands.

Due to the uncertainty of when they would be fully operational again, partners had to furlough and lay off staff. As of 11.12, this had impacted 1,230 staff.
