Colonoscopy Remains the Top Choice for Colorectal Cancer Screening Amid New Guidance
As new colorectal cancer screening guidance draws attention to the growing number of testing options, the American Gastroenterological Association urges patients and primary care providers to understand how those options compare. ASCA experts emphasize that screening saves lives — and that the type of test matters. Colonoscopy remains the strongest screening option.

A Call for New Research on the No Surprises Act
The No Surprises Act was signed into law on December 27, 2020, to protect patients from surprise billing—unexpected charges from doctors, hospitals, or other health care providers who are not part of a patient's health plan's network. The law limits the amount that patients are required to pay in those situations and creates an independent dispute resolution process for resolving disputes

TURN DATA INTO REVENUE
Find hidden revenue gaps and accelerate payments

How in2itive helps ASCs find revenue gaps and work smarter

After ASCA + SAMBA 2026, one thing is clear: Artificial intelligence is no longer something ASCs are discussing only as a future concept. It is something that ASCs can begin using today to work more efficiently and save time.

At ASCA + SAMBA 2026, in2itive's Melanie Howitt participated in a panel discussion titled "Work Smarter, Not Harder: Using AI in Your ASC." The session offered an overview of AI and focused on practical ways it can be used in ASCs to automate daily tasks and streamline workflows. Examples included embedded tools such as Copilot that support everyday work and reduce time spent on routine tasks.

The message was simple. AI does not need to be complex or disruptive to be useful. When applied intentionally, it helps teams work smarter and creates space for better focus and decision-making.

That same principle applies to the revenue cycle. Before automation or AI can improve performance, ASCs need clear insight into where revenue is being delayed or lost and which workflows are slowing payment. This is where an in2itive assessment delivers value.

An in2itive assessment provides a clear view into how your revenue cycle is functioning. It identifies revenue leaks, workflow gaps and opportunities to accelerate payment. More importantly, it turns data into insight and insight into revenue by showing which process changes will have the greatest impact and where automation or AI can support those improvements.

Clarity starts with an in2itive assessment

It delivers a clear roadmap to faster payments, stronger workflows, and smarter use of automation and AI.

For those who want to explore this approach further, our white papers go deeper into how ASCs turn insight into action.

Start with clarity. Build from insight. Turn data into revenue.

For Mentors

Give Back to the ASC Community

A mentor can play a massive role in helping employees get acclimated and decrease the learning curve in their new position. Your knowledge and expertise of the role of an ASC administrator is based on experience that new ASC administrators, and those interested in becoming an administrator, want and need. Help them develop the skills necessary to tackle the challenges ahead by sharing what you have learned over the years. Through this program, you will strengthen your leadership skills, expand the professional network for yourself and your mentee(s), and, ultimately, leave your

"The ASCA Administrator Development program is a great learning opportunity for gaining exposure to the various leadership functions ASC administrators encounter. The program will cover topics ranging from accreditation and governance to HR and finance, providing a broad overview of critical areas. In addition to learning about different topics, you'll be assigned a mentor and be in a cohort of other administrators to share knowledge and experiences. I would highly recommend the Administrator Development program to anyone who is interested in growing in their knowledge and career."

Michael DeGuire
Mentee, 2025–2026 Spring Virtual Class
