American Society for Reproductive Medicine
SRS Practice Committee
Charter

Committee Purpose
To engage SRS members as well as trainees and “rising stars” in literature review and the drafting of ASRM Practice Committee documents relevant to reproductive surgery and surgical issues.

Committee Structure & Tenure
The Chair of the Committee is the elected SRS Practice Committee representative, approved by the SRS President. The Committee Chair appoints SRS Members. Up to five SRS members may serve on the committee along with up to 3 junior members, for up to a total of nine members including the chair. Names may be suggested by any SRS leadership board member. The term will be for the same term as the SRS PC representative. If a member is not actively participating, by vote of the SRS leadership board, they can be removed, and another member can be added before the term has concluded.
All SRS Ad Hoc Practice Committee members are required to follow ASRM guidelines by completing a COI Disclosure to serve. Conflicts by the committee chair should be reviewed by the SRS board prior to approval. Conflicts from other committee members should be reviewed by the committee chair and brought before the board if the chair thinks this is necessary. Recusal or other adjustments should be determined by the committee chair if the chair deems these appropriate.

Committee Functions
- Perform literature reviews
- Update existing practice committee documents
- Help to draft new practice committee documents
- Submit ideas for new practice committee documents to address gaps in the literature

Meeting Cadence
This is an ad hoc committee and will meet on the discretion of the Chair for the duration of a discrete project.

Committee Reporting
The Chair will report on the activity of the ad hoc committee biannually to the SRS President or more frequently as indicated.
