

Traci d'Auguste

Traci d'Auguste has been the Chief Operating Officer at UF Health Shands Hospital for over 4 years. UF Health Shands is a major regional referral center providing quaternary care with a level one trauma center, one of Florida's nine burn centers, level IV neonatal ICU, and solid organ transplant programs. In this role, she is responsible for all nursing and clinical operations inclusive of pharmacy, lab, radiology, cancer center, respiratory and rehab therapies, surgical services, four emergency departments, facilities, security, infection control and supply chain for the 1,095 bed organization. She is also responsible for the 81 bed UF Health Psychiatric Hospital and 80 bed Florida Recovery Center.

Prior to her time at UF Health, Mrs. d'Auguste was the Vice President of Clinical Operations at NewYork-Presbyterian Brooklyn Methodist Hospital, a 600 bed tertiary care hospital. In that role, she was responsible for driving the strategic growth of all clinical service lines in conjunction with Weill Cornell Medicine along with operational responsibility for procedural services, cardiac services, cancer center, neurosciences, rehab therapies, behavioral health and ambulatory practices. Additionally, Mrs. d'Auguste oversaw the planning for a new 450,000 square foot ambulatory care facility with 12 ORs, 6 endoscopy suites, oncology infusion center, imaging services and other clinical programs. During her term, she oversaw the transition of rehab services from a vendor service to an insourced program, expansion of robotic surgery programs and electrophysiology facilities, while also overseeing the capital plan for reorganizing clinical services to support growing programs.

Prior to these roles, Mrs. d'Auguste has spent her career working in clinical operations in academic medical centers from Rush University Medical Center, University of Chicago Medicine and NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital.

Mrs. d'Auguste received her MBA and MSHA degrees from the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB) and her bachelor's degree from the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa.
