

Andy Shin, JD, MPH, MBA, is Senior Vice President of Strategy at Mass General Brigham. In this role, he is responsible for shaping and advancing the strategy for one of the nation's largest integrated academic health systems and leading biomedical research organizations in the world.

Andy has held leadership positions across the social, public, and private sectors in strategy, operations, business development, and policy roles. He formed and led the American Hospital Association (AHA) Center for Health Innovation- the combined health services research, performance improvement, data solutions, advisory, and commercial business units of the AHA, including the AHA Innovation Venture Fund. Andy also served on the founding team that launched the CMS Innovation Center (CMMI) from its inception, eventually leading stakeholder engagement as group director. As a health policy fellow for the Energy and Commerce Committee in the U.S. House of Representatives, he supported the development of federal health reform legislation leading up to passage of the Affordable Care Act. He also has experience as a consultant, investment analyst, and officer in the United States Air Force.

Andy currently serves as faculty for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Catalyst Program, a collaborative initiative increasing the potential of innovative biomedical research from MIT to benefit society and the economy, and as an instructor in the Department of Health Policy and Management at the Harvard School of Public Health. He is an editorial board member for the Journal of Population Health Management, Board of Trustees member for Cooley Dickinson Hospital, Board of Directors member for the Network for Excellence in Health Innovation (NEHI), and a former Reynolds Fellow in Social Entrepreneurship with the Center for Public Leadership at Harvard University.
