

IBS DATA COLLECTION AND PRIVACY POLICY

CURRENT AS OF SEPTEMBER 25, 2018

The IBS knows that your privacy is important. This Privacy Policy describes how your personal information is collected, stored, maintained, and shared by the International Biometric Society, and documents your rights regarding control of your personal information.

PERSONAL INFORMATION THAT WE COLLECT

The personal information that we collect, and store comes to us in a variety of forms, including hard copy and electronically, and comes from several different sources. Much of this information is considered PII, or Personally Identifiable Information. PII is information that can be used to uniquely identify, contact, or locate a single person. Throughout this policy, we refer to PII as Personal Information. We believe that protecting member privacy and allowing customers access to their data is an essential part of our work.

When you visit the IBS online at www.biometricsociety.org, we automatically collect certain information about your device, including information about your web browser, IP address, and time zone. Additionally, as you browse the website, information is collected about the individual web pages that you view, and how you interact with the site, through Google Analytics. We collect information through the site using “log files”, which track actions occurring on the website, including date/time stamps. However, it is our practice not to use this information or store it in a permanent database except in aggregate form. You may opt-out of Google Analytics here: <https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout>.

Additionally, when you register for a conference or event, such as the International Biometric Conference, we collect certain information from you, including your name, billing address, payment information (including credit card numbers), email address, and phone number. We collect this data so that we may communicate with you regarding the upcoming conference. Similar information is collected when you register for an IBS Journal Club virtual session, or for funding through one of our several travel funding programs.

Those who register and submit an abstract as part of the IBC abstract review process are redirected to our 3rd party supplier, currently Scholar One. Please review their privacy policy for details on their use of data: <https://clarivate.com/clarivate-analytics-scholarone-privacy-notice/>.

In addition, we collect information from each of our IBS Regions who are responsible (in most cases) for the annual collection of membership fees from their members and for the timely reporting of the IBS portion of those fees and member contact information to the IBS. In some cases, a member may join the IBS directly, at which point similar contact information normally submitted to the IBS by a Region is collected directly by the IBS as part of the membership application or renewal process.

Information typically collected by the IBS for use with membership, conference and/or abstract submission transactions includes one or more of these items: your full name, physical address, payment information (in the case of direct payments to the IBS), phone and fax numbers, and e-mail addresses.

HOW DO WE USE YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION?

We use much of the contact information that we collect in order to communicate with you regarding only those services, memberships, subscriptions, abstract submissions, information you have requested and/or registrations for which you have paid. We also use this information to communicate with you when you have contacted us directly with a question or request. The information is also used to fulfill any orders placed through the website (including processing your payment information, making arrangements for shipping, and providing you with invoices and/or order confirmations), and to send you regular member communications and journals that are regularly shared as a member benefit. Members may opt out of one or more communications if they choose. And, in line with the communications preferences you may have shared with us, we will provide you with information or advertising related to our conferences, programs or services for up to two years from your most recent engagement with the IBS.

If you have provided us with an email address for marketing purposes, we will always provide a way for you to unsubscribe in every marketing email we send.

The IBS staff will typically generate analytics about how our website visitors browse and interact with the website, to better assess the popularity of certain pages and gauge the success of specific advertising campaigns. You may opt-out of Google Analytics here: <https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout>.

Customers have the option of submitting some applications and/or registrations by sending a paper or PDF form in person, or by mail, fax or e-mail. These forms will often contain payment information necessary in order to complete a purchase. The practice of the IBS is to not retain any payment information once a payment is processed successfully. The IBS follows the guidelines of the Payment Card Industry (PCI) in the handling of credit card information, and does not retain actual credit card number information any longer than it takes to complete the financial transaction. Paper and/or PDF forms containing PII are destroyed within seven years after the relevant order or event has ended.

SHARING YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION

We share your Personal Information with third parties when their work relates to activities in which you are or have been engaged with in the past.

- We use Scholar One to prepare for the abstract submission process prior to each IBC conference and will load past speaker data into the system in order to limit the work required by returning speakers. Click here to view the Scholar One privacy policy.

- IBC attendee information is shared with exhibitors and sponsors through the attendee roster on our mobile event application. You may choose not to have your information displayed at any time by contacting the IBO.
- The mailing information for those who have purchased a hard-copy subscription to either Biometrics or JABES is shared with our publishers in order to send each issue of the journal to your preferred address. To read the publishers' privacy policies, please click on the appropriate link below:

Wiley (publisher of Biometrics): <https://www.wiley.com/en-us/privacy>

Springer (publisher of JABES): <https://www.springer.com/gp/privacy-policy>

- IBS members receive a subscription to both publications in electronic form, by e-mail. Members may choose to stop hard copy or electronic subscriptions, and the related sharing of data with the publishers, by contacting the IBO at any time.
- The IBS may share your personal data with Regions in order to confirm current contact information. This is primarily to ensure that the service or subscription you have purchased within the last two years continues uninterrupted. A contact for each Region may be obtained by visiting the IBS Regions page. We encourage you to contact the Region with which you are affiliated to learn more about how they protect your data.
- The IBS offers an online directory of members to those with a current IBS membership. This directory contains some Personal Information. You may opt out of this "member directory", or choose to have certain information hidden or deleted, by contacting the IBO.
- We may also share your Personal Information to comply with applicable laws and regulations, to respond to a subpoena, search warrant or other lawful request for information we receive, or to otherwise protect our rights. Please contact the IBO for more information regarding this aspect of data management.

The IBS works with any third party with whom your information is shared to ensure that your information is only used for the express purpose of the activity for which the third party has been engaged.

BEHAVIOURAL ADVERTISING

As described above, the IBS uses your Personal Information to provide you with marketing communications that we believe may be of interest to you. You have a right to opt out of one, multiple or all types of marketing communications that we send you. Each message contains an unsubscribe option. If you have any questions regarding these communications, we encourage you to contact the IBO.

DO NOT TRACK

You can opt-out of Google Analytics here: <https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout>.

YOUR RIGHTS

You have the right to access Personal Information we hold about you and to ask that your Personal Information be corrected, updated, or deleted. If you would like to exercise this right, please contact the IBO.

Additionally, we note that we are processing your information in order to fulfill contracts or agreements we might have with you (for example, if you place an order through the website, sign up for an IBC, or join the IBS through a Region), or otherwise to pursue our legitimate business interests listed above. Additionally, please note that your information will be transferred between countries and jurisdictions, for GDPR purposes.

DATA RETENTION

When you become a member or customer of the IBS, and we receive Personal Information from you, that information will be added to our internal database. If no additional transactions or activity have been noted during a two year period, the record containing your Personal Information will be considered inactive and will be deleted upon your request. In addition, we will maintain the information related to any transactions or purchases in our records unless and until you ask us to delete this information.

CHANGES

The IBS may update this privacy policy from time to time in order to reflect, for example, changes to our practices or for other operational, legal or regulatory reasons.
