

Thomas Collimore, CFA

Tom Collimore, CFA, retired from CFA Institute after 12 years, where among other roles he led global institutional partnerships. Earlier, he worked in corporate finance on Wall Street for a variety of organizations including CIBC, SocGen and predecessors of JPM, concluding as managing director for investor relations and counterparties for a derivatives subsidiary of Natixis . He has served on the advisory board (now Emeritus) of Girls Who Invest since the founding of the Organization and is a board member of pension plans for Fairfield Connecticut. He was awarded his CFA charter in 1997, and holds MBA (Finance Concentration) and Bachelor of Foreign Service degrees from NYU and Georgetown University, respectively.