Contractors, (generals and subcontractors) are almost always responsible for sales and/or use tax on the products used on projects. There can be special rules depending upon the state and local municipalities which can make sales tax compliance, accruals, and filing a difficult and risky segment of your business.

Our speaker has extensive knowledge and experience in sales tax law and has assisted contractors with audit litigation. The knowledge to design an effective tax compliance program, along with appropriate legal documentation to properly manage your sales tax risk, will prepare your organization to avoid future audit headaches and potential penalties and fines.
