LYRIK BACK BAY: A HISTORICAL AIR RIGHTS DEVELOPMENT & HOME OF THE LEGO GROUP NORTH AMERICA

What was once airspace over the Mass Pike is now Back Bay's newest play-stay-work-and-whatever's-on-tap destination. Lyrik Back Bay represents Boston's first successful air rights development in more than 40 years and knits together neighborhoods that Interstate 90 cleaved in the 1960s. Completed in 2024, the development spans 450K square feet of mixed-use space, including CarGurus' global headquarters, the Lego Group's North American headquarters, a CitizenM hotel, more than 35K square feet of retail and dining, and a fully activated, two-level public plaza featuring lush greenery.

Sponsored by: BioMed Realty

KENDALL SQUARE: CAMBRIDGE'S INNOVATION HEARTBEAT

Originally a salt marsh, Kendall Square has evolved from an industrial hub into one of the world's leading innovation districts—a vibrant neighborhood fueled by technology, biotech, research, and community energy, often called "the most innovative square mile on the planet." Join this walking tour to explore the drivers behind this transformation and see how the Kendall Square District continues to grow as a major mixed-use neighborhood integrating commercial and lab space, retail, and both market-rate and affordable housing. Tour highlights include 585 Kendall, a flagship lab/office development leased by Takeda for its future Global R&D center. The project also features a performing arts venue and flexible community spaces.

ENTERPRISE RESEARCH CAMPUS AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Strategically located across from Harvard Business School and embedded within Harvard's expanding Allston campus, the Enterprise Research Campus is a fully integrated, mixed-use environment bringing together life sciences, housing, hospitality, and public space. The project represents a major investment by Tishman Speyer and Breakthrough Properties, who were selected to lead this first commercial development on Harvard-owned land. The tour will explore the foundation of the district, anchored by One Milestone – a 500,000 SF premier lab and office building, Verra – residential rental housing, Atlas Hotel – a new boutique hotel, and the David Rubenstein Treehouse – an iconic mass-timber, highly sustainable conference facility accommodating meetings and events from 20 to 750+ attendees, which is where our tour will begin. At full buildout, ERC will deliver nearly 2 million square feet across 14 acres, supported by future phases and direct connectivity to Harvard's broader Allston campus.

GATEWAY FOR BOSTON: SOUTH STATION REIMAGINED

Visit Boston's iconic South Station, which has been reimagined for the 21st century in the first major upgrade to the 126-year-old station since the 1980s. The redevelopment project – over 20 years in the making – thoughtfully modernizes the city's most critical piece of transportation infrastructure. Realized through a public-private partnership, the project addressed key challenges by significantly increasing capacity and comfort as well as seamlessly connecting Amtrak trains, the bus terminal, and the MBTA subway. Rising above the iconic station is a new 51-story mixed-use tower blending Class A office space, condominiums, and public amenities, creating a dynamic live-work-play environment which, together with the striking new concourse, creates a striking sense of arrival honoring the station's heritage while embracing a bold future.

THE HUMAN ADVANTAGE IN CRE | THE ENDURING VALUE OF RELATIONSHIPS IN A TECHNOLOGY-DRIVEN INDUSTRY

Corporate real estate is being rapidly transformed by data platforms, AI, and automation — but the fundamentals that drive long-term success remain stubbornly human.

Breaking into this industry today means competing in a landscape where technology can do more than ever, yet relationships, judgment, and trust still determine who wins the deal, the promotion, and the seat at the table. This panel brings together seasoned CRE professionals to share how they built the reputations and relationships that no platform can replicate, and what that means for young professionals charting their careers right now.

Expect a candid conversation about the skills worth investing in, the mentors worth seeking out, and why your ability to listen, connect, and earn trust may be your single greatest competitive advantage.

FROM THE GROUND UP: TWO LEGENDS REFLECT ON CAREERS BUILT WITH PURPOSE

What does it take to shape skylines, transform organizations, and leave an industry forever changed — all while staying grounded in who you are?

In this rare and intimate conversation, two of commercial real estate's most celebrated and respected figures sit down together for the first time to reflect on careers defined not just by landmark deals and portfolio milestones, but by the quiet, intentional decisions that changed everything.

Ray Ritchey, whose 45 years at BXP helped redefine trophy office development across the nation's most competitive markets and cemented his reputation as one of the most trusted voices in Washington, D.C. real estate - and Sarah Abrams, whose decades of global real estate leadership at Iron Mountain and Fidelity Investments deftly navigated the evolving intersection of corporate occupier strategy and enterprise transformation, share a remarkable quality that transcends their extraordinary résumés: humility.

This is not a highlight reel. This is a conversation about the moments of doubt, the pivots that weren't obvious at the time, the mentors who saw something they almost didn't see in themselves, and the lessons that only come from decades of showing up with integrity.

Together, they'll reflect on:

- Where they started — and how these beginnings shaped uncommon leadership
- The pivots that mattered most — those turns that redefined their paths
- What they'd tell their younger selves — and what they'd tell you about luck
- Gratitude as a leadership practice — why looking back is essential to moving forward

As our industry stands at its own inflection point, there is no better compass than wisdom hard-earned and generously shared by two of the most influential voices in CRE.

DOES CRE MATTER? | THE C-SUITE VIEW OF CORPORATE REAL ESTATE VALUE

Corporate real estate has long been positioned by industry professionals as “no longer just a cost center” — a major balance-sheet item, but more importantly a contributor to business outcomes, talent retention, and corporate culture, and a critical bridge between the C-suite, the business, and operational objectives.

With occupancy costs representing 5–15% or more of operating expenses, and many CEOs naming talent availability as their top risk, one question remains: how does the C-suite really view CRE today?

Join a panel of senior business executives for a candid look at the real value of corporate real estate — how they evaluate its impact on enterprise performance, talent strategy, and organizational agility. The discussion goes beyond theory to explore where CRE teams are adding real value today, and where opportunities are being missed. If real estate disappeared tomorrow, would it matter? Or do the workplace and CRE leadership play a critical role as enablers of business growth, innovation, and performance?

This session challenges CRE leaders to rethink how they engage the business, prioritize work, and position real estate decisions as strategic enablers of the outcomes that matter most to senior leadership.

EMPLOYEE CENTRICITY AND WHAT IT MEANS FOR ADAPTIVE LEADERS

Mezzanine Lounge | Level 2 | Stratton Student Center

As AI reshapes workflows and hybrid work becomes the norm, these essential practices can be applied immediately to make work better for employees, customers, and shareholders.

Deborah Lovich, BCG Managing Director and Senior Partner and BCG Henderson Institute Future of Work Fellow, shares the groundbreaking research behind her forthcoming book Make Work Work: The Five Daily Practices of the Employee-Centric Leader.

Drawing from work with hundreds of global organizations, she'll unpack how adaptive leaders are unlocking measurable value from AI, reducing attrition, and getting employees to bring their best selves to work — every day.

Walk away with five concrete practices you can apply Monday morning to make work better for employees, customers, and shareholders alike.

POWERING THE DIGITAL FRONTIER: DATA CENTERS, ENERGY DEMAND AND REAL ESTATE

Kresge Auditorium

AI and digital infrastructure are now growing more than twice as fast as Moore's Law, driving toward 100 gigawatts of new U.S. energy demand by 2030 and an estimated $500 billion in annual data center spend. The implications for corporate real estate are profound — and largely under-discussed.

This session brings together data center developers, utility executives, and corporate real estate leaders to explore how surging energy needs are reshaping investment strategy, site selection, and long-term portfolio planning.

We'll examine the evolving data center market, power procurement and grid constraints, sustainability trade-offs, community impact, and what energy-intensive real estate means for occupiers who never thought of themselves as energy buyers.

If your portfolio touches the digital economy, this conversation is essential.

BETTER TOGETHER: LEVERAGING STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIPS TO CREATE CRE VALUE

Twenty Chimneys | Level 2 | Stratton Student Center

The outsourcing playbook has changed. Leading CRE organizations are moving beyond traditional service contracts to build "tiger teams" — flexible coalitions of partners engaged precisely when their expertise is needed most.

The result: leaner internal teams focused on high-impact work, paired with on-demand specialists for M&A support, talent strategy, benchmarking, procurement, and savings initiatives.

This panel explores the new strategic partnership models reshaping how work gets done, and the harder question every CRE leader now faces: what should stay in-house, and what shouldn't? Hear from executives who are actively redesigning their operating models, navigating regulatory and organizational constraints, and finding the right balance between internal capability and partner leverage.

The takeaways are immediately applicable — whether you're insourcing, outsourcing, or rethinking both.

TALENT AND WORKFORCE EVOLUTION: MARKET FORCES RESHAPING PORTFOLIO STRATEGY

Twenty Chimneys | Level 2 | Stratton Student Center

The rules of talent have changed — and the impact reaches far beyond the office. Immigration shifts, an aging workforce, declining labor mobility, and a deepening shortage of skilled trades and IFM talent are creating structural constraints that will define portfolio strategy for the next decade.

This session examines how demographic transitions, regulatory uncertainty, and geographic talent imbalances are forcing large organizations to rethink where they operate, how they staff, and what role the workplace plays. We'll cover nearshoring's impact on operations footprint, AI's role in offsetting workforce gaps, the technical talent crunch facing facilities and engineering teams, and how leading CHRO-CRE partnerships are tackling these challenges holistically.

Expect hard data and candid perspectives from executives actively reshaping talent and operations across the full portfolio.

COMPETING FOR CAPITAL | MAKING THE REAL ESTATE CASE IN A RESOURCE-CONSTRAINED WORLD

Kresge Auditorium

Real estate is competing for capital like never before — against technology, talent, M&A, and every other enterprise priority.

This executive panel brings C-suite and CRE leaders together to examine how organizations actually prioritize and deploy capital across their portfolios, and how real estate stacks up when the CFO is making trade-offs. Panelists will also provide an overview of capital markets trends which impact cost and availability of capital for building owners and tenants.

Panelists will work through the full spectrum of decisions: expand or contract, lease or own, renovate or build, reinvest or relocate, and when to divest. How do you build a compelling business case for real estate investment? How is ROI defined, measured, and defended? And what separates the CRE leaders who win funding from those who don't?

LEVERAGING THE AI ADVANTAGE - THE SHIFT FROM HYPE TO ENTERPRISE VALUE

Tom Davenport is a renowned professor at Babson College, where he serves as Faculty Director of the Metropoulos Institute for Technology and Entrepreneurship and as the President's Distinguished Professor of Information Technology and Management. He pioneered the concept of "competing on analytics" with his best-selling 2006 Harvard Business Review article and 2007 book.

Tom has written or edited 26 books and over 300 articles for Harvard Business Review, Sloan Management Review, the Financial Times, and many other publications. He earned his Ph.D. from Harvard University and has taught at Harvard Business School, the University of Chicago, the Tuck School of Business, the UVA Darden School of Business, Boston University, and the University of Texas at Austin.

Davenport's focus is on how artificial intelligence has matured from the initial "awe" of generative AI toward a disciplined focus on enterprise value creation and operationalization. This means establishing reusable capabilities, data pipelines, and governance structures that support multiple AI products and decisions over time. He emphasizes that the limitation in AI adoption is not the technology itself — it is the organization's capacity to absorb it, and the need for strong human oversight.

This featured keynote is an opportunity to envision the transformative potential of AI to reshape the capabilities of corporate real estate organizations — and the broader enterprise — through methodical, value-driven deployment.

Retired

Monday, June 22 | 2:30 PM - 4:00 PM | From the Ground Up: Two Legends Reflect on Careers Built with Purpose

Sarah K. Abrams retired from her position leading the Global Real Estate team at Iron Mountain at the end of December 2025. During her 14-year tenure at Iron Mountain, she led the creation of a fully global team that centralized the delivery of all real estate services for the company's 95MSF portfolio across 60+ countries, including strategy, planning, transactions, project delivery, capital planning, facility management and sustainability initiatives as well as serving on the firm's REIT Steering Committee during the company's conversion to a public REIT and on its Enterprise Risk Committee.

Prior to joining Iron Mountain, Sarah was the president of Fidelity Real Estate Company, the corporate real estate division of Fidelity Investments, where she led the team responsible for providing all corporate real estate and location strategy services to Fidelity's business units and developed multiple campuses valued at over $2B collectively. She joined Fidelity in 1996 from USTrust where she served as Senior Vice President and led the Real Estate Owned and Environmental Risk department. She began her career as a project manager for the Kirkland Group, a Massachusetts developer of mixed income apartments.

Sarah holds a BA in Economics, magna cum laude from Boston University, a JD degree from Cornell Law School and a Master of Science in Real Estate Development from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where she also holds an adjunct lecturer appointment and teaches Corporate Real Estate.

Actively engaged in industry and civic organizations since the beginning of her career, Sarah is a past president and current advisory board member of the New England Chapter of CoreNet Global, a past president and chair of the Massachusetts chapter of NAIOP, and a past president of CREW Boston, as well as having served for many years as a mayoral appointee to the Boston Industrial Development Financing Authority, as a member of the Industry Advisory Panel for the US Department of State Bureau of Overseas Building Operations, as a member of the Cambridge YWCA Board of Directors and as a member of the Campus Planning Committee for the Fessenden School.

Sarah is the recipient of many industry awards including the MIT Center for Real Estate Spaulding Award, Corporate Real Estate Executive of the Year Award from CoreNet Global, the CREW Distinguished Leader Award, the New England Chapter of CoreNet Global President's Award, a Woman of Influence Award by both the Real Estate Forum and Globe Street and was inducted into the CoreNet Global Distinguished Leaders Circle in 2019, their lifetime achievement award.

She enjoys playing golf, cheering on Boston's professional sports teams, connecting people, reading and spending time with family and friends.

Nadine Ezzie is an innovation strategist and practicing attorney with nearly 20 years of experience across commercial real estate, technology, and law. She founded ezzie + co. to help bridge the gap between real estate and tech with a mindset that centers around people, not just process. For her, the question is no longer whether we adopt innovation, but how to do it right. Her mantra: "Always start with the end-user"

Nadine's previous roles as General Counsel at an industrial real estate firm and Head of Customer Success at a leading PropTech company give her a unique perspective on both the operational and emerging sides of the industry. By leading these teams, she understands how both segments operate, negotiate, and evolve. Today, she leads a team focused on creating operational clarity, legal precision, and strategic momentum for companies building the future of real estate.

When she's not with clients, you can find Nadine hopping on planes to deliver keynotes, co-hosting the CRE Unplugged podcast, advising several PropTech and LegalTech startups across North America, sitting on a variety of innovation and tech councils, or walking her dog Leo.

DEBORAH LOVICH

Managing Director and Senior Partner
Boston Consulting Group

Tuesday, June 23 | 10:45 AM - 11:45 AM | Employee Centricity and What it Means for Adaptive Leaders

Deborah “Debbie” Lovich is a leading thinker on leadership, culture, and the future of work. Debbie has shared her work in Harvard Business Review, Fortune, Forbes and on the TED stage – with her talk, “3 tips for leaders to get the future of work right” garnering more than 2 million views. She is a go-to for reporters who want deep insights on employee morale, leadership, culture and the adoption on AI - what she calls, Making Work Work.

Over her 30+ years at Boston Consulting Group including the last 3 years as a BCG Institute Fellow (BCG’s think tank), Debbie has shown that the next wave of value creation – including AI-driven value creation – will come from employee centricity. That means truly elevating employees to be as important as shareholders and customers when it comes to organizational strategy, execution, and metrics.

Debbie has worked with hundreds of clients and thousands of leaders – from the C-suite to the front line- to unlock value through implementing employee centricity.

In her upcoming book, Make Work Work: The 5 Daily Practices of the Employee-Centric Leader, Debbie shares insights from her 3-decade career on how to practically make employee centricity easily accessible to any leader. Her advice is grounded in a simple conviction: when leaders change small, daily behaviors, work becomes more engaging for employees — and stronger for the business.

ENTERTAINMENT POLICIES

SCHEDULED/SANCTIONED SYMPOSIUM ACTIVITIES

The CoreNet Global Eastern Regional Symposium requires that no business, social or educational activity be scheduled that would in any way compete with the Symposium schedule of events for the duration of the conference. CoreNet Global Eastern Regional Symposium designates “free time” prior to or after the conference agenda so that members may schedule on-site or off-site social activities.

Private functions may not be held during the following designated times:

Monday, June 22, 2026, from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Tuesday, June 23, 2026, from 7:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

ENFORCEMENT/PENALTIES

Violations of this policy will be brought to the attention of the CoreNet Global Eastern Regional Symposium Executive Committee. The Executive Committee will review the circumstances surrounding any violations and will determine whether penalties will be assessed.

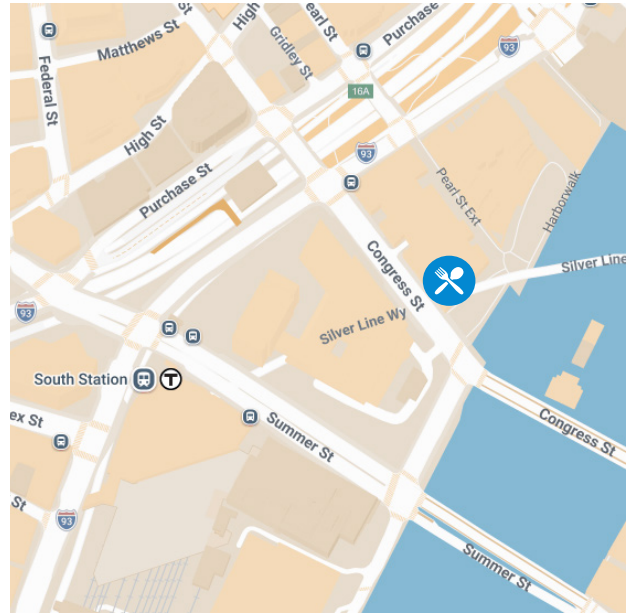

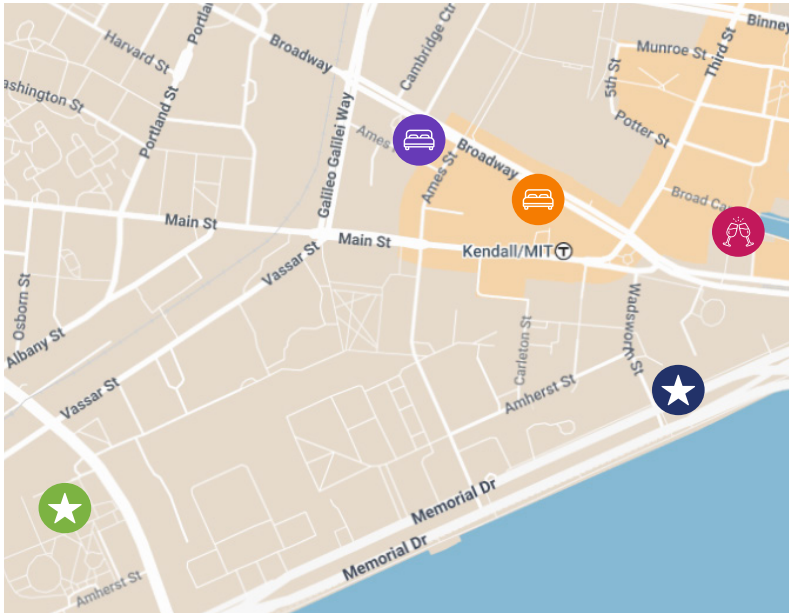

PENALTIES

1. First Offense—loss of attendance at the next CoreNet Global Eastern Regional Symposium.
2. Second Offense—permanent loss of attendance at future CoreNet Global Eastern Regional Symposiums.

RECORDINGS POLICY

Recording, photographing, and interviewing are not allowed.

No attendee at a CoreNet Eastern Regional Symposium (ERS) may record, film, tape, photograph, interview, or use any other such media during any presentation, display or exhibit without the express, advance approval of a Learning Board/Program Chair and a second ERS Planning Group or Executive Committee member. This policy applies to all CoreNet Global members, non-members, guests and exhibitors, as well as members of the print, online or broadcast media.
