The California Park & Recreation Society has created a special "benefit package" membership for city, county, district, state, federal and nonprofit agencies. The primary contact for the Agency receives all member benefits in CPRS, including voting rights.

As an advocate for the park and recreation profession, CPRS serves not only individual professionals, but also the agencies and organizations for which they work. The Society focuses on issues important to agencies and individual professionals such as public safety, youth development, advocacy, providing resources networking and trainings to position you and your agency for success. Your policymakers can also keep abreast of issues affecting the profession and their communities under this membership as well.

For $550 annually, Agencies enjoy the following special package of benefits with their membership:

- One professional membership for the head of the agency
- One free registration for the CPRS Conference & Expo – CONNECTIONS - assignable to anyone within your agency
- Up to seven subscriptions per agency to the quarterly publication, California Parks & Recreation, for your commissioners and board members or other policy members to keep them informed on current issues affecting the park and recreation profession
- Employees of your agency benefit too, with a $20 CPRS annual dues discount on their membership $145 vs $165 annually
- Free access to CPRS database for defined queries
- Free internship listings on the CPRS Job Center nearly 5,000 monthly hits
- Significant member discounts when purchasing CPRS mailing labels
- Upon request by your agency, all individuals can be given the same billing month

How To Join The California Park & Recreation Society

Please complete this form. List your Primary Contact (the person to receive the individual membership associated with this package). Then list up to seven policymakers (commissioners and/or board members) who are to receive the California Parks & Recreation magazine. Subscriptions are for policymakers only. Do not list professionals currently employed full-time or part-time by your agency. It is recommended that home addresses of the commissioners are listed to avoid multiple magazines being sent to one address. Individual emails are required.
