

SANITATION DISTRICTS

Districts protect our health and environment

For nearly 100 years, Sanitation Districts have protected communities and the environment through conservation efforts and public health education

There are 103 Sanitation Districts that provide millions of Californians with garbage removal, wastewater treatment, and solid waste management services

Through innovative strategies and solutions, Sanitation Districts have been able to restore many natural habitats in communities throughout the state

Effluent flow was first used by a Sanitation District in California to restore wetlands and marshes that now host over 200 species of birds in Northern California
