What is a Control System Integrator?

Control system integrators design and implement sophisticated control systems for manufacturing and other industrial facilities. Using their knowledge of engineering, information technology, and business, control system integrators integrate plant equipment and automate manufacturing processes. Automation helps manufacturers and processors reduce cost, increase production, use less energy and lower environmental impact.

What is the Control System Integrators Association?

The Control System Integrators Association (CSIA) seeks to advance the industry of control system integration. CSIA helps members improve their business skills, provides a forum to share industry expertise, and promotes best practices for business management. Member companies that become CSIA Certified have demonstrated the highest level of professionalism and excellence. Founded in 1994, CSIA is a not-for-profit, global trade association for system integration companies. CSIA has more than 600 member firms in 27 countries.

What does "CSIA Certified" mean?

Member companies that become CSIA Certified have demonstrated through an independent audit that they adhere to CSIA's comprehensive Best Practices in key areas of their business, ranging from project management to financial management, along with seven other vital areas. CSIA

Certification identifies a company's long-term commitment to quality and longevity in the industry.
