

Harry Lynch Johnson, Jr., FCSI

*"In recognition of your persuasive and persistent efforts in promoting education programs for the Institute and for your dedication to Chapter, Region and Institute Program Development, you are advanced to Fellowship in the Institute on this 20th day of June 1979."
Cincinnati, Ohio*

HARRY LYNCH JOHNSON, JR., was born in 1939 in Philadelphia. He attended Murrel Dobbins Technical School 1955 through 1958, studying architecture, and Temple University Technical School 1959 through 1960, studying construction methods and materials.

Harry assisted in the formation of the Rhode Island Chapter, and was its first president in 1965. He was active in chapter education efforts, establishing an annual seminar program for the chapter. He participated as a lecturer and instructor on construction and specification subjects at colleges and technical institutes.

Johnson also served his chapter as chair of various committees, and as an advisory member on its board of directors. At the region level, he was a member of the Tri-Region planning committee and a speaker at several region conferences.

He was a member of the Information System Committee, and the Education Committee, which he chaired from 1975 to 1979.

Beginning in 1969, Larry maintained an independent consulting practice, "Construction Communications Associates," specializing in specifications, contract administrative support, construction management, facility programming and product development, advertising, and marketing. In 1992, this consulting practice was combined with Focus Collaborative, Inc., where he was one of the founding principals of the firm.
