Conference of Police Chaplains*

53rd Annual Training Seminar

July 20-25th, 2026
Spokane, WA

Developing Professional Law Enforcement Chaplains through Dynamic Education and Support

Welcome to the 53rd Annual Training Seminar of the International Conference of Police Chaplains.

This Annual Training Seminar is a premier gathering of law enforcement chaplains who are committed to excellence in service, spiritual care, and professional integrity.

This seminar provides a unique opportunity to receive specialized training, engage in meaningful fellowship with chaplains from across the nation and beyond, and continue developing the skills that strengthen your vital work within your agency and community.

Whether you are pursuing ICPC Basic Courses or advancing through our Enrichment and Advanced educational tracks, the ATS offers a full spectrum of learning experiences designed to support your growth and expand your impact.

This is more than training — it is a transformational experience that equips you to serve with greater confidence, compassion, and clarity. We look forward to welcoming you and investing together in the calling we share.

With appreciation for your service,
International Conference of Police Chaplains

CHAPLAIN BASIC COURSES (CB)

These are the 10 courses required when applying for a Basic Credential or a Liaison Credential

CB01 - Understanding Law Enforcement Chaplaincy

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instructions in understanding the purpose of law enforcement chaplaincy programs and items to consider when starting a chaplaincy program. It will also identify differences between clergy & chaplains and specific items chaplains should do/should not do when serving their agencies.

CB02 - Law Enforcement Chaplaincy Basics

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in many basic elements of law enforcement chaplaincy. It will include instruction and exercises in sensitivity and diversity, suggestions and recommendations in being relevant to, and connecting with, the agency and the officers whom the chaplain will serve and will provide detailed instruction in the participation of ride-alongs and law enforcement agency ceremonies and events, including law enforcement funerals.

CB03 - Legal Aspects of Chaplaincy

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in the legal aspects of chaplaincy. It will include instruction in the disciplines of confidentiality, liability, officer and chaplain ethics as well as the legalities that surround sensitivity and diversity in regard to civil and political rights. Instruction will also be given regarding ICPC's Canon of Ethics.

CB04 - Law Enforcement Family

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in the many basic elements of what the law enforcement family is. It will include instruction in the stages of the law enforcement career, identify unique stressors that affect the families of law enforcement officers as well as stressors unique to the law enforcement career that bond officers into the Thin Blue Line family.

CB05 - Responding to the Call-Out

This course will help chaplains identify a variety of crisis situations commonly encountered by law enforcement officials and potential responses to those crises. It will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in responding to call-outs and a chaplain's response before, during and after a crisis situation.

CHAPLAIN BASIC COURSES (CB)

These are the 10 courses required when applying for a Basic Credential or a Liaison Credential

CB06 - Characteristics of Stress

Law enforcement officers have one of the most stressful jobs in the world. Our job as chaplains is to help them identify those stressors and manage them in a positive way that will help them be more productive in not only their careers but their family lives as well. It is designed to give the chaplain tools to help identify the types of stress officers may be going through, signs of burnout, trauma and PTSD. You will also be able to help your officers become more resilient and understand that by managing the stressors in their lives they can have healthier careers and families.

CB07 - Suicide

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed information regarding suicide, reasons why people commit suicide, signs of suicide and other facts to consider to aid in the prevention of suicide. Officer suicide will be addressed as well as practical instruction for chaplains to assist officers within their department and when called upon to respond in the community.

CB08 - Department-Agency Incidents

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction regarding chaplain responsibilities during department/agency incidents such as: responding to an officer involved shooting, line of duty deaths and officer injuries. It also includes detailed instruction in planning and participating in law enforcement funerals and other ceremonies and events chaplains are called upon to assist.

CB09 - Death Notification

Due to the frequent requests to have law enforcement chaplains either perform, or participate in, the delivery of a death notification, this course will provide comprehensive, step-by-step instruction and training in making such notifications. It will define "notification," discuss common and predictable reactions to receiving a death notification and provide the ten steps of a successful death notification. Additional information and training are included regarding special circumstances and locations in which chaplains are required to perform death notifications.

CB10 - Self-Care for the Chaplain

This course will provide comprehensive detailed instruction in the necessity of taking care of yourself as you serve as a chaplain. It is designed to lay some fundamental and foundational principles and practices to assist the chaplain with sustainability and resiliency.

Liaison Courses (L)

Completion of L01, L02, L03, L04, and the 10 Chaplain Basic Courses requires an additional 1.6 CEUs when applying for the ICPC Liaison Credential.

L01 - Introduction to Liaison

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in many of the basic elements of serving as a liaison between a department/agency and a chaplaincy program. This course will include qualifications and duties/responsibilities of liaison personnel in different size departments/agencies and different types of departments/agencies. This course will also assist liaison personnel in relating to chaplains with differing ages, abilities, backgrounds, etc.

L02 - Leading Chaplains

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in assisting liaison personnel to lead the chaplains in their individual chaplaincy programs. This course will include instruction in the qualifications, duties and responsibilities of chaplains and how chaplains can be an overall asset to the agency. Details including chaplain credentialing, ride-alongs and confidentiality are discussed at length.

L03 -Managing Chaplains

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in many aspects of managing chaplains. This course will include instruction on promoting the chaplaincy within your department, founding and defending a chaplaincy program and developing general orders for a chaplaincy program. This course will also help liaison personnel train, manage, discipline and deploy chaplains.

L04 - Policy and Legal Considerations

This course will provide comprehensive and detailed instruction in policies and legal considerations, primarily in regard to the laws of the United States of America. This course will include information on the First Amendment and court cases that have set the standard for law enforcement chaplaincy including chaplaincy validation and special considerations such as mandatory reporting and privileged communication. State statute examples will also be discussed.

E01 Trauma, Spirituality, and moral Injury: Why Do I feel so bad even though I did what was right?

Course Description

LE Officers may face traumatic situations or decisions that violate their spiritual convictions or moral compass. We will discuss the causes, effects, and healing strategies to help heal their broken soul.

Chaplain Claudio Consuegra

E02 Acute Stress Adaptive Protocol: A EMDR-Based Chaplain-Peer Support Intervention

Course Description

This presentation will discuss the transformative potential of the ASAP (Acute Stress Adaptive Protocol), an EMDR-based intervention designed specifically for delivery from chaplains, peer supporters, and first responder clinicians. The shortage of mental health professionals, coupled with the stigma of help-seeking, has led to task-shifting to support providers who work closely with first responders. The latest research findings show that the ASAP not only decreases posttraumatic stress symptoms but also addresses moral injury, believed to be a greater threat to first responder wellbeing.

Dr. Stephanie Conn

E03 Impacts of Line of Duty (LODD) Concerns of Police Survivors (C.O.P.S.)

The Impacts of Line-of-Duty Death training provides America's law enforcement agencies, officers and families an opportunity to gain information and resources regarding the impact of a line-of-duty death on an agency. This course will explore line-of-duty death trends across the nation and provide insight into the various ways a line-of-duty death impacts the families and agencies. This course looks in-depth at the detailed recommendations for handling Line-of-Duty Death and addressing the needs of families and co-workers. Also, the course will focus on best practices for departments for supporting families and co-workers during a line-of-duty death.

E04 Comprehending Jewish Culture and Faith as it Pertains to Our Officers and Communities

Course Description

This class will delve into the foundation of Jewish thought and Civilization. What do Jews believe in? What makes something Kosher? How do Jews deal with End-of-Life Issues? Do Jews believe in Heaven and Hell? How do I accommodate our Jewish officers? How do I support someone who is Jewish in our lock up? Jewish victims, what should I do? Are all Jews alike? These are a few of the questions this class will be exploring.

E05 It's Ok to Be OK – Post Traumatic Stress in Policing (Part 1 of 2)

Course Description

It's okay to be okay. Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) isn't for everyone! Chaplains are expected to be experts on PTSD, most of us aren't, so we either avoid having any counsel or advice or we give poor counsel or advice. This class briefly defines Post Traumatic Stress, without the Disorder. The goal is to untangle the underlying cause to get at the source of emotional stress officers experience from traumatic events and to discuss why most officers who are exposed to traumatic events don't get PTSD.

E07 Crisis Intervention During High-Stress Calls Involving Individuals with Autism and Developmental Disabilities

Course Description

Chaplains are often called to scenes involving death or traumatic loss, where emotions run high and communication is critical. When a grieving or traumatized individual has autism, a rare disorder, or a developmental disability, their reactions may look very different from what responders expect. This session equips chaplains with clear, practical strategies to offer comfort, reduce overwhelm, and support families during the most difficult moments. Participants will learn how sensory overload, anxiety, communication differences, and emotional regulation challenges can impact grief responses. This training provides tools chaplains can use to stabilize the scene, communicate effectively, and help vulnerable individuals and their families navigate traumatic loss with dignity and compassion.

Executive Director Holly Goodman

E08 ICPC International

Course Description

The class will provide participants with updates on ICPC's expanding global footprint, reports from ICPC international members in attendance regarding what is happening in their county - the challenges & opportunities they face, short video updates from other nations around the world, and then conclude with time for Questions & Answers.

E10 Home Watch: Equipping Law Enforcement Families to Thrive and What Your Role is as a Chaplain

Course Description

In this course you will be equipped with specific ways you can reach the families behind your officers and how to support them. We will explore how each phase of the career has unique challenges and where you fit in. Your role as a chaplain is paramount to the success, strength and stability in this law enforcement journey. As law enforcement families, we need you and the security of someone watching over us. Jenny and Corina are seasoned spouses who will share from their heart and expertise to give you the tools you need to help families thrive and not just survive.

E11 Chaplain Tactical First Aid – Stop the Bleed (Part 1 of 3)

Course Description

Stop the Bleed courses train the public to save lives through three basic actions to stop life-threatening bleeding following everyday emergencies and man-made and natural disasters. Advances made by military medicine and research in hemorrhage control during the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq have informed the work of this initiative which exemplifies translation of knowledge back to the homeland to the benefit of the general public.

The Stop the Bleed campaign was initiated by a federal inter-agency workgroup convened by the National Security Council Staff, The White House. This collaborative effort was led by the American College of Surgeons Committee on Trauma (ACS COT) to bring knowledge of bleeding control to the public and build national resilience.

E12 Thanks for Coming to Work Today – Gratitude Leading Leadership

Course Description

In all but a one-person department, police chiefs and sheriffs (and their agency's supervisors) must rely on the work of others to fully meet their agency's mission. This reality is inherently understood, which raises a key question. Overall, are our law enforcement agencies ones that their members would describe as being places where gratitude is a priority? When members go "above and beyond" their assigned duties is some form of "thank you" appropriate? When leaders do not convey gratitude for extra and exceptional efforts, are there consequences? Does a lack of gratitude pose officer wellness issues? Do only those who directly receive a "thank you" receive some benefit in the expression of gratitude? Additionally, when members merely do the work they are paid to do, are they also "owed" some expression of gratitude? Should gratitude be a guiding factor in how police leaders lead? How might core management activities be impacted by a "gratitude leading" leadership approach? Policing has always been an other-focused activity. Across the decades, when police officers have been asked why they joined the profession, the overwhelming majority of them have consistently expressed they had a desire to help people. On this point alone, there is reason for gratitude. Within policing, the purpose is public safety, and in meeting this mission we ask a lot of our officers. Sincere expressions of gratitude for those efforts are essential, as our officers are more likely to continue to extend themselves for others (often at great personal risk) when they believe that their efforts are valued and appreciated. This course will provide essential guidance in how police chaplains can assist police leaders in creating an agency environment that prioritizes gratitude.

E13 Suicidal People – Talking Them Down

Course Description

Suicide and Suicidal ideation vary of a wide spectrum. Those in emergency response deal with individuals with minor thoughts of self-harm to extremely dangerous situations with suicidal individuals. Not only do first responders constantly deal with individuals who are suicidal, but first responders themselves have some of the highest suicide rates. In this course you'll learn about the basics of suicide response and how to compassionately resolve the situation by service referrals, family assistance, and sometimes sending people to the hospital. The course will teach key signs of suicide ideation and how to properly navigate the dialogue to find the appropriate assistance for the individual and their family members. Lastly, we will focus on the first responder suicidal epidemic and how to take that on head first by making sure we properly take care of our own.

E14 When There's No Locker Room – Supporting Wilderness Responders

Course Description

Wilderness Responders (such as Search and Rescue and Mountain Rescue) work alongside law enforcement officers under the Sheriffs Department in many counties. These men and women, often volunteers, are exposed to the same stress and trauma but without the same level of support or access to resources as full-time and professional emergency responders. Without regular interactions on shift or "in the locker room" it can be easy for them to slip through the cracks and face the consequences of stress from acute reactions to burnout. In this session, I share my 8+ years of experience as a "wilderness chaplain" working with a variety of teams in the Pacific Northwest and the lessons learned, CISM tools and adaptations, and a sample program designed around serving this unique segment of first responders.

Chaplain Katjarina "Katja" Hurt

E15 Resilience in Action: Law Enforcement Chaplains & Critical Incident Training

Course Description

This course provides an overview of the role of law enforcement chaplains in critical incident training, response, and recovery. Participants will explore how chaplains support officers, agencies, families, and communities before, during, and after traumatic events. The course emphasizes resilience, emotional and spiritual care, organizational integration, and practical response strategies within a law enforcement environment. Chaplain Kevin Piatt started with the Spokane Police Chaplaincy as a volunteer in 2018; promoted to full-time chaplain in 2021. Kevin manages the administrative functions of the SPD Chaplaincy in addition to serving as a peer support chaplain.

E17 Crime Scene Protocol for Chaplains

Course Description

What do I do at a crime scene? Can I enter? What if I find evidence? What is evidence? What if I disturb evidence? Can I be called to testify? What do I say? Whether on a ride along or called to a scene, chaplains often find themselves smack dab in the middle of a crime scene...or at least on the edges. In Crime Scene Protocol for Chaplains, chaplains learn the basics of a crime scene investigation, what their responsibilities are, and the dos and don'ts of crime scene etiquette.

E18 Those Suffering – People in Crisis

Course Description

What is a Crisis? Dealing with people in Crisis is no simple task. It can be anything from a bad day to a severe mental breakdown. The key to dealing with people in Crisis is by meeting people on their level and being human. In this course, Sgt. Plunkett breaks down the types of crisis calls law enforcement commonly go to and how in his years of experience he has learned to work through these calls. Participants will learn how to identify different types of crisis, basic communication skills used by FBI negotiations, and how to display empathy and compassion while keeping yourself safe.

E23 Creative Partnerships as a Chaplain

Course Description

Offering a ministry of presence is one of the greatest privileges we have as chaplains—but have you ever wondered how we might add just a little more to it? As chaplains, we know that being intentionally visible and available is essential if we want our departments to fully utilize us. Most of us can easily name several ways we already do this, but this course invites us to think creatively and expand our approach.

This session will explore ways chaplains can strengthen their presence through partnerships within their departments, meaningful connections with families, and collaboration with the broader community. We will discuss how these partnerships can help ensure chaplains are fully integrated into departmental culture, while also surrounding us with the support we need personally and for our programming. I will share practical approaches I've used with the Galveston Police Department and invite participants to discuss strategies they've implemented at their own agencies. The goal of this course is for each attendee to leave with at least one new idea for connecting more deeply and offering stronger support to their agency.

E24 Behind the Badge: Marriage, Parenting, and Crisis Through a Family Lens

Course Description

For the past twenty years, I've lived the realities of law enforcement life as a wife, mom, and steady support through midnight shifts, critical incidents, line-of-duty deaths, community celebrations, and seasons of deep heartbreak. I've sat with fellow LE families in crisis, learned what strengthens a marriage when the job takes so much, and walked through the moments that shape parenting, communication, and daily life behind the badge.

This session offers chaplains a candid, practical look inside the home behind the uniform — the unseen pressures, the resilience, and the support that truly matters. We'll talk about the importance of building relationships, cultivating trust, and creating a sense of community so families never feel like they're walking alone. We'll also cover how to identify resources, understand what's available, and bridge the gap by connecting law enforcement families to the right help at the right time. You'll leave with a clearer picture of the unseen parts of this life and simple, practical tools that strengthen your ability to support and connect with law enforcement families in a way that feels steady, understanding, and trustworthy.

E27 The Weight We Carry: Understanding Trauma, Stress, and Resilience in First Responders

Course Description

First responders are trained to face danger, but not always to process what that danger leaves behind. The Weight We Carry is a 90-minute training designed for all first responders and their command staff, focusing on the psychological and physiological impact of trauma and chronic stress — not only in the people they serve, but within themselves. This session explores how constant exposure to crisis, tragedy, and human suffering changes the brain, body, and behavior. It examines the culture of silence that has long surrounded mental health in first responder professions and how that silence has led to burnout, strained relationships, emotional reactivity, and increased suicide and divorce rates. Participants will gain insight into how unaddressed stress contributes to on-duty performance issues, negative interactions, and poor decision-making — and how awareness, leadership, and proactive wellness can change that trajectory. Grounded in trauma science and real-world experience, the training provides practical strategies for managing stress, preventing emotional overload, and building resilience through body awareness, regulation, and recovery. Command staff and leadership will learn how wellness and self-care must be modeled from the top down and embedded into training, policy, and daily practice.

E28 Anti-Semitism: A look into its Origins and How it Manifests Itself in our Departments and Communities. What Can We Do to Prevent It?

Course Description

Anti-Semitism is alive and well in America. From White Supremacists to the liberal left, Anti-Semitism has manifested itself within our society. Why are Jews hated? Can I be Anti-Israel without being Anti-Semitic? When does free speech turn into hate speech? Jews are scared both in our schools and out on the street, what can I do to support our Jewish communities? Is there bigotry and Anti-Semitism within our departments? This course will explain the origins of Anti-Semitism to today's expression of Jew hate.

E31 Mission Critical: A Wellness Primer for Servers

Course Description

This course is research informed, identity-anchored training that equips participants with practical tools for improving physical health, emotional regulation, cognitive clarity, and purpose-driven performance. The framework blends Chaos Theory, behavioral science, and a multi-domain model of human optimization—Mind, Body, Soul, and Spirit—translating them into actionable systems for everyday use.

Andy Arnold

E32 Moral Injury in Policing (Part 1 of 2)

Course Description

Policing in America is dangerous—especially in recent years. LEOs need to be constantly vigilant. Danger lurks everywhere. But not all danger is physical or even mental. There's a spiritual danger. Only now is this danger beginning to be addressed in policing—it's called Moral Injury (MI).

But who are the experts in this area? Who should take the lead? Physical health professionals tend to the physical. Mental health professionals tend to the mental. Who are the spiritual health professionals? Chaplains are. Chaplains need to be the MI experts and be equipped to help officers to be spiritually vigilant to protect themselves from and to heal from MI. Although Post Traumatic Stress (PTS) may result from MI, they are different and as such need to be treated differently. This class will discuss the history, definition, causes, preventive measures, and healing from MI.

E33 Connecting with Generation Z - Understanding and Reaching Young Officers

Course Description

While recognizing that each employee is an individual, broad traits have been observed about the youngest individuals to enter law enforcement. Instead of looking ahead to a world of opportunities, Gen Z often sees an uncertain future. It is encouraging to note that members of Gen Z are open-minded, curious, compassionate, excited to learn, and eager to make a difference in the world. Regrettably, they are also more anxious and depressed, and exhibit a lower ability to cope with adversity than previous generations at the same age.

Generation Z (born 1996–2015) is unlike any generation before them. While they value authenticity and purpose, they also face unprecedented levels of anxiety, uncertainty, and disconnection—from institutions, community, and faith. Many have little or no religious background, yet they are actively searching for truth, meaning, and peace. For police chaplains, this presents both a challenge and an opportunity: you may be the only person of faith a member of Gen Z ever encounters. This session is designed to equip chaplains with insight into Gen Z's worldview, and provide practical, research-based strategies for effective connection with your youngest officers. Participants will learn how to align communication and interaction in ways that resonate and build trust. Grounded in real-world application, this presentation will help chaplains effectively engage with and mentor Gen Z officers as they experience the unique challenges facing law enforcement.

E36 Responsibilities and Challenges of Leading a Chaplain Program

Course Description

This course is designed for chaplains who serve in a leadership capacity over a chaplain program — whether carrying the title of Chaplain Coordinator, Lead Chaplain, Liaison, or another supervisory role. Regardless of title, those in these positions share a common set of responsibilities and face unique challenges that come with leading a team of volunteers in a law enforcement environment. This course takes a collaborative approach. Topics will be introduced and frameworks offered, but the richest learning will come from the experience and insight each participant brings to the room. The goal is candid dialogue. Topics will include maintaining professional standards within a volunteer team, recruiting and onboarding new chaplains, coaching for growth and effectiveness, addressing performance and conduct issues, communicating clearly with your chaplain team, and representing your chaplains effectively up the chain of command, among others. If you lead a chaplain program or aspire to, this course will equip and encourage you for the work ahead.

E39 Establishing the Chaplains Intelligence Agency

Course Description

Very Important: Before accepting position, be sure your family is completely on board with your profession and it's challenges impacting the family's way of life. To be a successful Police chaplain, a strong bond has to be established within the Department. One's personality, professional attire, sense of humor, solid knowledge of global culture, history, local demography, sociology, and psychology, are important components to achieve success. Visibility and availability to MOS are vital, especially when a MOS faces challenging Issues, affecting his/her ability to perform one's duty if busy, respond by message that you will respond in a timely fashion. If urgent, call again. In times of multi personnel crisis, be ready to coordinate with department to provide sufficient and immediate support. Be sure you understand the chain of command. If other agencies involved with your agency, coordinate with your supervisor. Multi tasking in time of crisis, a calm demeanor is essential for effectiveness.

E67 Building Bridges: A Collaborative Model for City and County Chaplaincy

Course Description

This presentation explores a collaborative approach to developing a unified chaplaincy program that serves both city and county agencies. Rooted in partnership, communication, and shared purpose, this model demonstrates how faith-based care can strengthen the emotional and spiritual resilience of first responders and community members alike. Drawing from the experience of building a joint chaplain corps in Hall County and the City of Grand Island, this session will highlight practical steps for initiating cooperation between local government entities, law enforcement, fire, and emergency services. Topics will include establishing clear protocols, aligning mission and values across departments, securing leadership and community buy-in, and creating sustainable structures for training, deployment, and support. Attendees will leave with a framework for fostering collaboration within their own regions—transforming separate and/or modest efforts into a unified, compassionate presence that actively meets the needs of those who serve and protect our communities.

Instructor Bio:

Dr. Michael L. Reighard serves the Assemblies of God as the Director of 461 Response and First Responder Chaplaincy Representative, including chaplains of police, firefighters, responders, and emergency services. Upon law enforcement graduation, he began working at his Sheriff's department and continued some involvement in law enforcement for his 46-year career. In his chaplaincy career, he has served over 20 years as Supervisory Chaplain for the Federal Bureau of Prisons and has experience in Hospital, Mental Health, Hospice, and Emergency Response Chaplaincy. In conjunction with correctional chaplaincy, he developed "Jericho Commission", a Christ-based reentry ministry for the formally incarcerated, www.jerichocommission.org. He also served as the founding president of the Correctional Ministries and Chaplains Association (CMCA) www.cmcainternational.org. Michael also founded and directs 461 Response, a response ministry, specializing in education, training, and data response initiatives, <http://461response.org>. Chaplain Reighard has been in pastoral ministry for 40 years and has received a B.A. in Bible, an M.A. in Pastoral Counseling, a M. Div., and a D. Min. in Leadership. Michael has served as an adjunct professor for Wheaton College, Global University, and Caribbean School of Theology. He is an approved instructor for ICISF (International Critical Incident Stress Foundation), and ICPC (International Conference of Police Chaplains).

ICPC Disaster Response Courses (D)

(Afternoon Courses Tuesday & Wednesday)

These courses are expressly designed for experienced Law Enforcement Chaplains seeking to refine their skills.

D01 ICPC Blue Line Response (BLR) Training I

Course Description

This class introduces the possibilities of response ministry. The instructor will include a brief history of response work before integrating current trends in response related ministry. Discussion of ICPC's Crisis Response goals and theories surrounding this ministry to LE communities, lay a foundation of Blue Line Response concepts. In addition to ideologies surrounding LE response ministry, students will learn contrasting dynamics between community and LE response needs. This class provides an introduction of BLR protocols, target groups, individual skills, definitions, and ICPC management structure. Critical Incidents and Crisis Events in LE communities require the use of an effective database system. In this class, the BLR Database system will be briefly described and explained.

 ICPC Blue Line Response (BLR) Training I, is a prerequisite to Blue Line Response Training II. Students must complete class I to take BLR Training II.*

Chaplain Michael L. Reighard

D02 ICPC Blue Line Response Training II

Course Description

BLR Training I serves as an introductory class for BLR Training II. Students in BLR Training II will begin the class learning how to gather, enter, organize, and search data in BLR Database. Students will participate in activities related to response ministry related to deployment, collaboration, and skill identification. Topics of class discussion will include types of crisis deployments, limitations, and ICPC's role in LE crisis response. Class participants can expect to be in group discussions concerning deployment assignments related to scenarios of LE response needs. Much attention will be given to ICPC's geographical and regional structure related to crisis response crisis management. Students will be required to read a brief overview of the BLR Guidelines. ICPC qualified members wishing to participate in BLR may register after this class.

Auxiliary Excursions

- Spouses, you don't want to miss this year's Auxiliary excursions!

*We anticipate this will be an unforgettable experience! Thank you for your support of the ICPC Auxiliary.
Dawn Marie Omokunde, Auxiliary President*

The ICPC Auxiliary proudly hosts a Silent Auction at each Annual Training Seminar, supporting Auxiliary activities and providing vital funding for the LODD Memorial Program.

We invite you to donate an item such as police agency memorabilia, hats, shirts, patches, gift baskets, toys, or other unique items representing your department or community. Donations may be dropped off starting Monday at 8:00 a.m., and the auction will close Thursday at 12:30 p.m.

Thank you for your generosity and for helping make a meaningful impact.

Youth Program Information

We're excited to offer ICPC youth activities during this year's Annual Training Seminar! This provides a wonderful opportunity for our young attendees to connect, have fun, and be part of the ATS experience in a safe and engaging environment.

Chaplain Matt and Annie Armstrong will serve as dedicated chaperones throughout all youth events, ensuring attentive leadership and care. They will be joined by two School Resource Officers, providing additional supervision and support. All personnel involved have successfully completed background checks for your peace of mind.

A detailed itinerary of activities will be announced soon – we look forward to an exciting and memorable experience for our youth!

All youth participants must complete online registration, and a parent or legal guardian is required to submit the necessary release forms. No exceptions will be permitted.
