CDIM Guiding Principles

1. Name

The name of the group shall be known as the Clerkship Directors in Internal Medicine (hereinafter referred to as “CDIM”).

2. Purpose

CDIM is the organization of individuals responsible for teaching internal medicine to medical students.

CDIM is a founding member of the Alliance for Academic Internal Medicine, Inc. (hereinafter referred to as “AAIM” or the “Alliance”). AAIM was originally created as a consortium of five academically focused specialty associations representing departments of internal medicine at medical schools and teaching hospitals in the United States and Canada. In addition to CDIM, the founding members of AAIM are the Association of Professors of Medicine, the Association of Program Directors in Internal Medicine, the Association of Specialty Professors, and the Administrators of Internal Medicine. As the central financial, legal, and regulatory entity, AAIM’s bylaws establish the structure of CDIM and supersede any article in these guiding principles where there is a conflict.

3. Mission

CDIM promotes excellence in the education of medical students in internal medicine by developing, implementing, and disseminating ideas for curriculum, evaluation, research, administration, and career development.

4. Membership

The AAIM bylaws authorize each founding member in the Alliance to define its own membership criteria.

possible, these departments should be from an institution approved by a comparable accrediting entity for qualifying institutions. Individuals from an institution without a department of internal medicine must apply for individual membership.

Individuals who teach or have responsibility for leading programs that teach internal medicine to medical students as well as individuals who support these educational programs shall be designated as members. Such individuals may include, but are not limited to:
