

John D. Redmond

Internal Auditor & Compliance Officer

Columbus Consolidated Government

John D. Redmond earned a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and Accounting degree from Columbus State University. Following military service, he earned a Master of Business Administration in Management from Georgia State University and a Master of Business Administration in Finance from Columbus State University.

In 1977, Mr. Redmond received his Certified Internal Auditor designation from the Institute of Internal Auditors, Inc. and in 1979, his Certified Management Accountant designation from the Institute of Certified Management Accountants of the Institute of Management Accounting.

Mr. Redmond has spent most of his professional career in various audit, accounting, and financial management positions in both the private and public sector, working in various facets of healthcare and government. He has also served as an adjunct instructor at St. Leo College and Columbus State University, teaching business and healthcare courses.

Mr. Redmond is a member of several professional associations including the Institute of Internal Auditors, the Georgia Association of Certified Fraud Examiners, the Institute of Management Accounting, the Georgia Government Finance Officers Association, the Government Finance Officers Association, and the Local Government Auditors Association. He has served in various local chapter and council positions, most recently serving as President of the GulfSouth Council of the Institute of Management Accounting. Mr. Redmond served as Director of Professional Certification of the local chapters of the IIA and IMA, and served for several years as the Testing Administrator for both organizations after Columbus was granted permission to establish testing sites. He also assisted in establishing student chapters at several area colleges and universities. He has also mentored several students in recent years through internships and practicums in their field of study.