We are pleased to announce that the Institute of Public Works Engineering Australasia (IPWEA) has been accepted to the Global Forum on Maintenance and Asset Management (GFMAM). The GFMAM is a nonprofit organisation founded to promote and develop the maintenance and asset management professions by collaborating on knowledge, standards and practices. As a global organisation, GFMAM's mission is to 'promote and develop the maintenance and asset management professions by collaborating on knowledge, standards and practices.'

According to IPWEA CEO David Jenkins "joining GFMAM will amplify IPWEA's impact internationally and build on our commitment to supporting and advancing the asset management profession. IPWEA's members in Australia and New Zealand should be proud of this recognition by GFMAM and we look forward to broadening IPWEA's contribution globally."

IPWEA is recognised globally for the provision of tools, templates, education and guidance to support the asset management profession. 'We have a strong focus on education through which we have developed asset management capacity via the IPWEA Asset Management Pathway, and our publications such as the International Infrastructure Management Manual (IIMM) accessed by a global audience. We look forward to contributing further to the global development of the profession and working with other GFMAM member organisations.' says David Jenkins.

Asset Management Council Director Dave Daines said "we are delighted that IPWEA will join GFMAM and we look forward to working together to support and advance the profession both locally and internationally".
