Introducing the new IPWEA Asset Management Committee

IPWEA Australasia is very pleased to announce the new IPWEA Asset Management Committee. The role of the committee is to provide strategic direction and leadership to facilitate an informed debate on policy and education in the asset management discipline as it relates to the public works sector.

Comprising members with extensive experience across a broad range of asset management domains, with representation from across Australia and New Zealand, the new committee, for the first time, will include an Academic Representative and a Marketing / PR expert. The addition of these positions is expected to build a connection to leading research insight form across the globe and to assist IPWEA in ensuring our policy and advocacy achieves the desired levels of influence and outcomes.

“The collective experience represented in the group is outstanding and I am confident the IPWEA Asset Management Committee will support us in leading the future of the public works profession and asset management practice” said David Jenkins, CEO IPWEA. “Two committee members currently sit on the ISO panel, which is an indication of this groups currency in defining the future of our profession,” Jenkins says.

The IPWEA Asset Management Committee Members are:

Chair: Ross Goyne – Senior Asset Management Advisor, CT Management Group
