

A future-proofed organisation

Ade McCormack

Disruption Strategist, Auridian Consulting

2-5 November 6-9pm BST

Ade McCormack is a former technologist who today is focused on helping organisations and societies thrive in the digital age.

He has worked in around forty countries across many sectors. His focus is largely on leadership. He has lectured at MIT Sloan School of Management on digital leadership and currently works with Cambridge University on their executive education programmes.

Ade is a former FT and CIO columnist, as well as having been a former CIO100 judge. He has written six books on digital matters. He is also the founder of the Disruption Readiness Institute.

His work focuses around creating super-resilient organisations. In respect of public speaking, his perspectives are considering educational, engaging and entertaining. His blog is a recognised source of forward-thinking perspectives - <https://www.ademccormack.com/>.