III. Minutes of the January 19, 2013, Meeting of the Council

Shaheen I. Imami presented the minutes of the January 19, 2013, Council meeting. Marguerite M. Lentz moved for approval with support from Amy N. Morrissey. The motion was approved on a voice-vote with no nays or abstentions.

IV. Treasurer’s Report

James B. Steward presented the Treasurer's report. On track with receipts and disbursements, except that travel appears higher than last year based on the increased mileage rate; however, he cannot determine yet if the budget for travel will be exceeded.

V. Chairperson’s Report – Mark K. Harder

Mark K. Harder presented the Chairperson’s report:

- In response to the ruling by the MSC in Mattison, Nancy H. Welber, Larry Waggoner, Christopher A. Ballard are appointed to a newly-created sub-committee on post-death, reproductive technology issues.

- Thanks were given to Thomas F. Sweeney and Marguerite M. Lentz for getting information out to the Section at-large regarding recent changes under the Taxpayer Relief Act.

- The passing of Raymond Dresser was noted, along with a gift from the Hearts and Flowers Fund.

- An inquiry was received from the Young Lawyer's Section regarding possible contributions by the Section to its summit. Keven DuComb offered his assistance.

VI. Report of the Committee on Special Projects – Marlaine C. Teahan

Marlaine C. Teahan reported that CSP heard from the Rules Committee, the Guardianship Committee, and the Specialization/Certification Committee:
• The Rules Committee requested that the Council vote on and support requested amendments to MCR 5.125(B)(2), MCR 5.208(C)(1), and MCR 5.208(F) which were approved by CSP.

• The proposed amendments to MCR 5.125(C)(6) will be sent back to the Rules Committee for reworking to clarify duties to settlor and notice to claimants.

• CSP recommended a proposed corrective amendment to MCL 700.5433 to re-insert into the statute (as a new subsection 1) the provision contained in former-MCL 700.5433 because it was inadvertently omitted from 2012 PA 545.

• CSP recommended revamping the matter in which the proposed specialization initiative is presented to CSP and the Council. Ms. Teahan reported that a discussion occurred regarding whether to continue using CSP as a forum for presenting a possible framework for specialization. It was noted that the history of the Section's consideration of specialization dates to before 2002 when Henry Grix prepared an annual report of the Section that was derived from the Section's strategic planning initiative. James B. Steward, who took over as chair of the committee in 2009, presented an overview of the initiative and purpose of the specialization rules. CSP recommended to suspend further work at the Council-level in order to survey the MSC, the SBM, & other sections with which the Section has liaisons to determine and assess levels of interest in the concept and related issues (e.g., funding) and report back to the Council at the June 2013 meeting.

Ms. Teahan made a motion to adopt a position supporting amendments to MCR 5.125(B)(2), MCR 5.208(C)(1), and MCR 5.208(F), as approved by CSP, with support from Rebecca A. Schnelz. The motion was approved on a Council vote of 18-0, with no abstentions. This is a PUBLIC POLICY POSITION to be reported to the SBM; however, the Council determined that submission of the position to the SBM and the MSC would be held until a more complete package of proposed amendments to Chapter 5 of the Michigan Court Rules is assembled and approved.

Ms. Teahan made a motion to adopt a position to seek an amendment to MCL 700.5433 (as amended by 2012 PA 545), as approved by CSP, with support from Amy N. Morrissey. The motion was approved on a Council vote of 16-2, with no abstentions. This is a PUBLIC POLICY POSITION to be reported to the SBM.

He further indicated that the MPJA does not appear to have a position. Mr. Sweeney made a motion to support SB 31 and SB 32, with support from Marguerite M. Lentz. The motion was approved on a Council vote of 18-0, with no abstentions. This is a PUBLIC POLICY POSITION to be reported to the SBM.

1. Court Rules, Procedures and Forms – Marlaine C. Teahan

Marlaine C. Teahan reported and discussed:

- Probate appeals project related to MCR 5.801 continues to moving forward – the committee is only waiting on the MJA for support.

- ADM File 2012-36 for business courts.

- MSC is close to issuing forms for the Drain Code of 1956.

- Discussion re: enabling legislation for electronic streamlining in courts for records access and filing proposed by HB 4064. The MPJA supports idea, but there are some funding concerns. Ms. Teahan reported that the MSC is looking to form a committee to determine proper fee schedules. Mark K. Harder indicated that the Section would want a seat at the table for such a committee. Michael McClory and Rebecca A. Schnelz discussed the Technology Implementation Committee and E-Filing Advisory Committee – Mr. Harder indicated that the Section might want input on those committees, as well.
2. Fiduciary Exception to Attorney Client Privilege – George F. Bearup

George F. Bearup referred to the report attached to the meeting materials. Mr. Bearup stated that the committee is looking at possible amendments to the Michigan Rules of Evidence to deal with the fiduciary exception. He further noted that a model for Michigan may be a Florida statute. He hopes to have something more concrete by the April 2013 meeting.

F. Areas of Practice

1. Real Estate – George F. Bearup

George F. Bearup reported on the following issues:

- A technical amendment to the recently passed uncapping legislation may be necessary, but the committee needs more information about the history before moving forward.
- A discussion occurred about entireties property in trusts (a Hawaii statute is a possible model, but also looking at a Virginia statute for creditor protection in such property).
- Discussion regarding requirements by some lenders requiring real property to be transferred out of trusts before permitting a refinancing. George Gregory suggested it might have something to do with national securitization of mortgages and a reluctance by lenders to review terms of trusts.
- Discussion regarding the Uniform Transfer on Death Act. W. Josh Ard noted that some creditor-related issues exist that need to be explored.

Mark K. Harder discussed HB 4263 from 2012 (which was pocket-vetoed) which has been given new life. HB 4263 is related to landlord-tenant issues and decedent’s estates.

2. Transfer Tax Committee – Nancy H. Welber

No report.

3. Charitable and Exempt Organization – Christopher A. Ballard

No report.

4. Guardianship, Conservatorship, and End of Life Committee – Constance L. Brigman

Constance L. Brigman reported regarding:

- Discussion related to GALs and the scope of duties/representation in light of MCR 5.121. W. Josh Ard will continue to look into the terminology used because of potential confusion to the alleged ward.
• Issues with guardianship transfer statute to deal with venue issues that may arise with states where a judge refuses to permit the ward to leave the state to appear to make the necessary appearance to effectuate the transfer. The particular issue that gave rise to the proposed legislation has been administratively resolved. The basic question is whether venue/jurisdiction can be conditional upon filing.

• Discussion related to a proposed “user guide” for POLST which are attached to the meeting materials. Ms. Brigman noted that it appears to rely on Brad Geller's (with the Michigan State Long Term Care Ombudsman’s office) definitions. Ms. Brigman wanted to remind the Section members that the Ombudsman's guidelines are not law.

• Discussion related to developmentally disabled (“DD”) guardianship bills and a proposal to allow a petition to be filed before the ward reaches 18 years of age. Mark K. Harder stated that SB 144, SB 176, and SB 177 have been introduced to address DD and EPIC guardianships. The Hon. David Murkowsky noted that the thinking behind the DD legislation is that a child is already in placement should be allowed to file a petition to avoid a lapse or gap. Mr. Harder noted that the Section may need to comment by April 1, 2013, because the SBM may take position. As a result, Ms. Brigman will look into the issue and report back to the Council at the March 2013 meeting.

G. Liaisons

1. Alternative Dispute Resolution Section Liaison – Sharri L. Rolland Phillips
   No report.

2. Business Law Section Liaison – John R. Dresser
   No report.

3. Elder Law Section Liaison – Amy R. Tripp

   Amy R. Tripp reported that on January 22, 2013, the legislation on Pooled Account Trusts was re-introduced by Rep. Heise (R-Plymouth) and was referred to the newly created House Financial Liability Reform Committee chaired by Rep. Earl Poleski (R-Jackson). Ms. Tripp noted that:

   • The bill will amend section 106 of “The Social Welfare Act”. Section 106A describes the subrogation right of the State to recover medical costs paid from State funds when people who have sustained injuries and file suit. Amendments to this section are refining language without substantive changes.

   • Section 106B establishes the use of a pooled special needs trust in the State of Michigan. 42 USC §1396(p)(D)(4), subparagraph (c) describes the elements of a pooled special needs trust. There is no requirement that the person with a disability be under age 65 unlike the Self-Settled (D)(4)(a) Special Needs Trust. The pending bill will help resolve a continuing problem for individuals, who are over the age of 64, attempting to create and fund a pooled trust account.

- A pooled trust is an arrangement with a non-profit organization to administer assets of people with disabilities. The Michigan Department of Human Services (DHS), implemented the federal statute through BEM 401, called an Exception B trust. Historically, the Department of Human Services allowed the transfer of assets into a pooled special needs trust without regard to age or imposing a penalty (period of disqualification) on such transfer. However, within the last few years a penalty on such transfers has been imposed. As a result, many appeals and even litigation has ensued. The passage of 4013 would eliminate these appeals and sources of litigation as the State would definitively set forth statutory guidance to state agencies and the judiciary.

- Currently 17 states allow transfers to pooled account trust for a person over the age of 64 to occur without a penalty.

- The pooled trust allows for the blend of public benefit programs and private dollars which result in an increased quality of life for persons with disabilities.

X. Adjournment

Meeting adjourned by Mark K. Harder at 12:06 p.m.
The attorney-client privilege is one of the “oldest and most established” evidentiary privileges. United States v. Jicarilla Apache Nation, 131 S.Ct. 2313, 2318 (2011). Nevertheless, the application of the privilege is often opaque when a beneficiary of a trust seeks to uncover communication between a trustee and an attorney. Within this context, courts and legislatures have sharply divided. In some jurisdictions, a beneficiary is prohibited from discovering communication between a trustee and an attorney. In other jurisdictions, a beneficiary may discover such communication, provided the communication was administrative. Wynne v. Humberston, 27 Beav. 421, 243-242, 54 Eng. Rep. 165, 166 (1858); Tablot v. Marshfield 2 Dr. & Sm. 549, 550-551, 62 Eng. Rep. 728, 729 (1865). Ultimately, disagreements center on whether the beneficiary should be considered the attorney’s client.

I. Majority Rule: Only the Fiduciary is the Client

The majority rule is that the trustee is the client. There are two (2) main reasons that courts and legislatures have supported this rule: (1) a general reluctance to recognize an exception to the attorney-client privilege; and (2) a fiduciary exception to the attorney-client privilege creates too much uncertainty, which discourages open and honest communication, which perhaps even discourages a trustee to seek legal advice. Huie v. DeShazo, 922 S.W.2d. (Tex. 1996).

a. Texas. In Huie, the court explained that without the exclusive right to the attorney-client privilege, the trustee – fearing “second guessing” by the beneficiary – might neglect or avoid legal advice, and thus, the trust would be adversely affected. The court held that “only the trustee, not a trust’s beneficiary, is the client and is entitled to assert the attorney-client privilege.”

b. California. In Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court, 990 P.2d 591, 594 (Cal. 2000), the court held that “there is no authority under California law for requiring a trustee to produce communications protected by the attorney-client privilege.” To reach its decision the court noted that “a trustee can keep beneficiaries ‘reasonably informed’ and provide ‘a report of information’ without necessarily having to disclose privileged communications.” Id.
c. Massachusetts. In Spinner v. Nutt, 631 N.E.2d 542, 544 (Mass. 1994), the court held that an attorney “advising a trustee owe[s] no duty to beneficiaries, only to their clients – the trustees.” To reach its decision the court explained that “conflicting loyalties” between the beneficiaries and the trustee would interfere with the attorney-client relationship. Id. at 544-46.

d. Florida. In First Union Nat’l Bank v. Turney, 824 So.2d 172 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2001), the court rejected the fiduciary exception. Id. at 186 (holding that “an attorney represents a single client, the trustee”). The court noted that without the guarantee of the attorney-client privilege, the trustee might be thrust into conflict with the settlor’s intentions, which are frequently different than the wishes of the beneficiaries. See Louis H. Hamel Jr., “Trustee’s Privileged Counsel: A Rebuttal,” 21 ACTEC Notes 156 (1995); Charles F. Gibbs & Cindy D. Hanson, “The Fiduciary Exception to a Trustee’s Attorney/Client Privilege,” 21 ACTEC Notes 236 (1995).

II. Minority Rule: The Fiduciary and the Beneficiary are Both Clients if the Communication is Administrative.

The minority rule is that the fiduciary and the beneficiary are both clients if the communication is administrative. Courts and legislatures have reached this conclusion because: (1) administrative matters are ultimately for the benefit of the beneficiary; and (2) the attorney is generally paid out of trust funds. However, the latter (source of payment) rationale lost traction – even in Delaware – as courts and the legislature have recognized that who pays is not determinative of who the client actually is. Del. Code. Ann. Tit. 12, § 3333 (2008)(emphasis added).

a. Delaware. In Riggs Nat’l Bank of Wash. v. Zimmer, 355 A.2d 709 (Del. Ch. 1976), the court noted that the beneficiary is the “real” client of the attorney. Accordingly, the court held that trust beneficiaries are privy to attorney-client communication between a trustee and an attorney when the communication pertains to an administrative matter.

1 “Except as provided in the governing instrument, a fiduciary may retain counsel in connection with any claim that has or might be asserted against the fiduciary, and the payment of counsel fees and related expenses from the fund with respect to which the fiduciary acts as such shall not cause the fiduciary to waive or to be deemed to have waived any right or privilege including, without limitation, the attorney-client privilege. However, in the event that the fiduciary is found to have breached some fiduciary duty, the Court may, in its discretion, deny such fiduciary the right to have some part or all of such fees and expenses paid from such fund and may require the fiduciary to reimburse any such fees and expenses that have previously been paid.”

2 “Whenever an attorney-client relationship exists between a lawyer and a fiduciary, communications between the lawyer and the fiduciary shall be subject to the attorney-client privilege unless waived by the fiduciary, even though fiduciary funds may be used to compensate the lawyer for legal services rendered to the fiduciary. The existence of a
c. Pennsylvania. In Follansbee v. Gerlach, 56 Pa.D. & C.4th 483 (County Ct. 2002), the court reasoned that a beneficiary has an essential right to complete information. Accordingly, the court held that a beneficiary may view attorney-client communications with regard to administrative matters.

III. Minority Rule: How do Courts Determine Whether a Matter is Administrative or Defensive?

Under the minority rule, the fiduciary and the beneficiary are both clients if the communication is administrative. However, it is difficult to determine whether the subject matter of the communication is administrative. Accordingly, most courts tend to focus on two (2) factors in making this determination.

1. Payment of the Attorney. Though not dispositive, courts have considered who pays the attorney as a factor in the determination of who the client actually is. In Riggs, the court viewed it as a “significant factor.” Id. at 711-12 (“the payment of the law firm out of the trust assets [was] a significant factor . . .”). Furthermore, in Fischel v. Equitable Life Assurance, 191 F.R.D. 606, 609 (N.D. Ca. 2000) the court explained that “while generally the fiduciary exception applies to matters of trust administration; the attorney-client privilege reasserts itself as to any advice that a fiduciary obtains to protect itself from liability.” The Restatement (Second) of Trusts takes a similar approach when it suggests that a trustee must pay for legal advice out of his own pockets in order to retain the attorney-client privilege.

2. A Divergence of Interests. Another way to determine whether a matter is administrative or defensive is to consider whether there exists a divergence of interests. In Jacob v. Barton, 877 So. 2d 935, 937 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2004), the court noted that “[t]o the extent that the lawyers’ work concerns the dispute with [the beneficiary], their client is the trustee, not the beneficiary.” See also Barnett Banks Trust Co. v. Compson, 629 So. 2d 849, 851 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1993). Clearly, attorney advice after a lawsuit begins will prove a divergence of interests because the communication is defensive.

Also, there is generally a divergence of interests when the issue pertains to trustee compensation. Wachtel v. Health Net, 482 F.3d 225, 234 (3d Cir. 2006).

But other bright lines are more elusive. Black v. Pitney Bowes, No. 05 Civ. 108 (GEL), 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 92263, at *3-7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 21, 2006). Courts might consider whether the fiduciary has a legitimate personal interest in the legal advice sought. But words like legitimate, personal, and interest all lend themselves to a court’s discretion. See, e.g., Wachtel v. Health Net, Inc., 482 F.3d 225, 232 (3d Cir. 2007).

IV. Uniform Rule: The Fiduciary is the Sole Client if the Communication is “Defensive” fiduciary relationship between a fiduciary and a beneficiary does not constitute or give rise to any waiver of the privilege for communications between the lawyer and the fiduciary.”

Regardless of jurisdiction, courts and legislatures tend to agree that a fiduciary is the sole client if he or she has assumed a defensive posture against the beneficiary. Accordingly, if a fiduciary retains an attorney in a personal, defensive, non-administrative capacity, in anticipation of litigation or after its commencement, the fiduciary is solely entitled to the attorney-client privilege. Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 173 cmt. B (1959)(which explains that a trustee retains the attorney-client privilege if the trustee obtains counsel “at his own expense and for his own protection.”); United-States v. Mett, 178 F.3d 1058, 1063-64 (9th Cir. 1999)(which noted that where a fiduciary seeks advice of counsel for his own personal defense in contemplation of adversarial proceedings against beneficiaries, the trustee has the attorney-client privilege).
A. Amending MCL 700.5433 to include the previous language.

   I. We discussed the Transfer of Foreign Guardianship/Conservatorship and the previous MCL 700.5433.

   II. The filing fee for filing foreign Letters of Authority is $20.00.

   III. This procedure is a “Proof of Authority” statute. Look at the attached chart.

   IV. The “Proof of Authority” is from the 2006 version of UPC 5-433. The comments provide that “this section is particularly useful should the protected person own real estate in the enacting jurisdiction. This “Proof of Authority” section is not for transferring a conservatorship from one jurisdiction to another. “Proof of Authority” does not affect the foreign state’s jurisdiction over the conservator. The conservator remains accountable to the appointing court for his actions. This section merely allows the conservator to exercise management powers with respect to assets located in the enacting jurisdiction.

B. A senator contacted me recently in an effort to enact the UAGPPJA. This issue arises out of a request for assistance from a constituent. The constituent's Aunt lives in Missouri and has a public guardian. The family had lost track of the Aunt who has been in Missouri's mental health system. They were not aware of the guardianship. They would like to move their Aunt to Michigan, however, the judge will not permit that unless Michigan adopts the UAGPPJA. The family got this from their Michigan attorney, who got it from the Missouri attorney who got it from the judge, I think. The Michigan court would not allow a guardianship petition to be filed for a person who was not currently in Michigan. See below:

   Except as otherwise provided in this act, this act applies to all of the following:
   ...
   (c) An incapacitated individual or minor in this state.

   See page 21 of materials for transfer of jurisdiction section that is not in EPIC.

C. Brad Geller published Project Wildcat and the POLST Guidelines were revised in reliance on his interpretations. See attached N.J. case that discusses the ombudsman has no authority over a nursing home and it should not be giving a nursing home directions. Publications by ombudsman are not laws passed by a legislature. I thought it was interesting.
D. Rhonda and I discussed the role of the GAL. MCL 700.5306a(1)(e) and 700.5303(3) are quoted in PC 626 (10/12) under “You have certain rights…” at bullet point #4:

You have the right to have a guardian ad litem appointed to represent you if you are not represented by an attorney.

Rhonda points out that a lawyer GAL is to disclose the lack of attorney-client privilege. That is correct. I have included MCR 5.121(E)(1) in these materials. It begins on page 3.

However, MCR 5.121(E)(1) only applies to a lawyer guardian ad litem.¹ It does not apply to a GAL who is a social worker. Therefore, when a GAL performs an investigation there is no duty on that person to tell them that anything they say to the GAL can be reported to the court without the proposed ward’s permission.

Josh has been put in charge of this project and he will report to the Council. His report begins on page 5 of these materials.

The proposal is to use the term visitor to describe the person whose job it is to meet with the respondent and inquire as to whether they wish to object. This person’s role is to assist the court. This person is a visitor.

The committee would like for Josh to perform the necessary strike throughs and substitutions so that we can recommend them to the Council for a vote in March. If we can get a bill passed before the legislature takes its summer break, then perhaps we can get SCAO to make rules and forms revisions when it meets this fall.

At some point, we would also like to consider GAL and guardian certification. Some states have guardian certification: Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Alaska, Texas, Illinois, Florida and New Hampshire. We will discuss this at our committee level.

¹ (g) "Lawyer-guardian ad litem" means an attorney appointed under section 5213 or 5219 who has the powers and duties referenced by and provided in section 5213.
RULE 5.121 GUARDIAN AD LITEM; VISITOR

(A) Appointment

(1) Guardian Ad Litem. The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem when required by law. If it deems necessary, the court may appoint a lawyer guardian ad litem to appear for and represent the interests of any person in any proceeding. The court shall state the purpose of the appointment in the order of appointment. The order may be entered with or without notice.

(2) Visitor. The court may appoint a visitor when authorized by law.

(B) Revocation. If it deems necessary, the court may revoke the appointment and appoint another guardian ad litem or visitor.

(C) Duties. Before the date set for hearing, the guardian ad litem or visitor shall conduct an investigation and shall make a report in open court or file a written report of the investigation and recommendations. The guardian ad litem or visitor need not appear personally at the hearing unless required by law or directed by the court. Any written report must be filed with the court at least 24 hours before the hearing or such other time specified by the court. [emphasis added]

(D) Evidence.

(1) Reports, Admission Into Evidence. Oral and written reports of a guardian ad litem or visitor may be received by the court and may be relied on to the extent of their probative value, even though such evidence may not be admissible under the Michigan Rules of Evidence.

(2) Reports, Review and Cross-Examination.
   (a) Any interested person shall be afforded an opportunity to examine and controvert reports received into evidence.
   (b) The person who is the subject of a report received under subrule (D)(1) shall be permitted to cross-examine the individual making the report if the person requests such an opportunity. [emphasis added]
   (c) Other interested persons may cross-examine the individual making a report on the contents of the report, if the individual is reasonably available. The court may limit cross-examination for good cause.

(E) Attorney-Client Privilege.

(1) During Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem. When the guardian ad litem appointed to represent the interest of a person is an attorney, that appointment does not create an attorney-client relationship. Communications between that person and the guardian ad litem are not subject to the attorney-client privilege. The guardian ad litem must inform the person whose interests are represented of this lack of privilege as soon as practicable after appointment. The guardian ad litem may report or testify about any communication with the person whose interests are represented.

(2) Later Appointment as Attorney. If the appointment of the guardian ad litem is terminated and the same individual is appointed attorney, the appointment as attorney creates an attorney-client relationship. The attorney client privilege relates back to the date of the appointment of the guardian ad litem.

Report to the Guardianship Committee

Background

Michigan made a serious terminological error in drafting its guardianship legislation. MCL § 700.5305 is based on the Uniform Probate Code. That uniform law uses the term [visitor] to describe a person who performs those functions of visiting the allegedly incapacitated person, explaining rights and procedures, and possibly reporting to the court. The brackets were chosen to indicate that adopting states could choose a term of their own. In retrospect, all the legislature had to do was to choose a term that caused no confusion. The legislature should have only deviated from visitor if it had a good reason to do so. The legislature instead made the deleterious choice of the term guardian ad litem. This is deleterious because the term was already used for a very different function—representing the interests of a person without or questionably without legal capacity who did not have a conservator or someone else with the power to make a binding decision for that person. Generally, this occurs in litigation involving matters others than capacity. Perhaps an interested party does not have legal capacity to consent to a settlement agreement. In cases such as those the appointment of a guardian ad litem to protect that person’s interest may be necessary. This requirement is formalized in MCR 5.121(A):

(1) Guardian Ad Litem. The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem when required by law. If it deems necessary, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem to appear for and represent the interests of any person in any proceeding. The court shall state the purpose of the appointment in the order of appointment. The order may be entered with or without notice.

That definitely does not describe the constraints on the person appointed under § 5305. The person appointed communicates to the allegedly incapacitated person and may communicate observations to the court, but there is no implication of representation of the person.

Guardian ad litem is not the worst possible choice of term. Imagine the confusion if the legislature had chosen the term judge for this role. Then we would have to distinguish judge1 who presides from judge2 whose role is essentially communication. Nevertheless, guardian ad litem was an extremely poor choice.
I have not conducted an historical analysis to discover when Michigan skidded off the road of terminological reasonableness. Presumably, it predated EPIC.

Michigan has compounded the problem in other statutes. §5306 says (e) If he or she is not represented by legal counsel, to the appointment of a guardian ad litem to represent the individual on the petition to appoint a guardian, as provided in section 5303.

Analogous protections for the subjects of protective proceedings continue the confusion:

The court may send a visitor to interview the individual to be protected. The visitor may be a guardian ad litem or a court officer or employee. MCL § 700.5406(2) (page 14 of materials)

This expressly says that a visitor may only be a guardian ad litem or a court officer or employee. The basic definition of a visitor in the court rules is not so limited:

(2) Visitor. The court may appoint a visitor when authorized by law. MCR 5.121(A). (page 3 of materials)

There are other statutes that are unnecessarily muddled as well.

It is almost as difficult to explain the differences between guardian-ad-litem\textsubscript{1} and guardian-ad-litem\textsubscript{2} as it would be to explain the differences between judge\textsubscript{1} and judge\textsubscript{2} in the hypothetical example above.

Recommendations

It is very difficult to use the same term for two very different functions and explain them in a clear matter. The task is not only to explain this to lawyers and judges but to explain matters in a way the lay public, including people of marginal capacity, can understand.

A more reasonable approach is to use two different terms for two different functions. This is what happens in ordinary language (familial came into use after familiar expanded its sense) and in legal language (Congress created the term annual percentage rate to clarify challenges in how the term interest was used).

There is no reason I am aware of not to simply use the term visitor as is used in the Uniform Probate Code. If so, no changes would need to be made in MCR 5.121. There would have to be a change in MCR 5.403. The tweaking would need to be done primarily in the statutes, however.

If there is a need for some term other than visitor, it ought to be a term that is otherwise unemployed. Facetiously, one might consider khedive, Grand Inquisitor, oracle, avatar, interlocutor, etc. Any of these would be better than the current situation.

(d) Informing the individual of the name of each person known to be seeking appointment as guardian.

(i) Whether there are 1 or more appropriate alternatives to the appointment of a full guardian or whether 1 or more actions should be taken in addition to the appointment of a guardian. Before informing the court of his or her determination under this subparagraph, the guardian ad litem shall consider the appropriateness of at least each of the following as alternatives or additional actions:

(A) Appointment of a limited guardian, including the specific powers and limitation on those powers the guardian ad litem believes appropriate.

(B) Appointment of a conservator or another protective order under part 4 of this article.

(v) Whether the individual wishes limits placed on the guardian's powers.

(vi) Whether the individual objects to a particular person being appointed guardian.

(2) The court shall not order compensation of the guardian ad litem unless the guardian ad litem states on the record or in the guardian ad litem's written report that he or she has complied with subsection (1).

(3) If the individual alleged to be incapacitated wishes to contest the petition, to have limits placed on the guardian's powers, or to object to a particular person being appointed guardian and if legal counsel has not been secured, the court shall appoint legal counsel to represent the individual alleged to be incapacitated. If the individual alleged to be incapacitated is indigent, the state shall bear the expense of legal counsel.

(4) If the individual alleged to be incapacitated requests legal counsel or the guardian ad litem determines it is in the individual's best interest to have legal counsel, and if legal counsel has not been secured, the court shall appoint legal counsel. If the individual alleged to be incapacitated is indigent, the state shall bear the expense of legal counsel.

(5) If the individual alleged to be incapacitated has legal counsel appointed under subsection (3) or (4), the appointment of a guardian ad litem terminates.

Sec. 5303. (1) An individual in his or her own behalf, or any person interested in the individual's welfare, may petition for a finding of incapacity and appointment of a guardian. The petition shall contain specific facts about the individual's condition and specific examples of the individual's recent conduct that demonstrate the need for a guardian's appointment.

(2) Before a petition is filed under this section, the court shall provide the person intending to file the petition with written information that sets forth alternatives to appointment of a full guardian, including, but not limited to, a limited guardian, conservator, patient advocate designation, do-not-resuscitate declaration, or durable power of attorney with or without limitations on purpose, authority, or time period, and an explanation of each alternative.

(3) Upon the filing of a petition under subsection (1), the court shall set a date for hearing on the issue of incapacity. Unless the allegedly incapacitated individual has legal counsel of his or her own choice, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the person in the proceeding.
700.5213 Procedure for court appointment of guardian, temporary guardian, or lawyer-guardian ad litem for minor.

Sec. 5213. (1) The petitioner shall give notice of the time and place of hearing of a petition for the appointment of a minor’s guardian to each of the following:
(a) The minor, if 14 years of age or older.
(b) The person who had the principal care and custody of the minor during the 63 days preceding the date of the petition.
(c) Each living parent of the minor or, if neither of them is living, the adult nearest of kin to the minor.
(2) Upon hearing, if the court finds that a qualified person seeks appointment, venue is proper, the required notices have been given, the requirements of section 5204 or of sections 5205 and 5206 are satisfied, and the minor’s welfare will be served by the requested appointment, the court shall make the appointment. In other cases, the court may dismiss the proceeding or make another disposition of the matter that will serve the minor’s welfare.
(3) If necessary, the court may appoint a temporary guardian with the status of an ordinary guardian of a minor, but the temporary guardian’s authority shall not exceed 6 months.
(4) If, at any time in the proceeding, the court determines that the minor’s interests are or may be inadequately represented, the court may appoint a lawyer-guardian ad litem to represent the minor, giving a consideration to the preference of the minor if the minor is 14 years of age or older.
(5) A lawyer-guardian ad litem appointed under this act represents the child and has powers and duties in relation to that representation as set forth in section 17d of chapter XIIA of the probate code of 1939, 1939 PA 288, MCL 712A.17d. All provisions of section 17d of chapter XIIA of the probate code of 1939, 1939 PA 288, MCL 712A.17d, apply to a lawyer-guardian ad litem appointed under this act. In addition, both of the following apply under this act:
(a) In a proceeding in which a lawyer-guardian ad litem represents a child, he or she may file a written report and recommendation. The court may read the report and recommendation. The court shall not, however, admit the report and recommendation into evidence unless all parties stipulate the admission. The parties may make use of the report and recommendation for purposes of a settlement conference.
(b) After a determination of ability to pay, the court may assess all or part of the costs and reasonable fees of a lawyer-guardian ad litem against 1 or more of the parties involved in the proceedings or against the money allocated from marriage license fees for family counseling services under section 3 of 1887 PA 128, MCL 551.103. A lawyer-guardian ad litem shall not be paid a fee unless the court first reviews and approves the fee.
(6) To assist the court in determining a child’s best interest, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem for a child involved in a proceeding under this section.
Sec. 5406. (1) Upon receipt of a petition for a conservator's appointment or another protective order because of minority, the court shall set a date for hearing. If, at any time in the proceeding, the court determines that the minor's interests are or may be inadequately represented, the court may appoint an attorney to represent the minor, giving consideration to the minor's choice if 14 years of age or older. An attorney appointed by the court to represent a minor has the powers and duties of a guardian ad litem.

(2) Upon receipt of a petition for a conservator's appointment or another protective order for a reason other than minority, the court shall set a date for hearing. Unless the individual to be protected has chosen counsel, or is mentally competent but aged or physically infirm, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the person in the proceeding. If the alleged disability is mental illness, mental deficiency, physical illness or disability, chronic use of drugs, or chronic intoxication, the court may direct that the individual alleged to need protection be examined by a physician or mental health professional appointed by the court, preferably a physician or mental health professional who is not connected with an institution in which the individual is a patient or is detained. The individual alleged to need protection has the right to secure an independent evaluation at his or her own expense. The court may send a visitor to interview the individual to be protected. The visitor may be a guardian ad litem or a court officer or employee.

(3) The court may utilize, as an additional visitor, the service of a public or charitable agency to evaluate the condition of the individual to be protected and make appropriate recommendations to the court.

(4) A guardian ad litem, physician, mental health professional, or visitor appointed under this section who meets with, examines, or evaluates an individual who is the subject of a petition in a protective proceeding shall do all of the following:
(a) Consider whether there is an appropriate alternative to a conservatorship.
(b) If a conservatorship is appropriate, consider the desirability of limiting the scope and duration of the conservator’s authority.
(c) Report to the court based on the considerations required in subdivisions (a) and (b).

(5) The individual to be protected is entitled to be present at the hearing in person. If the individual wishes to be present at the hearing, all practical steps must be taken to ensure the individual's presence including, if necessary, moving the site of the hearing. The individual is entitled to be represented by counsel, to present evidence, to cross-examine witnesses, including a court-appointed physician or other qualified person and a visitor, and to trial by jury. The issue may be determined at a closed hearing or without a jury if the individual to be protected or counsel for the individual so requests.

(6) Any person may request for permission to participate in the proceeding, and the court may grant the request, with or without hearing, upon determining that the best interest of the individual to be protected will be served by granting the request. The court may attach appropriate conditions to the permission.
(7) After hearing, upon finding that a basis for a conservator's appointment or another protective order is established by clear and convincing evidence, the court shall make the appointment or other appropriate protective order.
NOTE FROM UGPPA:

SECTION 5-115. GUARDIAN AD LITEM. At any stage of a proceeding, a court may appoint a guardian ad litem if the court determines that representation of the interest otherwise would be inadequate. If not precluded by a conflict of interest, a guardian ad litem may be appointed to represent several individuals or interests. The court shall state on the record the duties of the guardian ad litem and its reasons for the appointment.

Comment
Appointments under this section will be infrequent. If the respondent is currently represented, the attorney representing the respondent should not be appointed as the guardian ad litem because of the conflict of interest, since there is a distinct difference between the role of the attorney as an advocate and as a guardian ad litem. It is important that the court, when appointing a guardian ad litem, advise the guardian ad litem of his or her role. This section encourages the giving of such advice by requiring that the court record the duties of the guardian ad litem and its reasons for the appointment. The source of this section is UGPPA (1982) Section 1-403 (UPC Section 1-403(4) (1982)).
SECTION 5-305. JUDICIAL APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN: PRELIMINARIES TO HEARING.

(a) Upon receipt of a petition to establish a guardianship, the court shall set a date and time for hearing the petition and appoint a [visitor]. The duties and reporting requirements of the [visitor] are limited to the relief requested in the petition. The [visitor] must be an individual having training or experience in the type of incapacity alleged.

Alternative A
(b) The court shall appoint a lawyer to represent the respondent in the proceeding if: (1) requested by the respondent; (2) recommended by the [visitor]; or (3) the court determines that the respondent needs representation.

Alternative B
(b) Unless the respondent is represented by a lawyer, the court shall appoint a lawyer to represent the respondent in the proceeding, regardless of the respondent’s ability to pay.

(c) The [visitor] shall interview the respondent in person and, to the extent that the respondent is able to understand:
   (1) explain to the respondent the substance of the petition, the nature, purpose, and effect of the proceeding, the respondent’s rights at the hearing, and the general powers and duties of a guardian;
   (2) determine the respondent’s views about the proposed guardian, the proposed guardian’s powers and duties, and the scope and duration of the proposed guardianship;
   (3) inform the respondent of the right to employ and consult with a lawyer at the respondent’s own expense and the right to request a court-appointed lawyer; and
   (4) inform the respondent that all costs and expenses of the proceeding, including respondent’s attorney’s fees, will be paid from the respondent’s estate.

(d) In addition to the duties imposed by subsection (c), the [visitor] shall:
   (1) interview the petitioner and the proposed guardian;
   (2) visit the respondent’s present dwelling and any dwelling in which the respondent will live if the appointment is made;
   (3) obtain information from any physician or other person who is known to have treated, advised, or assessed the respondent’s relevant physical or mental condition; and
   (4) make any other investigation the court directs.

(e) The [visitor] shall promptly file a report in writing with the court, which must include:
   (1) a recommendation as to whether a lawyer should be appointed to represent the respondent;
(2) a summary of daily functions the respondent can manage without assistance, could manage with the assistance of supportive services or benefits, including use of appropriate technological assistance, and cannot manage;
(3) recommendations regarding the appropriateness of guardianship, including as to whether less restrictive means of intervention are available, the type of guardianship, and, if a limited guardianship, the powers to be granted to the limited guardian;
(4) a statement of the qualifications of the proposed guardian, together with a statement as to whether the respondent approves or disapproves of the proposed guardian, and the powers and duties proposed or the scope of the guardianship;
(5) a statement as to whether the proposed dwelling meets the respondent’s individual needs;
(6) a recommendation as to whether a professional evaluation or further evaluation is necessary; and
(7) any other matters the court directs.

Legislative Note: Those states that enact Alternative B of subsection (b) which requires appointment of counsel for the respondent in all proceedings for appointment of a guardian should not enact subsection (e)(1).

Comment
Alternative provisions are offered for subsection (b).

• Alternative A was favored by the drafting committee. Alternative A relies on an expanded role for the “visitor,” who can be chosen or selected to provide the court with advice on a variety of matters other than legal issues. Appointment of a lawyer, nevertheless, is required under Alternative A when the court determines that the respondent needs representation, or counsel is requested by the respondent or recommended by the visitor.

• Alternative B is derived from UGPPA (1982) Section 2-203 (UPC Section 5-303 (1982)). It is expected that in states enacting Alternative A of subsection (b), counsel will be appointed in virtually all of the cases. Alternative B was favored by the A.B.A. Commission on Legal Problems of the Elderly, which attached great significance to expressly making appointment of counsel “mandatory.” Therefore, for states which wish to provide for “mandatory appointment” of counsel, Alternative B should be enacted.

In Alternative A for subsection (b), then, appointment of counsel for an unrepresented respondent is mandated when requested by the respondent, when recommended by the visitor, or when the court determines the respondent needs representation.

This requirement is in accord with the National Probate Court Standards. National Probate Court Standards, Standard 3.3.5 “Appointment of Counsel” (1993), which provides:
(a) Counsel should be appointed by the probate court to represent the respondent when:

1. requested by an unrepresented respondent;
2. recommended by a court visitor;
3. the court, in the exercise of its discretion, determines that the respondent is in need of representation; or
4. otherwise required by law.

(b) The role of counsel should be that of an advocate for the respondent.

Alternative A of subsection (b) follows the National Probate Court Standards, Standard 3.3.5(a)(1) through (a)(3).

Alternative B perhaps may be said to be in accord with the National Probate Court Standards, Standard 3.3.5(a)(4).

The drafting committee for the 1997 UGPPA debated at length whether to mandate appointment of counsel or to expand the role of the visitor. The drafting committee concluded that as between the two, the visitor may be more helpful to the court in providing information on a wider variety of issues and concerns, by acting as the eyes and ears of the court as well as determining the respondent’s wishes and conveying them to the court. The committee was concerned that including mandatory appointment of counsel would cause many to view the Act as a “lawyer’s bill” and thus severely handicap the Act’s acceptance and adoption. It is the intent of the committee that counsel for respondent be appointed in all but the most clear cases, such as when the respondent is clearly incapacitated.

For jurisdictions enacting Alternative A under subsection (b), the visitor needs to be especially sensitive to the fact that if the respondent is incapacitated, then the respondent may not have sufficient capacity to intelligently and knowingly waive appointment of counsel. A court should err on the side of protecting the respondent’s rights and appoint counsel in most cases.

Appointment of a visitor is mandatory (subsection (a)), regardless of which alternative is enacted under subsection (b). The visitor serves as the information gathering arm of the court. The visitor can be a physician, psychologist, or other individual qualified to evaluate the alleged impairment, such as a nurse, social worker, or individual with pertinent expertise. It is imperative that the visitor have training or experience in the type of incapacity alleged. The visitor must individually meet with the respondent, the petitioner and the proposed guardian. The visitor’s report must contain information and recommendations to the court regarding the appropriateness of the guardianship, whether lesser restrictive alternatives might meet the respondent’s needs, recommendations about further evaluations, powers to be given the guardian, and the appointment of counsel. If the petition is withdrawn prior to the appointment of the visitor, no appointment of the visitor is necessary.

National Probate Court Standards, Standard 3.3.4 “Court Visitor” (1993) provides:
The probate court should require a court appointee to visit with the respondent in a guardianship petition to (1) explain the rights of the respondent; (2) investigate the facts of the petition; and (3) explain the circumstances and consequences of the action. The visitor should investigate the need for additional court appointments and should file a written report with the court promptly after the visit.

The visitor must visit the respondent in person and explain a number of items to the respondent to the extent the respondent can understand. If the respondent does not have a good command of the English language, then the visitor should be accompanied by an interpreter. The drafters did not mandate that the visitor be able to speak the respondent’s primary language, but good practice and due process protections dictate the use of interpreters when needed for the respondent to understand. The phrase “to the extent that the respondent is able to understand” is a recognition that some respondents may be so impaired that they are unable to understand. If assistive devices are needed in order for the visitor to explain to the respondent in a manner necessary so that the respondent can understand, then the visitor should use those assistive devices. The visitor is also charged with confirming compliance with the Americans With Disabilities Act when visiting the respondent’s dwelling and the proposed dwelling in which it is expected that the respondent will reside.

Subsection (c)(4) puts the respondent on notice that if the respondent has an estate, costs and expenses are paid from the estate, including attorney’s fees and visitor’s fees. If there is an estate, those entitled to compensation will ordinarily be compensated by whatever process the enacting state has for indigent proceedings, such as from the county general fund, unless the enacting jurisdiction has made other arrangements. If a conservatorship exists, payment is made pursuant to the procedures provided in Section 5-417, otherwise the guardian must file a fee petition. See Section 5-316. The visitor must talk with the physician or other person who is known to have assessed, treated or advised about the respondent’s relevant physical or mental condition. This information is crucial to the court in making a determination of whether to grant the petition, since a professional evaluation will no longer be required in every case. See Section 5-306. If the doctor refuses to talk to the visitor, the visitor may need to seek from the appointing court an order authorizing the release of the information.

The visitor’s report must be in writing and include a list of recommendations or statements. For states enacting Alternative A to subsection (b), if the visitor does not recommend that a lawyer be appointed, the visitor should include in the report the reasons why a lawyer should not be appointed. States enacting this article should consider developing a checklist for the items enumerated in subsection (e).

“Visitor” is bracketed in recognition that states use and may wish to substitute different words to refer to this position.
SECTION 107 5-107. TRANSFER OF JURISDICTION. (1998 UGPPA)
(a) After the appointment of a guardian or conservator or entry of another protective order, the court making the appointment or entering the order may transfer the proceeding to a court in another [county] in this State or to another State if the court is satisfied that a transfer will serve the best interest of the ward or protected person.
(b) If a guardianship or protective proceeding is pending in another state or a foreign country and a petition for guardianship or protective proceeding is filed in a court in this State, the court in this State shall notify the original court and, after consultation with the original court, assume or decline jurisdiction, whichever is in 2 the best interest of the ward or protected person.
(c) A guardian, conservator, or like fiduciary appointed in another State may petition the court for appointment as a guardian or conservator in this State if venue in this State is or will be established. The appointment may be made upon proof of appointment in the other State and presentation of a certified copy of the portion of the court record in the other State specified by the court in this State. Notice of hearing on the petition, together with a copy of the petition, must be given to the ward or protected person, if the ward or protected person has attained 14 years of age, and to the persons who would be entitled to notice if the regular procedures for appointment of a guardian or conservator under this [Act article] were applicable. The court shall make the appointment in this State unless it concludes that the appointment would not be in the best interest of the ward or protected person. Upon the filing of an acceptance of office and any required bond, the court shall issue appropriate letters of guardianship or conservatorship. Within 14 days after an appointment, the guardian or conservator shall send or deliver a copy of the order of appointment to the ward or protected person, if the ward or protected person has attained 14 years of age, and to all persons given notice of the hearing on the petition.

*Authentication is a triple certification used to prove the authenticity of a document so that it can be used as evidence. In probate courts the county clerk first certifies that the attachment is a true and correct copy of the document(s) on file with the court. The probate judge then certifies that the county clerk has the authority to act in his/her capacity. The county clerk then certifies that the probate judge has the authority to act in his/her capacity. Some states call this Exemplification.

Introduction

“It is one thing to be able to undertake a medical action, and another thing to know whether or not you should.” Miles Edwards, M.D.

Michigan POST Program Overview
Michigan Physician Orders for Scope of Treatment (MI-POST) is a program designed to help health care professionals honor the treatment decisions of their patients\(^1\). The Michigan Commission on the End of Life Care endorsed POST in 2001, recommending that the POST be developed in Michigan.

The Purpose of MI-POST is to:

- Promote a person’s autonomy by creating medical orders that reflect the his/her current treatment decisions;
- Facilitate appropriate treatment by emergency medicine and emergency medical services (EMS) personnel; and
- Be compliant with HIPAA in the transfer of patient records between health care settings.

The MI-POST Form
The MI-POST form transforms a patient’s treatment plan into a medical order. Emergency medical responders and emergency medicine are to follow these orders unless there is new information from a patient or appropriate surrogate. In the absence of a MI-POST form or other state-specific medical orders form, patients will receive advanced cardiac life support, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), endotracheal intubation, and defibrillation by emergency medical personnel based on standard protocols. It is therefore critical, if a person does not wish these treatments, that MI-POST orders are readily available to alert medical personnel. The brightly colored pink MI-POST form should be clearly visible in a person’s home, or accompany the patient whenever transferred or discharged.

Because each person has the right to make his or her own health care decisions, the MI-POST form is always voluntary. It is usually for patients with advanced illness or frailty and records choices for medical treatment in the patient’s current state of health. Once initial medical treatment is begun and the risks and benefits of further therapy are clear, the patient’s treatment wishes may change, in which case the MI-POST can and should be changed to reflect new preferences and treatment choices.

Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH) EMS and Trauma Services Section has defined the EMS Scope of Practice so that a Michigan-certified First Responder or EMT shall comply with life-sustaining treatment orders executed by a physician, nurse practitioner or physician assistant in three pilot areas in Michigan covering the Delta, Northwest Regional, and Jackson Medical Control Authorities’ geographical areas. Currently, only these Medical Control Authorities participating in the Michigan POST Pilot with explicit permission and approval by the EMS & Trauma Section of the Michigan Department of Community Health may implement the EMS POST Protocol.

In Michigan, the POST form is copyrighted and printed on medium weight pink paper and should not be reproduced or modified without the expressed consent of the Michigan Coalition for Honoring Healthcare Choices. Institutions and communities may seek permission from the Coalition to obtain a camera-ready copy of the POST document to reproduce in their own setting for a specified period and agreed to conditions. The POST form is reviewed periodically as part of a continuous quality improvement process. Use of the Michigan POST form is voluntary.
Who Should Have a MI-POST Form?

The MI-POST form is designed for persons who:

- Are seriously ill with life-limiting advanced illness; and/or
- Have advanced frailty characterized by significant weakness and difficulty with personal care activities; and/or
- May lose the capacity to make their own health care decisions in the next year; and/or
- Have strong preferences about current end-of-life care.

To determine whether a MI-POST form should be considered, clinicians should ask themselves: "Would I be surprised if this person died or lost decision-making capacity in the next year?" If the answer is "No I would not be surprised," then a goals-of-care discussion and advance care planning with MI-POST is appropriate. A terminal diagnosis is not required for initiating a MI-POST form.

The MI-POST form may also be appropriate for persons who have strong preferences regarding medical interventions, such as persons who want limitations on the use of artificially administered nutrition. These patients can select “No artificial nutrition” in Section C of the MI-POST form. The MI-POST form should also be used to identify and communicate the treatments a patient does want, as well as the treatments that are unwanted.

Unless it is the patient’s preference, use of the MI-POST form to limit treatment is not appropriate for patients with stable medical or functionally disabling problems who have many years of life expectancy.

Comparison of Advance Care Planning Documents

There are several types of documents in which an individual can make medical treatment wishes and decisions known, as well as identify a substitute decision-maker who can make decisions on the individual’s behalf if he or she should become incapacitated. Each document has differing applicability in the healthcare setting. The table below identifies the document, applicable Michigan statute, and advantages and disadvantages of the document.

*ONLY outside of approved Pilot areas or expanded areas-check with your local Medical Control Authority for guidance. Completing an Out-of-Hospital DNR is recommended to accompany the MI-POST for patients in communities outside the State-approved pilot areas.

It is important to note that no form replaces the need for or the importance of the designation of patient advocate. Completing the Designation of Patient Advocate form and identifying a Durable Power of Attorney for Healthcare (DPOAH) are critical for supporting a person’s treatment decisions.

The Out-of-Hospital DNR Form

This form is recommended for use in communities outside of the State-approved MI-POST Pilot areas. While MI-POST may be used in non-pilot facilities, EMS does not have the State’s approval to follow the EMS POST Protocol and cannot limit treatments in the field. Completing the Out-of-Hospital DNR form will ensure that those persons who do not want CPR have their decisions honored in transport of if EMS is called.

The Patient Advocate

The Michigan Supreme Court declared that people have the right to make their own health care decisions. An advance directive is recommended for all capable adults, regardless of their health status. The “Designation of Patient Advocate” form (also known as the “Durable Power of Attorney for Healthcare”) is the legal document in Michigan that allows individuals to:

> Appoint a Patient Advocate (health care representative) to make health care decisions if an individual becomes unable to speak for themselves; and complete health care instructions for end-of-life care.

The Patient Advocate can accept or refuse life-sustaining treatment on behalf of the patient. The Patient Advocate is to act in accordance with the patient’s known preferences or in the patient’s best interests.

interest. Medical care for patients without decision-making capacity is enhanced by this legal document because it gives individuals important guidance over his/her medical care if he/she becomes incapacitated. It is important to note that, in the document, the individual must specifically give authority to the Patient Advocate.

A patient advocate only has authority to act when the individual is “unable to participate in medical treatment ... decisions.” The individual’s attending physician and a second physician or licensed psychologist make that determination³.

Key Differences between MI-POST and the Advance Directive
An advance directive is not a medical order. Since EMS usually cannot limit care in an emergency with only an advance directive, unwanted treatments may be initiated.

The MI-POST is a medical order that directs the initial care of the patient by EMS. The advance directive helps people communicate their treatment preferences in advance of a serious medical condition, and appoints a Patient Advocate to make medical decisions for the patient should they become incapacitated. It allows a patient’s treatment preferences to be known if patients become unable to speak for themselves.

The MI-POST orders should reflect the person’s wishes now in his/her current state of health. Since the orders will be followed by emergency medical services (EMS), the MI-POST should not reflect future wishes for when a patient’s health may have deteriorated. Advance directives are recommended for all capable adults, regardless of their health status. MI-POST forms are recommended for patients with advanced illness or frailty, or patients with strong preferences about medical interventions in their current state of health.

A person with medical decision-making capacity can change his/her MI-POST at any time to reflect changing circumstances. For example, when treatment has been initiated and more medical information becomes available regarding diagnosis, prognosis and potential outcomes, the patient’s goals and preferences may change.

If, however, the patient becomes incapacitated, the health care instructions and Patient Advocate appointed in a “Designation of Patient Advocate” play an important role in developing goals for care consistent with the patient wishes in his/her new state of health. The Patient Advocate would participate in updating MI-POST orders to be consistent with a patient’s preferences as the patient’s health status changes.

Example:

An elderly male is becoming frail and wants a MI-POST order to state he does not want resuscitation. At the present time his health and quality of life are such that he would want aggressive treatment, including ventilation, for reversible conditions such as pneumonia. So his current wishes on the MI-POST would be “DNR” and “Advanced Interventions.” However, he is afraid of becoming incapacitated and kept alive on tubes and would not want aggressive therapy if he would not recover to good quality of life. The advance directive (with designated representative and specific instructions) is the appropriate way to document wishes to forgo in the future treatments that he would not want in a more incapacitated state. With updated goals of care, a new MI-POST could be created with the representative and health care team to represent the current wishes when his health status and prognosis change.

How to Use the MI-POST Form to Record a Patient’s Preferences

The Patient Discussion

The MI-POST form should be completed after careful discussion with the MI-POST facilitator and the patient or the patient’s authorized surrogate decision-maker, based on the patient’s current treatment preferences.

The discussion may include:

- Patient (when the patient has capacity)
- Patient Advocate
- Court-appointed Guardian with Probate Court approval to make healthcare decisions
- Other Authorized Representative: When the patient lacks capacity and does not have a Patient Advocate designated, it is imperative to make sure that you are working with the appropriate legally authorized representative. Refer to your health care facility’s policy to identify who can make decisions on the patient’s behalf.
  - When filling out the MI-POST form, always specify who the “other” is and his/her relationship to the patient.

Determining Appropriate Surrogate

An authorized representative may be:

- (a) An adult appointed to make health care decisions as a Patient Advocate/ Durable Power of Attorney for Healthcare (DPOAH)
- (b) A court appointed guardian with approval to make health care decisions
- (c) Family/Next-of-kin
If patient lacks capacity, the DPOAH can be activated. If the no DPOAH had been appointed, then the health care professional must rely on a legal surrogate. Facilities may also allow family members or next-of-kin to make decisions on the patient’s behalf. However this may only apply to decisions made within that facility and may not be transferrable. Refer to your facilities policies.

Family Consent

Michigan does not have a Family Consent law; however the position of the State Long Term Care Ombudsman Program is that there are two relevant laws, The Michigan Social Welfare Act and the Dignified Death Act.

Michigan’s Medicaid provisions are set forth in the Social Welfare Act. This applies to nursing home residents and others enrolled in Medicaid. The Michigan Social Welfare Act reads:

> If the person for whom surgical or medical treatment is recommended is not of sound mind, or is not in a condition to make decisions for himself, the written consent of such person’s nearest relative, or legally appointed guardian, or person standing in loco parentis, shall be secured before such medical or surgical treatment is given.

The Michigan Dignified Death Act sets forth certain responsibilities for a physician who diagnoses an individual as terminally ill. The Dignified Death Act states that for patients with an advanced illness, in the medical community known as a terminal illness, a patient surrogate may make decisions on behalf of the patient regarding medical treatment. In this context, "Patient surrogate" means a member of the immediate family, the next of kin, or the legal guardian of a patient who has a condition other that prevents the patient from giving consent to medical treatment.

This section of the Dignified Death Act reads:

(a) If the patient has not designated a patient advocate, that the patient has the option of designating a patient advocate to make medical treatment decisions for the patient in the event the patient is not able to participate in his or her medical treatment decisions because of his or her medical condition.

(b) That the patient, or the patient's patient surrogate or patient advocate, acting on behalf of the patient, has the right to make an informed decision regarding receiving, continuing, discontinuing, and refusing medical treatment for the patient's reduced life expectancy due to advanced illness.

(c) That the patient, or the patient's patient surrogate or patient advocate, acting on behalf of the patient, may choose palliative care treatment including, but not limited to, hospice care and pain management.

(d) That the patient or the patient’s surrogate or patient advocate acting on behalf of the patient may choose adequate and appropriate pain and symptom management as a basic and essential element of medical treatment.

Completing and Signing the MI-POST form

The legally valid signers of the MI-POST form are physicians (M.D. or D.O.), nurse practitioners (NP), and

4 Gellar, Brad. Project Wildcat
5 MCL 400.66h
6 MCL Section 333.5653 and 333.5655
physician assistants (PA). A nurse practitioner or physician assistant must have a current collaborative/supervisory relationship with a physician, and is bound by organizational policy and/or bylaws\(^7\) relative to their collaborative agreement. It is important to review organizational policy to ensure your organization allows NPs and PAs to sign a DNR. One of these professionals must sign the MI-POST for the orders to be valid. The document may be prepared for review and signature by other health care professionals under the direction of the physician, nurse practitioner or physician assistant.

The preparer should fill out the health care professional information on the back of the MI-POST form. The physician/NP/PA must sign the form assuming full responsibility for the medical orders and that these orders are an accurate reflection of the current treatment decisions. In signing the MI-POST form, a nurse practitioner or physician assistant must include the name and phone number of the supervising physician under “contact information.”

The signature of the patient, or the patient’s authorized representative if the patient lacks decision-making capacity, is also required. The signature provides evidence that the patient or his/her legal representatives is aware of and agrees with the orders on the form. It also provides a safeguard for the patient that the orders on the form accurately convey his/her decisions.

Storing the MI-POST form

The MI-POST form provides documentation of a patient's current decisions and provides life-sustaining treatment orders that reflect these values. In institutional settings, the MI-POST must be easily accessible and immediately visible to EMS. In home settings, it is recommended that the MI-POST form be attached to the side of the kitchen refrigerator or another prominent location. Caregivers need to know where the MI-POST will be kept and be able to present it to the emergency personnel upon arrival.

Receiving a Patient with a MI-POST Form

For patients in institutional settings, the original form should accompany the patient upon transfer from one setting to another; however a copy is valid. A copy of the MI-POST form should be kept in the individual's medical record. HIPAA permits disclosure of MI-POST orders to other health care professionals across treatment settings. EMS in the Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH) EMS & Trauma Section approved pilot areas will follow the EMS MI-POST Protocol.

Facilities receiving a patient with a completed MI-POST are accepting a patient with a set of active standing orders. The facility should the review the MI-POST with the patient/family at their earliest opportunity (as indicated by policy), and a physician/NP/PA should sign in Section G that the MI-POST form was reviewed. Until such time that the orders are reviewed the facility shall honor these orders. Phone orders may be taken by nursing staff and later counter signed by the physician/NP/PA, as permitted by organizational policy.

In communities outside of the pilot areas utilizing MI-POST should also complete an Out-of-Hospital DNR form to protect the patient who choose to have a DNR, so that EMS may honor the DNR outside of the acute care facility.

Honoring a MI-POST Form
In an acute care setting, the MI-POST is used by the admitting clinician as evidence of the patient’s prior treatment decisions. This information is to be taken into account in determining treatment orders appropriate to this admission. In cases of changes from the MI-POST form to admitting orders, the rationale for doing so is to be documented in the patient’s medical record.

In any setting, should new information on the health of the patient become available, the goals of treatment may change. Following discussion with the patient, or if incapable, his/her representative, new orders regarding life-sustaining treatment should be written, dated and signed.

Sometimes a patient is evaluated in a setting (e.g. hospital Emergency Department) and has a MI-POST form completed by a physician/nurse practitioner/physician assistant not on medical staff of the facility. It is the responsibility of the receiving organization to incorporate the MI-POST orders into the facility’s orders. MI-POST form signatures indicate that the patient has been counseled.

In the case that a signing physician is no longer practicing in the community, is no longer the patient’s physician, or dies, the MI-POST orders remain valid while a patient awaits new orders from his/her new provider.

Dealing with Disputes Regarding a MI-POST Form
Sometimes disputes arise regarding existing treatment orders in a MI-POST form for a patient who no longer has decision-making capacity. These disputes may center on who has decision-making authority and/or what the decision(s) should be. Typically a family member is requesting treatment changes that are inconsistent with the existing MI-POST form.

For EMS, if there is not clarity on the MI-POST form, EMS should contact on-line medical control and follow the direction as given.

For organizations and hospitals, if a family dispute arises concerning the validity of a MI-POST form, the recommendation is to follow organizational policies regarding surrogate decision-making. Ethics consults can also be very helpful for disputes.

Revising a MI-POST Form
The health care professional taking responsibility for the patient’s care should review and update the MI-POST orders as needed based on the patient’s medical condition and treatment preferences.

This MI-POST should be reviewed periodically and if:
- The patient is transferred from one care setting or care level to another;
- There is a substantial change in the patient’s health status; or
- The patient’s treatment preferences change.

Sometimes there is a need to follow the orders before a reassessment can be accomplished. As a standing physician order, the MI-POST orders are to be followed until a review is completed by the accepting health care professionals.

Section by Section Review of the MI-POST Form
The MI-POST has seven sections (A – G). One side of the document is the “Physician Orders for Scope of Treatment” (Sections A - D). The other side of the form (E – G) includes a signature section, contact information and directions for healthcare providers.
Side one of the MI-POST form lists three different medical treatment sections and a section on documentation of the discussion and signature of the patient or surrogate decision-maker.

A - Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation
B - Medical Interventions
C - Artificially Administered Nutrition
D – Documentation of Discussion

The backside of the MI-POST form lists three sections including:

E - Signature of Patient/Patient Advocate/Court-appointed Guardian/Other Authorized Representative with address and two witnesses
F – Healthcare Provider Assisting with Completion of MI-POST Form.
G – Review of this MI-POST form.

General

The MI-POST is a medical order based on the patient’s medical condition and wishes right now. If the patient requires treatment, the caregiver should first institute any emergency treatment orders recorded on the MI-POST, and then contact the physician. Full treatment options apply for any items not completed. If a section is left blank, full treatment should be provided while clarification is obtained. Note that the privacy rules of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) permits disclosure of the MI-POST form to all health care providers on a need to know basis.

Section A - CARDIOPULMONARY RESUSCITATION (CPR)

These orders apply only when the patient has no pulse and is not breathing. This section does not apply to any other medical circumstances. For example, this section does not apply to a patient in respiratory distress because he/she is still breathing. Similarly, this section does not apply to a patient who has an irregular pulse and low blood pressure because he/she has a pulse. For these situations, the first responder should refer to section B, described below and follow the indicated orders.

This section has nothing to do with other types of medical care, addressed in other sections below. NOTE: It is a not a matter of having the POWER to resuscitate, but having the CHOICE to attempt resuscitation.

If Attempt Resuscitation/CPR is elected, full CPR measures should be carried out and 9-1-1 should be called. Treatment may include:
Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR),
Endotracheal intubation,
Oral/intravenous medications,
Intravenous fluids,
Electrical therapy (external pacing⁸/electrical cardioversion⁹/defibrillation¹⁰); and
Other advanced cardiac life-support measures as appropriate to the person’s clinical condition and wishes for full treatment.

There are instances in which it is appropriate to select “Attempt Resuscitation/CPR” in Section A, but limit treatments in Section B. For example, one might select “Attempt Resuscitation/CPR” in Section A but exclude mechanical ventilation.

If DO NOT Attempt Resuscitation/CPR is selected, the person should understand no resuscitative efforts will be given. If it is intended to apply in a community setting, the requirements of the Michigan Do No Resuscitate Procedures Act (DNRPA) are satisfied in the MI-POST form by having the patient or the Patient Advocate sign (Section E), the physician sign (Section D) and the required witnesses sign (Section E). A separate DNR form does not need to be completed except for facilities outside of the State-approved pilot.

All parties should understand that even if a DNR election is made, that comfort measures and other treatments will always be provided.

Section B - MEDICAL INTERVENTIONS

General Instructions Regarding Level of Medical Interventions
These orders apply to the patient who has a pulse and/or is breathing. This section provides orders for situations that are not covered in Section A and were developed in accordance with EMS protocol. Health care professionals should first administer the level of Medical Interventions ordered on the MI-POST form and then contact the physician/nurse practitioner/physician assistant. Only one box may be ⁸ “External cardiac pacing” is the delivery of an electrical pulse that stimulates the heart to beat faster.

¹⁰ “Defibrillation” is a type of cardioversion that is of a higher voltage yet and that synchronizes the cells of the heart to beat together when they are functioning chaotically and independent of each other. Without this intervention, the patient/resident will most likely die.
Advanced Interventions: Determine if all life-sustaining treatments are desired. This would be the choice of people who want medical treatment if they become ill, go to hospital if needed, have blood tests to monitor chronic disease, aggressively treat acute medical crises, even to the extent of using intensive care, respiratory support with a ventilator, surgery, etc. EMS is called if needed. If called, EMS will follow EMS protocol. The person is transferred to a hospital, if needed, for appropriate medical care.

Note: Some patients with advanced illness might want all measures including intensive care treatment and temporary life support such as mechanical ventilation but would not want to be resuscitated if these attempts fail and their heart stops. Thus a patient can request DNR in Section A and request Advanced Interventions in Section B.

Limited Interventions: This section allows a patient to receive all aggressive medical care but stops at the point of intubation. The patient's preferences reflect a desire to be hospitalized if needed, but avoid mechanical ventilation and generally avoid ICU care.

Individuals choosing this setting may have a chronic or terminal illness that they recognize to be fatal but are still hopeful of partial recovery and feel they still have a reasonable quality of life. Some patients will choose to use hospital services in hopes of prolonging life. Some patients may want hospitalization and treatments for reversible conditions or exacerbations of their underlying illness with the goal of restoring them to their current state of health; e.g., hospitalization for dehydration, pneumonia.

Beyond the choice of hospitalization, the quality of life and life goals are such that they would still like to have illnesses diagnosed and treated to the extent possible within the facility in which they live, or at home. Thus diagnostic tests and therapies would be limited to those available at the site of their residence. Diagnostic tests would include, but are not limited to; X-rays, blood tests, simple diagnostic tests such as ECG, and would include medications and intravenous fluids necessary to treat an acute illness from which one might anticipate recovery to their baseline condition. Caregivers would consider the use of oxygen, suction, etc. as appropriate. The patient would not be transported to a hospital unless indicated by a physician because acute skills are required to enhance comfort (e.g., treat intractable pain) or facilitate testing not available at a non-hospital setting. If transported by EMS, basic life support is appropriate because no new treatment will be initiated during transport.

Comfort Measures Only: Allows patients to ease any pain or distress associated with their condition, or with the dying process. This section is often chosen when the patient's goals are to maximize comfort through symptom management, and avoid hospitalizations unless necessary to ensure comfort needs are met. Medicines to ease pain, shortness of breath, nausea, lung congestion, anxiety, delirium or any other symptom can be used to the extent needed to relieve the symptom and provide comfort. Antibiotics may be used as a comfort measure. Positioning, wound care, warmth and other measures to relieve pain and suffering are appropriate comfort measures. The caregivers will consider the use of oxygen, airway suctioning, and manual treatment of airway obstruction, as appropriate. Oral and body hygiene, and reasonable efforts to offer food and fluids are important.

Sometimes it is necessary to transfer patients to the hospital to control their suffering. Examples include pain management, wound care (e.g. immediate and ongoing pain relief, control of bleeding, cleaning, wound closing and dressing as needed to optimize hygiene), and stabilization of any fracture by splinting and/or surgery (with the goal to control pain). If transported by EMS, basic life support is appropriate because no new treatment will be initiated during transport.

If appropriate, consider a palliative care or hospice care referral or make treatment plan for providing comfort care (e.g. pain and symptom management orders).

Additional Considerations for the Discussion Needed to Complete Section B

If the patient is wishing to avoid mechanical ventilation in Part B but at the same time wants CPR (when they have no pulse and are not breathing), the health care professional signing the MI-POST should clarify the patient’s understanding of CPR to ensure he or she is aware that CPR often includes intubation and often people are on a ventilator following CPR.

As noted earlier, the MI-POST form should reflect patient’s preferences for care based upon their current condition. To illustrate, two separate patients with advanced COPD may have similar responses to a discussion about their wishes regarding resuscitation: "I want you to try everything, but I don't want to end up a vegetable or kept alive on a machine." This statement necessitates further exploration of the patient’s wishes. For example:

Patient #1: After further discussion regarding prognosis, what CPR entails, the likelihood of CPR restoring the patient to a quality of life acceptable to her, Patient #1 might clarify that she wants all measures which might maintain and extend life as well as all measures to potentially restore life in the event of a cardiopulmonary arrest. However, if at any future time Patient #1’s medical condition required ongoing mechanical ventilation to maintain life, she would not want life support measures. To reflect this patient’s goals, Patient #1’s MI-POST form should be completed as follows: Section A - Attempt Resuscitation/CPR; Section B - Full Treatment. This will accurately reflect Patient #1’s current preferences. Patient #1 should also complete an Advance directive to indicate her future treatment preferences.

Patient #2: After further discussion, Patient #2 might clarify that he wants all measures short of intubation and mechanical ventilation to maintain and or restore life to current condition and does not want anyone to attempt resuscitation in the event of loss of pulse and respirations. Patient #2’s MI-POST form should be completed as follows: Section A - Do Not Attempt Resuscitation/CPR; Section B - Limited Interventions. These orders accurately reflect his current preferences.

Remember, patients’ preferences regarding medical interventions may change based on their evolving medical condition or simply because they change their minds. MI-POST forms should be updated as soon as a health care professional is aware of a change in the patient’s preferences as these are medical orders that will be acted upon by EMS personnel.

It is very important to document the patient's goals of care and details of the discussion upon which the orders are based in the medical record. This is helpful if the validity of the MI-POST is questioned and may provide comfort for family members.

Additional clarifying orders to the patient's preferences can be written under Additional orders: e.g. "ICU treatment for sepsis but no intubation/mechanical ventilation for respiratory failure."

Section C – ARTIFICIALLY ADMINISTERED NUTRITION
This section allows the physician to record person instructions regarding artificially administered hydration and nutrition for persons who cannot take fluids by mouth. While Michigan law allows a person a choice about artificially administered hydration and nutrition, oral fluids and nutrition must always be offered to the person if medically feasible. If the person wants long-term artificial nutrition, that box is checked. If there are limitations ordered for artificially administered nutrition, check the No artificial nutrition OR the Defined trial period of artificial nutrition box. Additional orders may also be specified.

Defined trial period of artificial nutrition would be chosen by a patient who chose Do Not Resuscitate in Section A, but who chose Full Treatment in Section B. This circumstance might include situations where there is temporary loss of ability to swallow or take in adequate food to sustain life, a situation from which recovery is expected or at least possible. Temporary use of a feeding tube would be expected to yield return to health and to normal ability to swallow and eat. The anticipated length of time designated for the “defined trial” should be discussed with the patient or decision maker prior to initiation of the therapy.

Note: No data has shown that artificial feeding through a tube achieves the goals for which it is initiated in patients with advanced progressive dementia or Parkinson’s disease, who have stopped accepting food and fluids as a part of their neurological deterioration. Feeding tubes do not prevent aspiration pneumonia (getting food or oral contents into the windpipe and the lungs, leading to pneumonia), rarely improve nutrition or hydration, and do not generally prolong life. They introduce a whole host of medical complications to a person’s care. The decision to use a feeding tube is a very complex one, and should be discussed with the physician most familiar with the patient’s total health circumstances, or with a palliative care specialist, before proceeding.

Section D - DOCUMENTATION OF DISCUSSION and Physician, Nurse Practitioner, or Physician Assistant Signature

Upon completion of the orders, the facilitator checks the box indicating with whom the orders were discussed (i.e., the patient when competent or capacitated, the Patient Advocate, the court-appointed guardian with judicial permission to make such decisions, or other authorized representative). The facilitator then records the patient’s goals that serve as the basis for the patient’s treatment decisions. If available, attach copies of advance directives or guardianship documents to the MI-POST form.

At the bottom of the page, the physician or nurse practitioner/physician assistant operating in a supervisory relationship with a physician must sign the form. The signer should include a printed name, telephone number and the date the orders were written. A nurse practitioner/physician assistant also provides the name of the supervising physician. If the MI-POST form is not signed it cannot be treated as a valid order and EMS personnel cannot limit EMS services. Phone orders may be taken by nursing staff and later counter signed by the physician/NP/PA if permitted by organizational policy.

The bottom of the form includes a reminder that the original form should accompany the patient when transferred or discharged. It is very important that the form follow the patient. It allows the receiving facility to have the same information regarding the medical indication and person preferences for life-sustaining treatment. It also increases the likelihood that these orders will be respected in the new care setting.

The Reverse Side of the MI-POST Form

Section E – SIGNATURES

The form must be signed by the patient, Patient Advocate, appointed guardian with authorization to make healthcare decisions, or other authorized representative. The printed name and date are entered, as well as the address, phone number, and alternate telephone number of the signer. This information is important to collect in circumstances in which the signer needs to be notified. The signature is witnessed by two witnesses who are 18 years of age or older, at least one of whom is not the declarant’s spouse, parent, child, grandchild, sibling, or presumptive heir. Healthcare facility staff may serve as witnesses.

Section F: HEALTH CARE PROVIDER ASSISTING WITH COMPLETION OF MI-POST FORM

If a health care professional assists in completing the MI-POST, his/her name, signature and date should be recorded in this section. The professional acknowledges, by signing this section, that the orders are consistent with the patient/surrogate preferences.

HOW TO CHANGE THE MI-POST FORM

The MI-POST form should be reviewed periodically and if:
- The person is transferred from one care setting or care level to another;
- There is a substantial change in the person’s health status such as improvement, advanced progressive illness, extraordinary suffering, permanent unconsciousness, or close death; or
- There is a change in the person’s treatment decisions.

Voiding a MI-POST Form
A person with capacity, or the valid surrogate of a person without capacity, can void his/her MI-POST and request alternative treatment.

If the MI-POST is changed or revoked, draw a diagonal line through the front and back page of the MI-POST and write “VOID” in large letters on both pages. After voiding the MI-POST form, a new MI-POST form should be completed reflecting the new medical indications and treatment wishes of the patient. A voided form may be destroyed after clear documentation of the action in the patient’s healthcare record. Follow voiding procedures of the facility (e.g., determine if copy of voided MI-POST scanned/stored).

If there is no new MI-POST form completed, then resuscitation and advanced interventions will be provided.

Section G: REVIEW OF MI-POST FORM
This section records the review of MI-POST. The orders should be reviewed by the attending physician/nurse practitioner/physician assistant immediately after a patient is transferred from one setting to another. This review includes the date, the reviewer’s name, and the location of the review. The outcome of the review is also recorded by checking either the box indicating no change, or one of the two boxes indicating that the old form has been voided and a new form completed or not completed. The reviewer may also wish to record in the healthcare record why the form was voided.

DIRECTIONS FOR HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONALS

This section provides a basic summary of directions to instructions to health care professionals regarding signing the form, validity, verbal orders and form maintenance. A reminder is included to send the original forms with the person whenever transferred or discharged.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: What if a patient has a Michigan Out of Hospital Do-Not-Resuscitate form which is included in the Michigan DNR Procedures Act and then wants a MI-POST?

A: The patient may have both, but it's important to ensure that the forms do not contradict one another. Because it meets witnessing requirements, the MI-POST serves as an acceptable alternate to the out of hospital DNR form in the three pilot programs of Delta, Northwest Regional, and Jackson Medical Control Authorities. Outside of the state-approved Pilot areas, it is recommended that the patient have an Out-of-Hospital DNR form as well as a MI-POST.

Q: What if a person has a MI-POST but wants to travel from his or her residence?

A: The MI-POST document is not yet a statewide form. This document may only be followed in the three pilot areas by emergency systems. An Advance directive is recommended. The MI-POST document will need to be presented to emergency personnel if called. This means that this document will need to be taken with a person if he or she leaves the residence. If the MI-POST document is not presented, EMS will start emergency care.

Q: Does a patient need to be qualified as defined in the Michigan statute to have a MI-POST document?

A: No. The MI-POST document is created as a medical standard of care. It represents the standard of good medical decisions and is “substantially” the same as the Out-of-Hospital Do Not Resuscitate declaration in the Michigan DNR Procedures Act.

Q: Will only patients who do not want resuscitation have a MI-POST document?

A: No. MI-POST has other treatment option from advance interventions to comfort measures. MI-POST is also appropriate for those wanting full treatment including CPR, to communicate those decisions clearly.

Q: Who can sign the MI-POST on behalf of the patient?
A: The MI-POST must be signed by the person for whom it is completed, or by his/her Patient Advocate documented in a Designation of Patient Advocate/Durable Power of Attorney for Healthcare (DPOAH) form. If no DPOAH has been executed, a court-appointed guardian with authorization to make healthcare decisions or other authorized representative can sign as per organizational policy.

Q: Can any medical personnel besides those who can sign the orders assist the patient in completing the MI-POST?

A: There are many healthcare providers who are appropriate to assist the patient or surrogate in completing the MI-POST. It is the recommended that the healthcare provider be trained and knowledgeable in MI-POST, palliative care and end-of-life issues. This can include Case Managers, Social Workers, Nurses and other appropriate healthcare professionals. A health care professional who assists in the completion of a MI-POST is referred to as a “POST facilitator.”

Introduction

The law has long been clear that an adult who is able to give informed consent to medical treatment – who understands her or his condition, treatment options, intended effects and possible side effect of these choices – has sole right and authority to make those decisions.

Residency in a nursing home does not affect this right.

The law concerning who has authority to make medical decisions if an adult lacks the ability to do so has evolved over the years through new laws and court decisions.

The process has been episodic, non-comprehensive, and incomplete. The state of the law today can be compared to a jigsaw puzzle with some pieces missing and other pieces not fitting well with one another.

The situation is understandably confusing to long-term care residents, to family members, to health care providers, to long-term care ombudsman and to state officials charged with overseeing the quality of nursing home care.

For a number of years, surveyors cited nursing homes if every resident did not have either an advance directive or a guardian. However, this was a misinterpretation of the law, with adverse consequences for residents and for nursing homes.

Nursing home staff can be under the misimpression that a patient advocate has authority immediately upon the signing of an advance directive, or that a guardianship preempts almost all rights of a resident.

Historically, some nursing homes have pushed for guardianship for the convenience of the nursing home rather than the needs of the residents.

It is the aim of this Statement to clarify this broad area of the law, which we term surrogate decision-making.

It must be noted the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services published changes to surveyor guidance for F-tag 155 (advance directives) and F-tag 309 (quality of care – review of resident at or approaching end of life), effective November 30, 2012.

These changes do not alter state law regarding who can make health decisions for an individual who becomes unable to make them her or himself. Indeed, the new language underscores the importance of properly recognizing those who are so empowered.

The sole focus of these materials is health care decision-making. There are different laws and different mechanisms for decision-making concerning an individual’s property and financial affairs.

The Policy Statement is in three parts: Advance Directives, Family Decision-Making, and Guardianship. Information on voluntary and involuntary psychiatric hospitalization is beyond the scope of this paper.

For ease of reading, the information is presented in a question-and-answer format. Citations are to Michigan law (MCL); federal statute (42 USC) or federal regulation (42CFR).

The statement is directed toward nursing home administrators, social workers, directors of nursing, and admissions personnel; and to nursing home surveyors in the Bureau of Health Systems, Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation.

The Michigan State Long Term Care Ombudsman Program has developed other materials on surrogate decision-making for residents of long term care facilities and their families.

These publications include the booklet, Advance Directives: Planning for Medical Care in the Event of Loss of Decision-Making Ability. The booklet, which has questions-and-answers, and fill-in-the-blank forms, is Appendix A to this paper, and has been accessible on-line.

In addition to English, the booklet is available in Spanish, Arabic, Chinese, Korean, German and Italian.

These materials or others can be used by nursing homes to help fulfill federally mandated responsibilities to educate staff; to provide community education; and to assist willing residents to complete an advance directive.

In reviewing the particulars of the law, it is important to keep in mind the grand purpose of this statutory and regularly scheme concerning surrogate decision-making: to honor the wishes, values and dignity of the individual.

It is also important to recognize there can be an unfortunate chasm between the law as it is written, and the law as it is practiced.

If upon reading this policy paper, you have further questions, please contact the State Long Term Care Ombudsman Program at (517) 373-3697 or gellerb@michigan.gov.

Finally, I thank Sarah Slocum, Michigan State Long Term Care Ombudsman, for her unflagging advocacy and support.

Advance Directives

What is an advance directive?

An advance directive is a signed and witnessed document in which an individual voluntarily provides input or direction concerning future medical care decisions in the event the individual become unable to participate in these decisions.

Are there different types of advance directives?

Yes. But to avoid unnecessary confusion, this statement focuses on the most prevalent type of advance directive, a “durable power of attorney for health care.” This type of document is also known as a “health care proxy,” or a “patient advocate designation.”

What is a durable power of attorney for health care?

A durable power of attorney for health care is a document whereby an individual voluntarily chooses another person to make medical decisions for her or him, during any time she or he “unable to participate in medical treatment decisions.” MCL 700.5506 et seq.

What is a nursing home’s obligation concerning advance directives for a new resident?

Under the Federal Patient Self-Determination Act, a nursing home which participates in Medicare or Medicaid must give written information to a new resident about the resident’s right under Michigan law to make decisions about her or his medical care, and the right to sign an advance directive. 42 USC 1395cc(f)(1)((A)(i); 42 USC 1396a(w)(1)(A)(i); 42 CFR 489.102(a)(1); 42 CFR 483.10(b)(8).

What if an incoming resident does not have the capacity to understand this information?

The nursing home has an obligation to give the information to family or a surrogate for the resident empowered under state law to receive information about a nursing home’s policies and procedures. 42 CFR 489.102(c).

Must a nursing home help a resident toward having an advance directive?

Yes. A nursing home has a responsibility “to offer assistance if a resident wishes to execute one or more directive(s).” CMS Surveyor Guidance to F Tag 155, p. 4.

During a periodic survey, surveyors must interview staff to determine “how staff help the resident or legal representative document treatment choices and formulate an advance directive.” CMS Surveyor Guidance Investigative Protocol for 42 CFR 483.10(B)(4) and (8).

Can a nursing home provide educational materials about advance directives to an applicant or resident?

Yes.

What about making fill-in-the-blanks forms available?

A nursing home should instruct a resident about options for completing an advance directive, including how to obtain fill-in-the-blanks forms.
If a nursing home makes available fill-in-the-blank forms, the home should ensure residents are aware there is no standard form for a durable power of attorney for health care, and that the resident has other options.

Can a nursing home require an applicant or a resident to have an advance directive?

No. It is an individual’s a choice whether to have an advance directive. A nursing home cannot condition admission or continued stay on a resident having or not having an advance directive. 42 USC 1395cc(f)(1)(C); 42 USC 1996a(w)(1)(C); 42 CFR 489.102(a)(3).

This is echoed in state law. MCL 700.5512(2)

How does a nursing home know if an incoming resident already has an advance directive?

The nursing home must determine whether an incoming resident whether she or he has an advance directive. The nursing home should ask the resident, or if the resident is unable to understand, should ask family or other surrogate.

What is the obligation of the nursing home if an incoming resident already has an advance directive?

The nursing home has an obligation to make an advance directive a prominent part of the resident’s medical record. 42 USC 1395cc(f)(1)(B); 42 USC 1396a(w)(1)(B). 42 CFR 489.102(a)(2).

This is true for a new resident or a long-term resident.

Can a nursing home require an incoming resident to complete a new advance directive?

No. A nursing home cannot require a resident to replace an advance directive with one written on the nursing home’s own form. The nursing home must make the existing advance directive part of the resident’s medical record. Any corporate policy to the contrary is invalid.

Is there a statewide site where a durable power of health care can be filed?

Yes. Through legislation passed in 2012, The Michigan Department of Community Health is contracting with Gift of Life of Michigan, an organ donation agency, to establish a statewide registry for durable powers of attorney for health care. MCL 333.10301.

Participation is voluntary on the part of the individual, and it is free. Nursing homes will have electronic access to this information at no cost.

When will the registry be in operation?

The registry, known as Peace of Mind, will be open to registrants by mid-2013, and to providers in 2014.

Can an individual also include in a durable power of attorney for health care wishes concerning future medical treatment?

Yes, an individual has a choice whether to include general wishes, specific wishes or no wishes at all. MCL 700.5507(1).

Who is able to have a durable power of attorney?

An individual must be 18 years old or older, and of “sound mind.” MCL 700.5506. In this context, sound mind means the individual realizes he is giving another person authority to make health care decisions if she or he cannot, and she or he knowingly chooses this person.
Is there a standard form for a durable power of attorney for healthcare?

No. There are a number of forms available from different organizations. An individual can instead have a lawyer draft the document. A hand-written document can be valid if properly signed and witnessed.

What are the requirements of a valid durable power of attorney for healthcare?

The document must be signed by the individual, and witnessed by two persons. Nursing home staff members are prohibited from serving as a witness for a resident. MCL 700.5506(4).

Does the document have to be notarized?

No. There is neither a requirement nor suggestion in the law that the document be notarized.

What is the person designated in a durable power of attorney for healthcare called?

The person is called a “patient advocate.” MCL 700.5506(2).

Can an individual choose more than one patient advocate to serve at the same time?

No. Under this statute, an individual can only choose one person to serve at any one time.
Can an individual name a second person to serve if the first person cannot?

Yes. An individual can appoint one person as patient advocate, and a second person to serve as patient advocate if the first person does not accept, is incapacitated, resigns or is removed. MCL 700.5507(2).

The second person is commonly known as a “successor patient advocate.”

A patient advocate or successor patient advocate does not have power to delegate her of his powers to someone not named in the document.

What if an individual does choose two or more patient advocates to serve at the same time?

The document is not invalid. You may request the designated patient advocates inform you who will serve as the primary contact person.

Does a patient advocate have authority to make decisions immediately upon the individual signing the durable power of attorney?

No. This is misconception as serious as it is popular.

Upon signing a durable power of attorney for health care, the individual retains the right to make medical care decisions for herself or himself just as before.

One criteria for compliance with 42 CFR 483.10(b)(4) and (8) is if the facility has “documented when the resident is determined not to have decision-making capacity and therefore decision-making is transferred to the health care agent or legal representative.” CMS Surveyors Guidance. (emphasis added)
Can an individual give a patient advocate immediate access to medical records?

Yes. Indeed, the document might explicitly reference HIPPA, and serve as a release under that statute.

What must occur before a patient advocate has authority to act for the individual?

First, the patient advocate must be given a copy of the document. Second, the patient advocate must sign an “acceptance,” a document whereby the person agrees to properly undertake her or his duties. MCL 700.5507(3).

Is there standard language for the acceptance?

The general language of the acceptance is set forth in law. MCL 700.5507(4).

When does the patient advocate have to sign the acceptance?

The patient advocate can sign the acceptance when the individual signs the durable power of attorney for health care, or at any time thereafter.

What else must occur before a patient advocate has authority to act?

A patient advocate only has authority to act when the individual is “unable to participate in medical treatment ... decisions.” MCL 700.5508(1).

Who determines whether the individual has become unable to participate in medical treatment decisions?

The individual's attending physician and a second physician or licensed psychologist make that determination. MCL 700.5508(1).
Must the attending physician and the other physician or psychologist examine the individual before making the determination?

Yes. MCL 700.5508(1). They need not conduct the examination at the same time as one another.

What must the physicians or psychologist do upon making their determination?

The physicians or psychologist must put their determination in writing, make the writing part of the resident’s medical record, and review the determination at least once a year. MCL 700.5508(1).

How is a durable power of attorney described after the physicians or physician and psychologist have made their determination?

If the individual is deemed unable to participate in medical treatment decisions, a popular expression is that the durable power of attorney for health care has been “triggered.”

Is there a standard form for the physicians or psychologist to use?

No. It is up to the nursing home to develop a form for this purpose.

Are the two physicians or physician and psychologist determining the individual is incompetent?

No. Only a court, after notice and a hearing, can determine an individual is “incapacitated” in a legal sense. MCL 700.1105(a); MCL 700.5306(1)
What powers can an individual give her or his patient advocate?

An individual can give a patient advocate the power to make any care, custody and medical decisions the individual herself or himself could make.

Can an individual give a patient advocate power to withhold or withdraw life-sustaining care?

Yes. To do so, the individual must explicitly state in the document that she or he is giving the patient advocate that power. MCL 700.5509(1)(e).

What treatments could a patient advocate withhold or withdraw if given this authority?

Examples include resuscitation, antibiotics, respirator care and tube feeding. A patient advocate could also opt for hospice care. MCL 5509(1)(f).

Can a patient advocate determine which relatives can visit a resident or talk with a resident by telephone?

No. A resident has the right to speak on the telephone and to have visitors of his or her choice.

What is the duty of the patient advocate?

A patient advocate has a duty to take reasonable steps to follow the desires and instructions of the individual, whether expressed in the document or orally in the past. MCL 700.5509(b).

What if the first patient advocate cannot be found?

The health care provider can call upon the successor patient advocate.
What happens if an individual regains the ability to participate in medical treatment decisions?

If an individual regains the ability to participate in medical treatment decisions, the authority of the patient advocate is suspended for as long as the individual remains able to participate. MCL 700.5509(2).

Who determines an individual has regained the ability to participate in medical treatment decisions?

The law is silent on this issue. One might assume the attending physician can make this determination.

What happens if the individual again loses the ability to participate in medical treatment decisions?

The determination an individual has once again become unable to participate in medical treatment must be made by two physicians or a physician and psychologist. MCL 700.5509(2)

Is there any time limit after which a durable power of attorney is not valid?

No. The only exception is if the document, itself, states a time limit.

How often must the physicians or physician and psychologist review their determination?

If the individual has been determined to be unable to participate in treatment decisions, the attending physician and second physician or psychologist are to review the determination at least once a year. MCL 700.5508(1).

Can an individual revoke a durable power of attorney for health care?

Yes.
Does a revocation need to be in writing?

No.

Can an individual revoke a designation even after two physicians have determined that she or he is unable to participate in treatment decisions?

Yes.

The law reads, “… even if the individual is unable to participate in medical treatment decisions, a patient may revoke a patient advocate designation at any time and in any manner by which he or she is able to communicate an intent to revoke” it. MCL 700.5510

Can an individual partially revoke a durable power of attorney for health care?

In effect, yes. Even if an individual is unable to participate in medical treatment decisions, she or he can express a desire to receive specific life-extending procedures, and those wishes are binding on the patient advocate. MCL 700.5511(1)

What is a nursing home’s obligation if a resident revokes a durable power of attorney for health care?

If a nursing home administrator or staff member witnesses a revocation that is not in writing, that person must describe the circumstances in writing, and sign it. MCL 700.5510(1)(d).

The nursing home or physician must then note the revocation in the resident’s medical records and bedside chart, and attempt to contact the patient advocate. MCL 700.5501(1)(d).
Can a resident sign a new durable power of attorney after revoking one?

Yes, if the resident is of “sound mind.”

An individual might be unable to participate in treatment decisions, but still be able to understand giving another person authority to make those decisions.

What if a resident has more than one document?

The most recent, validly signed document should be followed if there is any inconsistently between the two documents. MCL 700.5510(1)(e).

Does a patient advocate have any authority after the death of the individual?

Yes, but only to the extent the durable power of attorney for health care empowers the patient advocate to make an organ or body donation. MCL 700.5510(1)(d).

What if dispute arises concerning a durable power of attorney for health care?

The following disputes can be resolved through petition to the probate court:

1) Whether or not an individual is able to participate in medical treatment decisions. MCL 700.5508(2).

2) Whether or not an individual has revoked a durable power of attorney for health care. MCL 700.5510(1)(d)

3) Whether or not the patient advocate is acting consistent with the individual’s wishes and otherwise consistent with the individual’s best interests. MCL 700.5511(5).
Does a nursing home have an obligation to honor a durable power of attorney for health care?

Yes.

If a durable power of attorney for health care is properly signed and witnessed, if a proper determination has been made the resident is unable to participate in medical treatment decisions, if the patient advocate is acting in the resident’s best interest, and if the directions of the patient advocate are within sound medical practice, a nursing home is obligated to follow those directions. MCL 700.5511(3).

How will a surveyor evaluate compliance with this obligation?

When a surveyor does a record review, he or she must determine “whether any treatments or interventions have been ordered (e.g., unplanned hospitalizations or placement of a feeding tube) that are inconsistent with the resident’s documented acceptance or refusal of treatment or with any advance directive.” CMS Guidance to Surveyors.

To comply with 42 CFR 483.10(b)(4) and (8), the facility must have “monitored the care and services given to the resident to ensure they are consistent with the resident’s documented choices and goals.” CMS Guidance to Surveyors.

Can a nursing home or a physician be successfully sued for following the instructions of a patient advocate?

If a health care provider reasonably believes the patient advocate has authority to make a decision, the health care provider has the same liability as if the individual had made the decision herself or himself. MCL 700.5511(2).

What else does law require of nursing homes?

A nursing home has an obligation to provide for “education of staff and the community on issues concerning advance directives.” 42 USC 1395cc(f)(1)(E); 42 USC 1396a(w)(1)(E).
Can the State Long Term Ombudsman Program assist nursing homes in training nursing home staff?

Yes. The SLTCOP will consider requests to provide written materials, to participate in in-service training, and to address larger groups at conferences.

Are there advance directives other than a durable power of attorney for health care?

Yes. One type is a “living will.” In a living will, an individual states her or his wishes for care if terminally ill and not able to participate in treatment decisions.

Although 47 states have laws making living wills legally binding, Michigan does not have such a law.

Can an individual still have a living will?

Yes. The document can provide good evidence of the wishes of an individual. This may be particularly important for an individual who has outlived closed friends and relatives, and has no one to appoint as a patient advocate.

What is an “advance directive for mental health care?”

An individual can sign a durable power of attorney for health care that is limited to mental health treatment decisions. There are provisions in the law that are different for this type of advance directive.

What these differences?

In an advance directive for mental health care, the determination of inability to participate in mental health decisions must be made by a physician and a mental health professional. MCL 700.5515(2). The individual can choose the physician or mental health professional, or both.
The individual can provide for a 30-day “cooling-off” period, whereby the patient advocate retains authority to make decisions for 30 days after a revocation. MCL 700.5515(d).

A mental health professional need not comply with a provision of the document if the life of the individual or another person is in danger. MCL 700.5511(4)(e).

Are there other differences?

An individual may wish to be quite specific in her or his mental health advance directive. She or he might specify the hospital to which she or he wants to go, indicate a choice of treating psychiatrist, and list effective medications and dosage.

Can an individual include wishes for mental health care within a more general durable power of attorney for health care?

Yes, if the individual so chooses.

Can individual have both a mental health advance directive and a general durable power of attorney for health care?

Yes. The individual can choose one person to be patient advocate for mental health issues and a different person to be patient advocate for all other medical decisions.

Where can someone obtain further information?

A booklet entitled, Advance Directive For Mental Health Care, with questions-and-answers and a fill-in-the-blanks forms is available online in English, Spanish and Arabic:

https://www.michigan.gov/mdch/0,4612,7-132-2941_4868_41752---,00.html
What is a “do-not-resuscitation declaration?”

An individual can sign a standard form stating that if breathing and heartbeat stop, she or he wants no efforts made at resuscitation.

This document is intended for individuals living at home or assisted living. It is not applicable to individuals while in a nursing home or hospital.

Is a do-not-resuscitate declaration the same as a “do-not-resuscitate order?”

No. A do-not-resuscitate order is a notation in the medical chart of a nursing home resident or hospital patient.

The notation is made by a physician at the request of a resident, a hospital patient, a patient advocate (if the patient advocate has been given authority to withhold life-sustaining treatment), or other person with legal authority.
Part 2

Family Decision-Making

What is a general family consent law?

A general family consent law provides that if an individual is not able to participate in a medical treatment decisions, and does not have a patient advocate or guardian, a family member can make the decision for the individual.

Which family member can make the decision?

A general family consent statute sets forth a priority for family members; first, the spouse; second an adult child or children; third, parents; fourth, siblings.

Does Michigan have a general family consent statute?

No, Michigan, is not among the states that have such a law.

Has a general family consent statute been considered by the Michigan legislature?

Yes. The first time was in 1992, House Bill 5553, introduced by Rep. Perry Bullard and 20 co-sponsors.

A revised version was introduced in 1997 as Senate Bill 671. Senator Chris Dingell and five co-sponsors introduced the bill. Neither bill became law.
Will a general family consent statute be re-considered by the Michigan legislature?

It is possible a bill will be introduced at some point in the future. Nursing homes and other health care providers would have opportunity to comment on the bill as it was being considered in the legislative process.

Are there any laws in Michigan that empower family members to make medical treatment decisions?

Not all providers and advocates agree on an answer to that question. The position of the State Long Term Care Ombudsman Program is there are two relevant laws.

What is the first law?

The Michigan Social Welfare Act provides, in part,

If the person for whom surgical or medical treatment is recommended is not of sound mind, or is not in a condition to make decisions for himself, the written consent of such person’s nearest relative, or legally appointed guardian, or person standing in loco parentis, shall be secured before such medical or surgical treatment is given. MCL 400.66h (The entire section of the law is Appendix B.)

How is this law relevant?

Michigan’s Medicaid provisions are set forth in the Social Welfare Act. The provision cited above thus applies to nursing home residents and others enrolled in Medicaid, we believe.

Which family member has priority under this statute?

The term “nearest relative” is not defined.
Does the power to consent to treatment for a resident mean a family member can refuse treatment?

Certainly, the family member has the right to withhold consent.

If the nursing home believes the family member is not acting in the best interests of the resident, the nursing home can petition the probate court for appointment of a guardian.

How does the nursing home determine an individual is not of sound mind or not in a condition to make decisions?

The statute provides no guidance.

A mini-mental exam is wholly inadequate. And the test is not whether the resident agrees with the physician or family.

What, then is best?

The best approach may be to rely on the opinion of the attending physician and one other physician or psychologist, who would document their determination in the resident’s medical record. This parallels the determination under a durable power of attorney for health care.

It is critically important that a nursing home not turn to a family member if the resident is still able to participate in the treatment decision.

What is the second law?

The Michigan Dignified Death Act, MCL 333.5652 et seq., sets forth certain responsibilities for a physician who diagnoses an individual as terminally ill.

When did the law go into effect?

The law went into effect in 1997. The entire Act is Appendix C.
What is a major responsibility of the physician under the law?

If the physician is recommending treatment, the physician must provide information to the patient on the recommended course of treatment and alternatives to that treatment. MCL 333.5654.

What other information must the physician provide?

If the physician is recommending treatment, the physician must provide information to the patient that she or he has the right to -

- Make “an informed decision regarding receiving, continuing, discontinuing, and refusing medical treatment”
- Choose palliative care, including hospice care
- Choose “adequate and appropriate pain and symptom management.”

What if the patient is unable to give consent?

The law provides that the same information described above be provided to the patient's patient advocate or the patient surrogate.

What is a patient advocate?

A patient advocate is a person appointed by an individual to make medical decisions if the individual cannot participate. The appointment is made through a durable power of attorney for health care. MCL 700.5506 et seq.

How does this law define patient surrogate?

For an adult, a "patient surrogate means ... a member of the immediate family, the next of kin, or the legal guardian. MCL 333.5653(g).
Can an immediate family member or next of kin can make decisions to consent to, refuse authorization for, or withdraw medical treatment?

There is certainly implication in this law that if an individual is terminally ill and unable to give informed consent, and does not have a guardian or patient advocate, that a family member can make those decisions.

Is that how the law is interpreted by the Michigan Department of Community Health?

Yes. A brochure entitled, Michigan Dignified Death Act, published by the Michigan Department of Community Health in July, 2003, states -

If you do not name an advocate, your doctor may let a patient surrogate make decisions for you. A court can also name a surrogate. A surrogate may be member of your immediate family or next of kin.”

How does a nursing home determine an individual is unable to give informed consent?

As with the Social Welfare Act provision, the best course is likely to have that decision made by the attending physician and one other physician or psychologist, who would put their determination in the resident’s medical record.

Which family members have priority?

The law does not address this. One can presume immediately family members have priority over other relatives.

If the spouse and children of the resident agree on a course of treatment, priority is not an issue.
What if immediate family members disagree?

If there is conflict that cannot be resolved informally, the nursing home has two options.

Each county has a community dispute resolution center. At minimal cost, family members can agree to mediation. The mediator has no power to make decisions, only to help family members in conflict explore whether agreement can be reached.

If all else fails, the nursing home has the option of going to probate court and petitioning for guardianship.

What if the resident is not terminally ill and not enrolled in Medicaid?

In such case, there is no statutory authority for a nursing home to rely on a family member to make decisions for a resident who cannot participate in that decision.

Can a nursing home still turn to a family member to make decisions?

There are customs whereby a family member authorizes treatment in circumstances when an individual cannot make decisions for herself or himself. These customs are likely followed very often in outpatient, nursing home and hospital settings.

How can a nursing home determine if it can rely on a family member to authorize treatment?

This is an issue of risk-management, best addressed by counsel for the nursing home.

What are the risks?

The risks are potential lawsuits from other family members, and citations from the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs. The risk of lawsuit is minimal if immediate family members agree on a course of treatment

Guardianship

Is there one guardianship system for all adults?

No. Provisions in the Estates and Individuals Code apply to all adults except adults with an alleged developmental disability. MCL 700.5301 et seq.

Provisions in the Mental Health Code apply only to adults with an alleged developmental disability. MCL 330.1600, et seq. The definition of “developmental disability” is Appendix C.

Are the provisions of the two laws the same?

No. Although both types of guardianship are handled by the probate court, there are significant difference in procedure and terminology.

What are some of the differences?

A proceeding under the Mental Health Code requires a psychosocial evaluation known as a “612 report.” All respondents have a lawyer appointed to represent them. A partial guardianship lasts for a maximum of 5 years unless a new proceeding is initiated.

Information in this policy statement focuses on guardianships brought under the Estates and Individuals Code.
What is a guardian?

A guardian is a person or company appointed by a probate court to make decisions for an individual if there is clear and convincing evidence the individual is unable to make informed decisions about her or his care, and that guardianship is necessary. MCL 700.5306(1).

What is an informed decision?

The term is not defined in the law. Generally, if an individual understands the choices she or he can make, and understands the risks of each choice, she or is making an informed decision.

Prior to 1989, the law referred to an inability to make “responsible decisions.” The term was changed in the law because guardianship is not appropriate merely because family or health care provider believe an individual is not making the best or safest decision.

How many adults in Michigan have a guardian?

According to statistics published by the State Court Administrative Office, 53,882 adults had a guardian at the end of 2011. It is not known how many of these individuals reside in nursing homes.

What is the difference between a guardian and a conservator?

A conservator is a person appointed by a probate court for an individual who cannot manage his or her money or property effectively. MCL 700.5401(3).

An individual can have a guardian, or a conservator or both. The guardian and conservator can be the same person, or different persons, depending on circumstances.

Can a court give a guardian power to handle an individual's money if a conservator is not appointed?

Yes. MCL 700.5314(d)(ii).
If an individual has a durable power of attorney for health care, is guardianship necessary?

Rarely. If a patient advocate under a durable power of attorney for health care is performing her or his duties, a court cannot give a guardian power to make medical treatment decisions. MCL 700.5306(2).

What if a court appoints a guardian because the court is unaware a durable power of attorney for health care exists?

In such circumstances, the patient advocate and not the guardian has authority to make medical decisions. MCL 700.5306(5).

Does every resident who does not have a patient advocate need a guardian?

No. This is a long-standing and common misunderstanding.

A nursing home should never be cited because a resident who is able to participate in medical decisions has neither a patient advocate nor a guardian.

Who can apply for guardianship?

Anyone interested in the welfare of the individual can petition for guardianship, if the petitioner believes guardianship is appropriate. MCL 700.5303(1).

What happens upon a petition for guardian being filed with the court?

Court staff set a date for a court hearing. MCL 700.5303(3). The time between petition and hearing can be two weeks or more, depending on the court’s caseload.
Can a judge appoint a guardian before a court hearing is held and the respondent receives?

No, never.

What else happens upon a petition being filed?

Court staff will send a guardian ad litem to the nursing home to talk with the resident before the hearing date. MCL 700.5303(3). Under the Mental Health Code, the court immediately appoints a lawyer for the respondent.

Does the guardian ad litem have any power to make decisions for the resident?

No.

What will the guardian ad litem talk to the resident about?

The guardian ad litem will explain guardianship, rights the individual has in the process, and ask if the resident objects to guardianship or to the individual seeking guardianship. MCL 700.5305.

Must the guardian ad litem provide written material to the resident?

Yes. Under a law passed in 2012, the guardian ad litem, must hand the respondent written information explaining the rights the individual has. MCL 5306a(2). The type of information the guardian ad litem must convey is shown in the pamphlet, Your Rights in the Guardianship Process, Appendix E.

A guardian has long had the obligation to orally explain these rights to the respondent. MCL 700.5305.

What does the guardian ad litem do after speaking with the resident?

The guardian ad litem will likely talk with the petitioner, may review the medical record, and may talk with staff.
What then?

If the individual does not object to guardianship or to the individual seeking appointment as guardian, and does not request limits on the guardian’s powers, the guardian ad litem will provide information and make recommendations to the judge.

The guardian ad litem will advise the judge whether there are alternatives to guardianship, whether guardianship is appropriate, what powers the guardian should have, who should serve as guardian, and whether mediation should be considered. MCL 700.5305(e).

What if the resident does not want a guardian?

If he individual does not want a guardian, objects to the person nominated as guardian, wants limits on the guardian’s powers, or requests a lawyer, the guardian ad litem reports this to the judge.

In any of these circumstances, the judge is obligated to appoint a lawyer to represent the individual. MCL 700.5305(3), (4). At that point, the role of the guardian ad litem ends. MCL 700.5305(5).

Does the individual have the right to attend the court hearing?

Yes. MCL 5304(4).

The guardian ad litem should ask if the resident wants to be at the hearing, and if so, determine what accommodations the individual might need. These could include a wheelchair, an assistive listening devise or an interpreter.

Does a nursing home have an obligation to transport a resident to court?

Yes. If the resident is enrolled in Medicaid and wishes to attend the hearing but has no transportation, the nursing home has an obligation to arrange transport:
Where needed services are not covered by the Medicaid State plan, nursing facilities are still required to attempt to obtain these services. For example, if a resident requires transportation services that are not covered under a Medicaid state plan, the facility is required to arrange these services. This could be achieved, for example, through obtaining volunteer assistance.

The type of conditions to which the facility should respond with social services by staff or referral include, among several others:

- Presence of legal or financial problems

  State Operations Manual, Appendix PP: Guidance to Surveyors for Long Term Care Section Facilities, Interpretive Guidelines to 42 CFR 483.15(g)(1) (emphasis added)

If the judge determines the individual meets the standards for appointment of a guardian, who has priority to serve?

Assuming the individual does not already have a guardian appointed in another state, first priority is a person chosen or nominated by the individual, if that person is suitable and willing to serve. MCLA 700.5313(2). This has long been the law, but was underscored in legislation passed in 2012.

What if the individual does not choose or has not nominated a person to serve?

Second priority is a family member suitable and willing to serve. MCL 700.5313(3). Family disagreement about who should serve can be referred to mediation.

In what circumstances can a court appoint a professional guardian?

Only if the individual does not make a viable choice and there are no family members willing and able to serve is the judge permitted to appoint a professional guardian. MCL 700.5106(2).
Are professional guardians licensed, certified or registered?

No. There is no regulation of professional guardians. There have been very serious issues with a number of professional guardians, some of whom are responsible for hundreds of individuals.

What role can a nursing home play concerning the appointment of professional guardians?

A nursing home should never nominate a professional guardian to serve unless the home checks that the person, partnership or agency has an unsullied reputation and can well handle the duties of a guardian.

Can a judge appoint more than one person as guardian?

Yes. The persons appointed are known as co-guardians.

Can each guardian make a decision independently?

The letters of guardianship issued by the court will ideally indicate whether the co-guardians must act together or can act independently.

Do all guardians have the same powers?

No. The law requires the judge to limit the powers of a guardian to the demonstrated needs of the individual. MCL 700.5306(2). The applicable section in the Mental Health Code mirrors EPIC. MCL 330.1602(1).

The law now requires a judge to specify the powers of a guardian in the court order, which will be echoed in the letters of guardianship. MCL 700.5314.
If a resident has a guardian, should a nursing home keep a copy of the letters of guardianship in the medical file?

Yes. The letters of guardianship should show what powers the court has granted to the guardian. For example, a limited guardian might not have the power to make some medical treatment decisions.

Does an individual maintain some rights under guardianship?

Yes. An individual does not cease to be “his or her own person” because of guardianship.

Unless the letters of guardianship are to the contrary, a resident retains the right to have visitors of her or his choice, to use the telephone privately, to practice her or his religion, and to enjoy other rights set forth in federal and state law.

Many of those rights can be found at 42 USC sec. 1395i-3(c); 42 USC sec. 1396r(c); and MCL 333.20201.

What about an individual with a guardian under the Mental Health Code?

Under the Mental Health, Code an individual with a partial guardian “retains all legal and civil rights” except those the court specifically grants to the partial guardian or designates as legal disabilities. MCL 330.1620(2).

What are some general responsibilities of a guardian?

A guardian is required to visit the individual at least every three months, and, if communication is possible, to talk with the individual before making major decisions. MCL 700.5314.

A guardian is required to make decisions in the individual’s best interests, and to arrange appropriate medical and social services to restore the individual to the best possible physical and mental well-being. MCL 700.5314.
The provision in the Mental Health Code is MCL 330.1602.

Are there other general responsibilities?

Yes. A guardian has the responsibility to see that rights of the resident to dignity and good care are respected by a nursing home. Federal law provides guardians have the right to assert the rights of residents. 42 USC sec, 1395i-3(c)(1)(C); 42 USC sec.1396r(c)(1)(C).

A guardian can call the Long Term Care Ombudsman Program to assist her or him in effecting this goal. The toll-free telephone number is 1-(866) 485-9393.

What are a guardian’s general responsibilities to the probate court?

A guardian also has a duty to report to the court once a year concerning the condition of the individual, and to account to the court for any money in the guardian’s control. MCL 700.5314(e).

The guardian also has a responsibility to inform the court of a change in her or his residence, and a change in the individual’s residence. MCL 700.5314(a).

Is there a time limit on guardianship?

Under the Estates and Individuals Code, there is no time limit unless a termination date is included in the court order.

Under the Mental Health Code, a partial guardianship can last no more than 5 years. At that point a new petition for guardianship must be brought, if appropriate. MCL 330.1626.

Can a nursing home pay a guardian to have an individual reside in its nursing home?

No. Such payments constitute a felony, punishable by 4 years in prison, a $30,000 fine, or both. MCL 333.21792(1).
Can a nursing home request a guardian sign a nursing home admissions contract?

Yes. Under the Estates and Individuals Code, if the guardian has authority to determine where an individual lives, she or he can sign the admissions contract. MCL 700.5314(a), (d)(ii).

In signing the contract, to what is the guardian agreeing?

The guardian is agreeing to use the individual’s funds the guardian controls to pay the nursing home bill.

The guardian is not agreeing to be a guarantor using her or his own funds. Requiring that would violate both state and federal law:

With respect to admissions practices, a nursing home must ... (ii) not require a third party guarantee of payment to the facility as a condition of admission (or expedited admission) to, or continued stay in the facility. 42 USC sec.1396r(c)(5)(A).

Does a guardian under the Mental Health Code have the same power to sign an admissions contract?

No. A guardian for an individual with a developmental disability must request explicit court authority in order to put the individual in a facility. MCL 330.1623.

Can a guardian complete and sign an application for Medicaid?

Yes. Form DHS -1171, page S.

A guardian has a responsibility to submit an application for a resident who is, or will soon be, eligible for Medicaid.
Can a guardian move a resident to another nursing home?

Yes, if the guardian has authority to determine where the individual resides. The guardian should consider the trauma such a transfer could cause the individual.

Does the nursing home have any obligation if the guardian decides to move the resident?

Yes.

A nursing home must provide sufficient preparation and orientation to residents to ensure safe and orderly transfer or discharge from the facility. 42 USC sec. 1396r(c)(2)(C)

Does a guardian have access to the resident’s medical records?

Yes, if the guardian's powers include authority to make medical decisions.

Can a nursing home give a professional guardian access to the records of residents who do not have a guardian?

No. This is a serious violation of a resident’s rights under federal and state law. 42CFR Parts 160 and 164; 42 USC 1396r(c)(1)(A)(iii); MCL 333.20175(1); MCL 333.20201(2)(b).

Does a guardian have authority to prevent relatives from visiting a resident?

No, except if a court order explicitly excludes someone. Otherwise,

A nursing home must ... permit immediate access to a resident, subject to the resident’s right to deny or withdraw consent at any time, by immediate family or other relatives of the resident. 42 USC Sec. 1396r(c)(3)(B).
Can a guardian with powers over medical treatment choose an attending physician and specialists for a resident?

Yes.

What is the general scope of a guardian’s authority over medical decisions?

Generally, a guardian “may give consent or approval that is necessary to enable the ward to receive medical or professional care, counsel, treatment, or service.” MCL 700.5314(c).

This includes physical examinations, wound care, medications, surgery, dental care, eye care, physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech therapy among other treatments.

Are there exceptions?

Yes. For instance, a guardian cannot authorize electroconvulsive treatment (ECT) unless the guardian has explicit authority from the court to do so, and two psychiatrists deem it appropriate. MCL 330.1717.

Can a guardian authorize psychotropic medication for a resident?

Yes.

It is critical the guardian consult with the physician prescribing the medication about the dose, the intended effects and side effects of any medication. The guardian can refuse a suggested medication.

The more information the guardian has, the better. For instance, recent reports have discussed the danger of psychotropic medication intended to treat schizophrenia being prescribed for dementia.

Can a guardian approve inpatient mental health treatment?

A full guardian has the power to admit the resident as a formal voluntary patient if the resident “assents.” MCL 330.1415. This term is not defined in Michigan law. At the very least it means a guardian cannot admit an individual as a voluntary patient if the individual expresses an objection.

If the individual does object, the guardian must seek a commitment order from the probate court. MCL 330.1423 et seq.

What if an individual has neither a guardian nor a patient advocate?

Despite any “behaviors” exhibited by a resident, a nursing home cannot arrange for in-patient psychiatric treatment without authority from the resident, a legal representative of the resident, or a commitment proceeding.

Does a guardian have the right to authorize a do-not-resuscitate order in a resident’s chart?

Judges differ in their view on whether a guardian has this power. The same is true for the power to withhold or withdraw any life-sustaining treatment, such as respirator, tube feeding, or antibiotics; and the power to authorize hospice care.

There are judges who make a forceful argument a guardian has these powers under the Michigan Dignified Death Act, if the resident is terminally ill.

Does it matter whether the guardian is a family member or a professional guardian?

To some judges, family members have greater discretion in making end-of-life decisions.

What is the nursing home or the guardian is unsure of the guardian’s powers?

A guardian has the right to return to court to seek specific authority from the judge to make a particular decision. A nursing home can request a guardian do so.
Who provides information during the annual assessment of the resident?

Residents should be the primary source of information for resident assessment items. Should the resident not be able to participate in the assessment, the resident’s family, significant other, and guardian or legally authorized representative should be consulted.

Does this apply to Section Q, “Participation in Assessment and Goal-Setting?”

Yes.

Residents should be asked about inviting family members, significant others, and/or guardian/legally authorized representative to participate, and if they desire that they be involved in the assessment process. Ibid, page Q-1.

Having a guardian “should not create a presumption that the resident is not able to comprehend and communicate their wishes.” Ibid, page Q-5.

What if an individual answers question Q-0500 in the affirmative?

If an individual answers “yes” to the question, “Do you want to talk to someone about the possibility of leaving the facility and returning to live and receive services in the community?” the nursing home should start the process toward referral to a waiver agent.

Can a guardian prevent the referral?

CMS has answered that question informally:
A referral to the local contact agency should be made if the resident wishes, even if they have a legal guardian, durable power of attorney for health care or a legally authorized representative, in accordance with state law.

MDS 3.0 Section Q Implementation Questions and Answers, from Informing LTC Choice Conference and E-mails, September 22, 2010

Can a guardian prevent a resident from moving to the community?

If the guardian has power to determine where the individual lives, the guardian will need to approve a transition to the community.

What information does a guardian need to evaluate the feasibility of a resident moving from the nursing home?

A guardian should be fully informed of programs available to eligible individuals, such as home and community based waiver services, home help services, and aid and attendance benefits through the Veterans Administration.

Where can a guardian obtain this information?

A guardian can contact the local Area Agency on Aging, a local waiver agent, the county office of the Department of Human Services, and the Veterans Administration.

Is there further information available about the duties of a guardian to the individual and to the court?

Yes. The publication, Handbook for Guardians of Adults, 10th edition, 2012 is available online.

If the nursing home believes a guardian is not performing his or her duties, what can be done?

If a guardian doesn’t visit the resident, or return telephone calls from the nursing home, or pay the patient pay amount each month; if the guardian unduly restricts the rights of the resident or otherwise doesn’t act in the resident’s best interest, the nursing home can petition the probate court and request a new guardian be appointed.

The nursing home has this right whether the guardian is a family member or a professional.

What court form would a nursing home use?

The court form is called a Petition for Modification / Termination of a Guardianship. The form should be available from the probate court.

What if the nursing home believes a guardian is abusing or exploiting a resident?

The nursing home should immediately call Adult Protective Services, at 1-(855) 444-3911 and report the suspected activity. The nursing home should also file a report with the Bureau of Health Systems, and consider petitioning the probate court for appointment of a new guardian.

Does a resident have the right to request the court modify or terminate the guardianship?

Yes. The resident can always petition the court or write the judge a letter. Neither the guardian nor the nursing home can interfere in any way with this request. MCL 700.5310(2).

Are there any court fees if the resident asks for a modification or termination of a guardianship?

No.
Why might a resident request action from the probate court?

The individual might have needed a guardian because of a stroke or closed head injury. She or he may have recovered sufficiently to want to make her or his own decisions.

Why else might a resident request action from the probate court?

The individual might be unhappy with decisions of the guardian and want a different guardian or further limits on the guardian’s powers.

For instance, if the resident wishes to move to the community but the guardian objects, the resident can go to court to request a modification of the guardianship.

Can a resident hire a lawyer to represent her or him in this process?

Yes. An individual always has the right to hire a lawyer in seeking to modify or terminate a guardianship.

If the individual seeks a modification or termination but does not have a lawyer, the court must appoint a lawyer for her or him.

What happens upon the court receiving a petition or letter?

The court will schedule a hearing and follow a process similar to that for an initial petition for guardianship. The individual has all the same rights in the process. MCL 700.5310(3), (4). Many of these rights are et forth in Your Rights in the Guardianship Process, Appendix E.

How does a guardian get paid?

If a resident is enrolled in Medicaid, the guardian can charge a maximum of $60.00 per month. This amount is deducted from the resident’s patient pay amount, and Medicaid pays the nursing home the additional $60.00. Bridges Eligibility Manual (BEM) 546, Post-Eligibility Patient Pay Amounts, p. 7.
Can a guardian use a resident’s personal needs funds to pay her or himself?

No.

What if a resident is not enrolled in Medicaid?

The guardian can fix her or his fees, which are subject to approval each year by the probate court. Michigan Court Rules 5.313(F).

When do the powers of a guardian end?

The powers of a guardian generally end upon the death of the resident. MCL 700.5308.

What if a nursing home has questions about guardianship?

A nursing home can telephone the probate court.

If court staff are unable to answer a question, they may be able to refer the caller to an agency that can answer it.

Foreword

We all value the right to make decisions for ourselves. Whether we term this autonomy, liberty or independence, it is central to our concept of dignity.

One important area in which we exercise independence is in choosing the medical treatment we receive. Few would deny a competent adult has the right to consent to or refuse particular medical treatments or medically related services.

Unfortunately, due to illness or injury, we may not remain able to participate in treatment decisions. Such disability may be temporary or permanent.

No one likes to consider the possibility of becoming unable to make decisions. It is easy to put off thinking about that happening, and what treatment we would like in those circumstances.

As difficult as it is to confront these issues, by doing so we can help ensure our wishes are honored in the future.
Once you determine your wishes, the process of planning is relatively simple and inexpensive or free. This pamphlet contains information on advance directives to assist you. The fill-in-the-blanks forms at the end of the pamphlet are but one option should you choose to proceed.
Questions and Answers About Advance Directives

A. Introduction

What is an advance directive?

An advance directive is a written document in which you specify what type of medical care you want in the future, or who you want to make decisions for you, should you lose the ability to make decisions for yourself.

Why is there a need for advance directives?

Years ago, most individuals died in their own homes. Today, there is greater chance of dying in a hospital or nursing home.

Expanding technology has increased the treatment choices we face, and improved public health has increased life expectancy. Decisions may have to be made concerning our care at a time we can no longer communicate our wishes.

What are the advantages of having an advance directive?

We each have our own values, wishes and goals. Having an advance directive provides you some assurance your personal wishes concerning medical and mental treatment will be honored at a time when you are not able to express them. Having an advance directive may also prevent the need for a guardianship imposed through the probate court.
Must I have an advance directive?

No. The decision to have an advance directive is purely voluntary. No family member, hospital or insurance company can force you to have one, or dictate what the document should say if you decide to write one. A hospital or nursing home or hospice organization cannot deny you service because you do or don't have an advance directive.

Are there different types of advance directives?

Yes. Three types are a durable power of attorney for health care, a living will, and a do-not-resuscitate declaration.

There is also a declaration of anatomical gift, to take effect when you die.

Can I have more than one type of advance directive?

Yes. You may choose to have any number of advance directives, or to have none at all.

B. Durable Power of Attorney For Health Care

What is a durable power of attorney for health care?

A durable power of attorney for health care, also known as a health care proxy or a patient advocate designation, is a document in which you appoint another individual to make medical treatment and related personal care decisions for you.
You can, in addition, choose to give your patient advocate power to make decisions concerning mental health care you may need.

Finally, you can empower your patient advocate to donate specific organs or your entire body upon your death.

Is a durable power of attorney for health care legally binding?

Yes.

Who is eligible to have a durable power of attorney for health care?

You must be at least 18 years old, and you must understand you are giving another person power to make certain decisions for you should you become unable to make them.

What is the person to whom I give decision-making power called?

That person is known as your patient advocate.

When can the patient advocate act in my behalf?

Your patient advocate can make decisions for you only when you become unable to participate in medical treatment decisions yourself. Until that time, you make your own decisions directly.

If you choose to give your patient advocate power to make decisions about mental health treatment, your patient advocate can only act if you cannot give informed consent to mental health treatment.
How might I become unable to participate in medical or mental health decisions?

You might have a temporary loss of ability to make or communicate decisions if, for example, you had a stroke or were knocked unconscious in a car accident. You might suffer permanent loss through a degenerative condition, such as dementia.

You might become unable to make mental health decisions if a condition such as severe depression or schizophrenia affected your mood or thought process.

Who determines I am no longer able to participate in these decisions?

The doctor responsible for your care and one other doctor or psychologist who examines you will make that determination in the case of medical decisions.

After examining you, a doctor and a mental health professional (physician, psychologist, registered nurse or masters-level social worker) must each make the determination in respect to mental health treatment. You may in the document choose the doctor and mental health professional you wish to make this determination.

What if my religious beliefs prohibit an examination by a doctor?

You should state in your durable power of attorney document your religious beliefs prohibit an examination by a doctor, and how you want it determined you are unable to participate in health care decisions.
What powers can I give a patient advocate?

You can give a patient advocate power to make those personal care decisions you normally make for yourself. For example, you can give your patient advocate power to consent to or refuse medical treatment for you; arrange for mental health treatment, home health care or adult day care; or admit you to a hospital, nursing home or home for the aged.

You can also authorize your patient advocate to make a gift of your organs or body, to be effective upon your death.

Will my patient advocate have power to handle my financial affairs?

You can give your patient advocate power to arrange for medical and personal care services, and to pay for those services using your funds. Your patient advocate will not have general power to handle all your property and finances.

If you wish another person to handle all your property and financial affairs should you become incapacitated, you could seek a lawyer’s help to draft a durable power of attorney for finances or a living trust.

Can I give my patient advocate the right to withhold or withdraw treatment that would allow me to die?

Yes, but you must express in a clear and convincing manner the patient advocate is authorized to make such decisions, and you must acknowledge these decisions could or would allow your death.
Can I authorize my patient advocate to decide to withhold or withdraw food and water administered through tubes?

Yes. If you want to give you patient advocate this authority, describe in the document the specific circumstances in which he or she can act - terminal illness, and permanent unconsciousness, for example.

Do I have the right in the document to express other wishes?

Yes. You might, for example express your wishes concerning other types of care you want during terminal illness. You could also express a desire not to be placed in a nursing home and a desire to die at home. Your patient advocate has a duty to try to follow your wishes.

What are my options about mental health care?

First, you have a choice whether or not to give your patient advocate any powers concerning mental health care.

If you choose to give your patient advocate powers concerning mental health care, you should specify clearly which powers he or she can exercise. Some powers to consider are outpatient treatment, hospitalization, administration of psychotropic medication, and electro-convulsive therapy (ECT).

You can also provide greater detail - what hospital you prefer and what medications you want or don’t want, for instance.

What are my options concerning organ donation?

You can choose whether or not to give your patient advocate this power.
If you wish your patient advocate to have this power, you can specify which organs you want donated, or whether your whole body is to be donated. You can specify where or to whom you wish your organs donated.

You can also complete the separate form in this booklet, Declaration of Anatomical Gift. If you state your wishes both in the durable power of attorney and in the declaration of anatomical gift, make sure your wishes are the same in both documents.

Is it important to express my specific wishes in an advance directive?

Your wishes cannot be followed if no one is aware of them. It can also be a burden for your advocate to make a decision for you without guidance. If you have specific desires, make these clear to your patient advocate in talking to him or her. Also consider including these wishes in the document.

What is the duty of my patient advocate?

Your patient advocate has a duty to take reasonable steps to follow your desires and instructions, oral and written, expressed while you were able to participate.

Are there exceptions?

A mental health professional can refuse to honor your wishes concerning a specific mental health treatment, location or professional, if there is a psychiatric emergency endangering your life or the life of another person.
What if I don't express any specific wishes concerning medical treatment?

Your patient advocate must then make decisions about medical care in what he or she sees as your best interest.

Will a hospital or nursing home allow my patient advocate to review my records?

Yes. A patient has the right to inspect and copy his or her hospital or nursing home records. Your patient advocate has the same right you have, once you are unable to participate in treatment decisions.

The form in this pamphlet allows a patient advocate to have access to your medical records at any time after you appoint him or her.

Whom can I appoint as patient advocate?

Any person age 18 or older is eligible; you can appoint your spouse, an adult child, a friend or other individual. You should choose someone you trust, who can handle the responsibility, and who is willing to serve.

It is a good idea to speak with the individual you propose to name as patient advocate before you complete and sign the document.

Can I appoint a second person to serve as patient advocate in case the first person is unable to serve?

Yes. It is a good idea to do so. There is no provision in law to allow more than one person to serve at the same time.
What must I do to have a valid durable power of attorney for health care?

The declaration must be in writing, signed by you, and witnessed by two adults.

There are restrictions on who can be a witness. You need witnesses who are not family members, not your doctor or proposed patient advocate, not an employee of a health facility or program where you are a patient or client.

What does a patient advocate need to do before acting in my behalf?

Before the patient advocate can act, he or she must sign an acceptance. This can be done at the time you complete the document or at a later time. The general language of the acceptance is set forth in law.

Is there a required form for the document?

No. You may choose to use the sample form in this pamphlet. There are a number of organizations that provide different, free forms.

Make sure in completing any document you type or print clearly.

Must I use a fill-in-the-blanks form?

No. You may write out your own document or have a lawyer draft a document for you. Using the form in this pamphlet is one option you have.
Once I sign a durable power of attorney, may I change my mind?

Yes. You may want to name a different patient advocate or alter the expression of your wishes. So long as you are of sound mind, you can sign a new document and then destroy the old one.

Regardless of your physical or mental condition, you can revoke or cancel the durable power of attorney by indicating in any way the document does not reflect your current wishes. Also, any spoken wish to have a specific life-extending treatment provided must be honored by a patient advocate, even if the wish contradicts a written directive.

Are there different rules for mental health treatment?

Yes. You can choose to waive your right to immediately revoke the durable power of attorney insofar as mental health treatment. In such case, your revocation is effective 30 days after you communicate your intent.

Can my patient advocate refuse to act in my behalf?

Yes. A patient advocate can revoke his or her Acceptance at any time. If so, your named successor would become patient advocate.

What if there is a dispute when my patient advocate is making decisions for me?

If an interested person disputes whether the patient advocate is acting in your best interests, or has the authority to act in your behalf, the interested person may petition the local probate court to resolve the dispute.
What if I regain the ability to participate in medical or mental health decisions?

The powers of your patient advocate are suspended during the time you are able to participate in decisions.

What if I have no one to appoint as a patient advocate?

You can still complete a living will or a do-not-resuscitate declaration, or both.

C. Living Will

What is a living will?

A living will is a written document in which you inform doctors, family members and others what type of medical care you wish to receive should you become terminally ill or permanently unconscious.

When will a living will take effect?

A living will only takes effect after a doctor diagnoses you as terminally ill or permanently unconscious and determines you are unable to make or communicate decisions about your care.
How is a living will different from a durable power of attorney for health care?

Although there can be overlap, the focus of a durable power is on who makes the decision; the focus of a living will is on what the decision should be.

A living will is limited to care during terminal illness or permanent unconsciousness, while a patient advocate may also have authority in circumstances of temporary disability.

A durable power of attorney for health care may be more flexible because your patient advocate can respond to unexpected circumstances, but a living will might be honored without the presence of a third person making the actual decision.

What might a living will say?

You might express your wishes in general terms - "Do whatever is necessary for my comfort, but nothing further." Or, "I authorize all measures be taken to prolong my life."

You might instead state whether or not you wish specific medical interventions, such as a respirator, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), surgery, antibiotic medication, and blood transfusions. You could authorize experimental or non-traditional treatment.

Whichever approach you choose, you should express your wishes concerning food and water administered through tubes.
Is a living will legally binding on health care providers?

Although 47 states have statutes giving living wills legal force, Michigan has not passed such a law. However, based on a Michigan court decision, there is an argument living wills are binding in this state. No one, however, can provide absolute assurance your wishes will be honored.

Is it worth having a living will?

Yes. It is particularly important to have a living will if you don't have a durable power of attorney for health care. Your wishes cannot be honored if they are not known.

Can I have both a durable power of attorney for health care and a living will?

Yes. Your patient advocate can read your living will as an expression of your wishes. The living will might also be valuable if your patient advocate were unavailable when a decision needed to be made.

If you have both documents, make sure your wishes expressed in the documents are consistent.

What are the requirements for a living will?

Since there is no state law, there are no formal requirements. But it is strongly recommended the document be entitled, "Living Will;" be dated; signed by you; and signed by two witnesses who are not family members.
D. Do-Not-Resuscitate Declaration

What is a do-not-resuscitate declaration?

A do-not-resuscitate declaration (DNR declaration) is a written document in which you express your wish that if your breathing and heartbeat cease, you do not want anyone to attempt to resuscitate you.

For whom might such a document be particularly useful?

A hospice patient who is home to die as peacefully as possible might wish to sign a DNR declaration.

Must I be terminally ill before signing a DNR declaration?

No. For example, you may be in good health but still not want to be resuscitated should your heart and lungs fail.

Are such documents legally binding?

Yes. A Michigan law provides these documents are valid in settings other than hospitals or nursing homes.

Are there standard forms for a DNR declaration?

Yes. One form provides spaces for your doctor to sign, for you to sign, and for two witnesses to sign.
There is an alternate form for individuals who have religious beliefs against using doctors. Both forms are included in this booklet.

Can my patient advocate sign the form instead of me?

If your patient advocate has authority to act, he or she can sign the form instead of you.

Is it necessary to have a DNR declaration if I have a durable power of attorney or living will?

Perhaps. A durable power of attorney for health care and a living will only take effect when you are unable to participate in treatment decisions. If you are competent until the moment your heart and breathing stop, these documents will never take effect.

What else can be done to prevent unwanted resuscitation?

Ask your relatives in advance not to call 9-1-1 or the police if your breathing should stop. If you are under the care of a registered nurse, she or he has the authority to pronounce death.

What about when I am in a nursing home or hospital?

These facilities can set their own policies about resuscitation. Upon admission or afterward, you should express your wishes on this issue and ask that these wishes be reflected on your medical chart.
E. General Information

In general, what should I do before completing an advance directive?

Take your time; these are difficult decisions. Think about what treatment you would like under various circumstances in the future. Consider whom you might choose as your patient advocate, and make sure that person is willing to serve.

Discuss the issue with family members. Talk with your minister, rabbi, priest or other spiritual leader if you feel it would be helpful.

Should I also talk with my doctor?

Yes! Bring the subject up with your doctor. Have a discussion about the benefits and burdens of various types of treatment. Express at least your general wishes and make sure the doctor is comfortable with carrying them out.

Are there issues to which I should give particular attention?

Yes. Many people have strong feelings about the administration of food and water. If you become unable to swallow, food and water can be supplied by a tube down your throat, a tube surgically placed into your stomach, or intravenously. Consider in what circumstances, if any, you wish such procedures withheld or withdrawn.

What should I do with an advance directive after it is signed?

Give the original durable power of attorney for health care to your patient advocate (or at least make sure she or he knows where it is). Give a photostatic copy to your doctor and keep a copy yourself. Let people know whom you have chosen as your patient advocate.
Is there a statewide registry of advance directives?

Yes. Individuals have the right to voluntarily have their advance directive on a registry, to which health providers will have access. There is no cost. The registry is operated by Gift of Life Michigan.

What about a living will?

Keep the original of a living will. Give a copy to family members who are close to you, a friend and your doctor. Keep a list of these people.

Your doctor should make the documents part of your medical record. If you enter a hospital or nursing home, try to see to it the facility has a copy.

What about a do-not-resuscitate declaration?

Always keep the order with you at home, and in plain sight. Give a copy to family members who might be with you at your death.

After I sign one or more advance directives, should I continue to discuss the issue of my care?

Yes. Sit down with the person you have chosen as patient advocate. The clearer picture he or she has of your wishes, the better. If some time has passed since you signed the document, discuss the issue again.

It is almost always a good idea for you to make relatives and friends aware of your desires.

When I should review an advance directive?

Since medical technology is constantly changing, and since there may be changes in your outlook, it would be wise to review your advance directives once a year. Upon review, you can decide to keep the document, write a new one, or have no advance directive at all.

If you decide to keep the advance directive, you can put your initials and the date on the bottom.

What should I do if I write a new advance directive?

Whether you choose a different person to be your patient advocate or alter your wishes for care, try to get back copies of the old document and destroy them. Distribute copies of the new document.

What are the responsibilities of health care facilities?

Hospitals, nursing homes, hospice organizations and home health agencies receiving federal funds have an obligation to inform incoming patients of their rights to consent to or refuse treatment, including the right to have advance directives.

A health care facility cannot force you to sign an advance directive, or refuse to care for you if you have signed one.

If given an advance directive, the hospital or nursing home must make it part of your medical record.

Will the hospital or nursing home honor my advance directive?

If the facility has no reason to question the document’s authenticity, has evidence you are no longer able to participate in treatment decisions, and believes a patient advocate is acting consistent with your wishes, the facility would likely comply.
Be aware even though you have an advance directive, there is no absolute assurance your wishes will be honored.

What if I decide not to have an advance directive?

Decisions would still have to be made for you should you become unable to make them. Sometimes, a doctor or hospital will accept a spouse or child as an informal decision-maker. In some situations, a family member has authority by law. At other times a guardianship proceeding will have to be initiated in probate court.

Social Welfare Act (excerpt)

400.66h Hospitalization; consent to surgical operation, medical treatment; first aid.

Nothing in this act shall be construed as empowering any physician or surgeon, or any officer or representative of the state or county departments of social welfare, in carrying out the provisions of this act, to compel any person, either child or adult, to undergo a surgical operation, or to accept any form of medical treatment contrary to the wishes of said person. If the person for whom surgical or medical treatment is recommended is not of sound mind, or is not in a condition to make decisions for himself, the written consent of such person's nearest relative, or legally appointed guardian, or person standing in loco parentis, shall be secured before such medical or surgical treatment is given. This provision is not intended to prevent temporary first aid from being given in case of an accident or sudden acute illness where the consent of those concerned cannot be immediately obtained.

Appendix C

Michigan Dignified Death Act

333.5651 Short title of part.

This part shall be known and may be cited as the “Michigan dignified death act”.

333.5652 Legislative findings; Michigan dignified death act.

(1) The legislature finds all of the following:
(a) That patients face a unique set of circumstances and decisions once they have been diagnosed as having a reduced life expectancy due to advanced illness.
(b) That published studies indicate that patients with reduced life expectancy due to advanced illnesses fear that in end-of-life situations they could receive unwanted aggressive medical treatment.
(c) That patients with reduced life expectancy due to advanced illnesses are often unaware of their legal rights, particularly with regard to controlling end-of-life decisions.
(d) That the free flow of information among health care providers, patients, and patients' families can give patients and their families a sense of control over their lives, ease the stress involved in coping with a reduced life expectancy due to advanced illness, and provide needed guidance to all involved in determining the appropriate variety and degree of medical intervention to be used.
(e) That health care providers should be encouraged to initiate discussions with their patients regarding advance medical directives during initial consultations, annual examinations, and hospitalizations, at diagnosis of a chronic illness, and when a patient transfers from 1 health care setting to another.
In affirmation of the tradition in this state recognizing the integrity of patients and their desire for a humane and dignified death, the Michigan legislature enacts the “Michigan dignified death act”. In doing so, the legislature recognizes that a well-considered body of common law exists detailing the relationship between health care providers and their patients. This act is not intended to abrogate any part of that common law. This act is intended to increase awareness of the right of a patient who has a reduced life expectancy due to advanced illness to make decisions to receive, continue, discontinue, or refuse medical treatment. It is hoped that by doing so, the legislature will encourage better communication between patients with reduced life expectancy due to advanced illnesses and health care providers to ensure that the patient's final days are meaningful and dignified.

As used in this subsection, “fraud” means a false representation of a matter of fact, whether by words or by conduct, by false or misleading allegations, or by concealment of that which should have been disclosed, that deceives and is intended to deceive another so that he or she acts upon it to his or her legal injury.

YOUR RIGHTS IN THE GUARDIANSHIP PROCESS

INFORMATION PRESENTED BY THE MICHIGAN STATE LONG TERM CARE OMBUDSMAN PROGRAM

Introduction

Why am I receiving this pamphlet?

You are being provided this information because someone has asked the probate court to appoint a guardian for you, or because you already have a guardian.

You have a number of rights to help ensure you only have a guardian if you need one.

What is a guardian?

A guardian is a person or company appointed by a probate court to make decisions for you if there is convincing evidence you are unable to make informed decisions for yourself.

A guardian can only be appointed if necessary to provide for your care.

What decisions can a guardian make for me?

A judge can give a guardian power to decide where you live, to make medical treatment decisions for you, to arrange services and to decide how your money is spent.

Do I lose rights if a guardian is appointed?

Yes. For instance, if a guardian is given power to decide where you live, you lose the right to make that decision for yourself.
Do all guardians have the same powers?

No. For example, a judge could grant a guardian power to make medical decisions for you, but not the power to decide where you live or to handle your money.

What are some responsibilities of a guardian if one is appointed for me?

Your guardian is required to visit you at least every three months, and to talk with you before making major decisions.

Your guardian is required to make decisions in your best interests, and to arrange appropriate medical, housing and social services so you can regain as much self-care as is possible.

The Guardianship Petition

How is a guardian appointed?

The first step is that someone interested in your welfare files a petition in probate court.

At the same time you are receiving this pamphlet, you are being given a copy of the petition.

What is the purpose of the petition?

The petition sets forth information why the petitioner believes you need a guardian.
What happens upon a petition for guardianship being filed with the court?

Court staff set a date for a court hearing. The hearing may be very soon or a few weeks away.

The judge cannot appoint a guardian for you without a hearing.

The Guardian Ad Litem

What else happens upon a petition being filed?

Court staff will send a person to your home to talk with you before the hearing date. This person, known as a guardian ad litem, is the person who handed you this pamphlet.

The guardian ad litem has no power to make decisions for you, only to collect information.

What will the guardian ad litem talk to me about?

The guardian ad litem will explain guardianship and your rights in the process.

If you do not object to guardianship, the guardian ad litem will provide information to the judge whether guardianship is appropriate and about who should serve as guardian.
Your Rights

Can I choose the person to be my guardian?

Yes, you have this right. Tell the guardian ad litem of your choice.

Yes, you always have the right to be at the hearing.

Tell the guardian ad litem if you want to attend the court hearing. Tell the guardian ad litem if you need transportation to get to the hearing, and if you need any help such as a wheelchair, a special hearing device or an interpreter in the courtroom.

What if I have signed a durable power of attorney for health care in the past?

Make sure you make the guardian ad litem aware of the document. Give him or a copy of the document if you have one.

If I do not want a guardian, what do I do?

It is very important you tell the guardian ad litem if you do not want a guardian, or if you do not want a particular person to serve as guardian, or if you want the guardian’s powers limited in any way.
What will the guardian ad litem do then?

By law, the guardian ad litem must report your wishes to the court, and court staff must appoint a lawyer to represent you. This will not cost you any money.

Hiring a Lawyer

Can I hire my own lawyer instead of having the court appoint a lawyer?

Yes. You also always have the right to hire a lawyer.

What is the role of my lawyer?

Whether the lawyer is court appointed or chosen by you, your lawyer must strongly argue for your wishes, regardless of what anyone else thinks is best for you.

Do I have the right to get a professional evaluation of my ability to make decisions?

Yes. You can choose a doctor, psychologist, nurse or social worker to do the evaluation. If you cannot afford the cost of the evaluation, the court will pay for it.
The Court Hearing

What is the purpose of the court hearing?

The person who filed the petition must present evidence and prove that you cannot make informed decisions for yourself, and that guardianship is necessary to meet your needs.

What if I disagree with the evidence presented?

You or your lawyer have a right to dispute any evidence presented, and you or your lawyer has a right to present witnesses and other evidence on your behalf.

If you have asked for a professional evaluation, you can decide whether to present the results to the judge.

Who decides whether I need a guardian?

The judge will usually make the decision whether there is clear and convincing evidence you cannot make informed decisions over one or more areas of your life. The judge will also determine whether guardianship is necessary to meet your needs.

If you have exercised your right to have a jury trial, the jury will decide those questions.
Who decides what powers the guardian will have?

The judge or jury will also determine what powers the guardian will have, based on your needs.

What if the judge or jury decides I need a guardian, but I disagree?

You have a right to appeal the decision to the Circuit Court.

How do I know what powers my guardian has?

The court order signed by the judge, and the letters of guardianship given to the guardian, must show the powers the guardian has.

You can ask court staff or the guardian for a copy of the letters of guardianship.

After a Guardian is Appointed

If I have a guardian, do I lose all my rights?

No. For example, generally you maintain the right to speak your mind, to practice your religion and to see family and friends of your choice.
If a guardian is given authority to make medical treatment decisions for me, are there limits in the types of decisions the guardian can make?

Yes. For instance, a guardian does not have authority to hospitalize you for mental health treatment unless you assent.

A guardian can only authorize electroconvulsive therapy (ECT) if your guardian is given that authority and two psychiatrists agree it is appropriate.

Can a guardian have a do-not-resuscitate order put in my nursing home chart or hospital chart?

The law does not adequately address the powers of a guardian concerning end-of-life care.

Judges disagree whether a guardian has the power to agree to a DNR order, or to withhold or withdraw treatment that is keeping you alive.

How can I know whether my guardian has such power?

It is best to ask the judge to specify in the court order and letters of guardianship whether the guardian has this power, and in what circumstances.
If I object to a guardian’s decisions, what can I do?

You can write a letter to the probate judge, or you can file a petition with the court. There is no cost. You can ask the judge to -

- End the guardianship, or
- Limit the guardian’s powers, or
- Name another person as guardian.

Can I hire a lawyer to represent me?

Yes. You do not lose that right just because you have a guardian.

If you do not hire a lawyer, request the judge appoint one for you. The judge is required to do so.

Will there be another court hearing?

Yes. You have all the same rights you had during the first hearing.

What if I have questions about guardianship?

You can telephone the probate court.

Court staff can provide information such as rights you have under the law, the name of your guardian ad litem or lawyer, and the date of your court hearing.
What if court staff are unable to answer my questions?

If staff are unable to answer a question, they may be able to refer you to a person or agency that can answer it.

What is the name and phone number of the probate court?
Bradley Geller currently serves as an assistant state long term care ombudsman in Michigan. He began a career in law and aging in 1974.

In developing a legal services project for older adults in a three county area in 1978, he represented individuals facing guardianship. He wrote a client-oriented pamphlet on guardianship, which became a chapter in his 1982 book, Changes and Choices Legal Rights of Older Adults. State legislators have distributed more than 500,000 copies to constituents.

As counsel to the Michigan House Judiciary Committee, he drafted the Michigan Guardianship Reform Act of 1988 and designed project Joshua, detailing changes in court forms, court rules and jury instructions. He participated in drafting statutes creating the durable power of attorney for health care, the do-not-resuscitate procedures act, and the Michigan Statutory Will, while creating a legislative agenda for older adults.

As counsel to the Washtenaw County Probate County for ten years, he managed the adult guardianship and conservator system, and initiated Project Dignity. The project's goals were the promotion of alternatives to full guardianship; the education of guardians, conservators and guardians ad litem; the use of mediation; and the creation of a volunteer guardianship program.

He has participated on the Michigan Probate Rules Committee, the Probate Forms Committee and the Michigan Law Revision Commission. He envisioned and was a member of the Michigan Supreme Court Task Force on Guardianship and Conservatorship.

Throughout the years, he has pursued legislative, investigative and educational efforts to improve the structure and functioning of the guardianship system.

Civil Action Opinion

Argued: June 18, 2010
Decided: June 21, 2010
Honorable Peter E. Doyne, A.J.S.C.

Anne S. Burris, Esq. and Sergio S. Simoes, Esq. appearing on behalf of the plaintiffs, Mary Ellen Hannigan and Edward McNierney, Jr. (Lindabury, McCormick, Estabrook & Cooper, P.C.).

Patrick J. McNierney appearing pro se.

Robert J. Maloof, Esq. appearing as the court appointed attorney for Ann F. McNierney (Robert J. Maloof, L.L.C.).

Elizabeth Speidel, Esq. appearing on behalf of the State of New Jersey Department of the Public Advocate, Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly (State of New Jersey).

Introduction

Before the court is a request by the plaintiffs, Mary Ellen Hannigan and Edward McNierney, Jr. ("Mary Ellen" and "Edward" individually; "plaintiffs" or "guardians" collectively), two of Ann F. McNierney's ("Ann" or "incapacitated") children and her guardians, seeking the court’s instruction with respect to the scope of their authority as plenary guardians to control the visitation rights of their mother.¹

Procedural and Factual Background

Ann is a seventy-eight year old widow who suffers from dementia. She has five children: Edward (52 years old), Patrick McNierney (48), Mary Ellen (46), Brian McNierney (45), and Anne Marie Tarleton (42) (“Patrick”, “Brian” and “Anne Marie” respectively).

In or about August 2006, Edward J. McNierney, Sr. (“Edward Sr.”) was admitted to Valley Hospital and received an emergency tracheotomy. Edward Sr.’s long struggle with emphysema was in its final stage. [Mary Ellen Certification, Sept. 21, 2006, ¶2–3.] At this time, Ann was involved in a “multi-jurisdictional car chase which required the Police to literally run into her vehicle to stop her”, thereby demonstrating she could no longer care for herself. [Mary Ellen Cert., ¶5.] Ann was thereafter hospitalized at the Bergen Regional Medical Center (“BRMC”) on August 31, 2006. The plaintiffs certified Ann suffered from delusions.

On October 3, 2006, Kevin P. Kelly, Esq. (“Kelly”), counsel for plaintiffs, filed a verified complaint and order to show cause why Ann should not be declared incapacitated. Robert J. Maloof, Esq. (“Maloof”) was appointed as counsel for Ann. Submitted with the order to show cause were certifications of consent from all the siblings waiving their rights to serve as guardians of Ann in favor of Mary Ellen and

Edward, as well as reports of two doctors who examined Ann and found she was unfit and unable to govern herself or manage her affairs.

On October 25, 2006, Patrick filed an answer and a response to Mary Ellen’s certification. In same, Patrick revoked his earlier consent to the plaintiffs serving as guardians asserting Mary Ellen made many false statements in her certification. He additionally requested he be considered as the guardian. According to Patrick’s opposition, he was concerned about his siblings being named guardian as Edward had had a “drunk driving incident and [was required] to attend Alcoholics Anonymous meetings.” In addition, Patrick stated “Edward’s graduation from college was not in good academic standing, (with a final Grade Point Average of approx. 1.95), [and] I was concerned about his ability to understand the duties and limitations of guardianship.” [Patrick’s Answer, Pg. 19–20.] As noted, Edward is now 52. Furthermore, Patrick was concerned with Mary Ellen being guardian as she had apparently received a loan from Ann to open a flower store which subsequently failed resulting in litigation between mother and daughter.

On November 9, 2006, Maloof submitted a report acknowledging Ann was incapacitated and recommending a guardian ad litem be appointed to determine who should serve as guardian.

By way of new counsel Lan Hoang, Esq. (“Hoang”) of the then Gibbons, Del Deo, Dolan, Griffinger & Vecchione (“Gibbons”), on November 13, 2006, the plaintiffs submitted certifications in response to Patrick’s answer and assertions. Counsel asserted Ann should be declared incapacitated; the plaintiffs should be named as co-guardians, not Patrick; and the appointment of a guardian ad litem was an unnecessary expense as the plaintiffs “are the most appropriate individuals to serve as Mrs. McNierney’s guardians.”

On November 22, 2006, the parties signed a consent order declaring Ann incapacitated and appointing Mary Ellen and Edward as temporary guardians, posting bond in the amount of $500,000, pending the return of the final judgment for guardianship. The same permitted the plaintiffs immediate authority to relocate Ann from BRMC to Brighton Gardens (“Brighton”). Final judgment was thereafter executed on December 4, 2006 declaring Ann incapacitated and appointing the plaintiffs as her guardians.

The final judgment, in relevant part, provided:

- The plaintiffs are to serve as co-guardians over the person and property of Ann, posting bond in the amount of $500,000;
- The co-guardians shall have all powers vested pursuant to N.J.S.A. 3B:12-48;
- All prior powers of attorney are revoked;
- The co-guardians shall advise Brian, Patrick and Anne Marie of all significant developments with respect to Ann.

On December 23, 2006, Edward Sr. passed away. His assets passed to Ann. Letters of Guardianship were issued to the plaintiffs on January 16, 2007.

Ann was thereafter relocated to Brighton, an assisted living facility. Brighton came under new management on or about December 1, 2008, and was renamed Emeritus.²

Thereafter, although unsupported by affidavits or certifications, former counsel for plaintiffs indicates the staff at Brighton provided the plaintiffs with “numerous reports . . . that their mother became agitated and upset during and after visits from her son, Patrick.” [Complaint, March 8, 2010, ¶6.] As a result, plaintiffs decided, at the recommendation of staff at Brighton, an aide should supervise Patrick’s visits.

Although the plaintiffs purportedly attempted to contact Patrick to set up a visitation schedule, according to them, he would not discuss this issue. Patrick contests this allegation stating his then attorney, Donald McHugh, Esq. (“McHugh”) had discussed his visitation schedule with Brighton’s counsel, Brian Rath, Esq. (“Rath”) and plaintiffs’ counsel, Hoang. The plaintiffs nonetheless decided to schedule an aide on Sunday afternoons, when Patrick apparently regularly visited, and communicated the same to Brighton and Patrick.

Brighton thereafter advised the plaintiffs Patrick was disregarding the visitation schedule and was acting strangely during his visits, including waking up Ann at 11:00 pm. The staff purported they felt threatened by Patrick’s behavior. Plaintiffs provide neither affidavits nor information as to who made these suggestions or the nature of the purported threats. [Patrick’s Answer, Pg. 12.] Patrick denies the allegations.

On December 29, 2007, Mary Ellen updated Ann’s “Generalized Service Plan” at Brighton to indicate “Ann’s Son Patrick can not visit her anymore, if he does we are to call the authorities to have him removed.” [OOIE Brief, Exhibit A.] Apparently, in the spring of 2008 the plaintiffs advised Patrick he could no longer visit their mother unless he abided by the visitation schedule and supervised visits. Patrick refused to do the same and thus was denied access by Brighton.
On four occasions that spring, Brighton staff contacted the police regarding Patrick’s unauthorized visits. According to Patrick, the police did not acknowledge either the facility or the guardians as having authority to bar Patrick’s visitation. Consequently, he was not arrested on any of these occasions. Thereafter, Patrick’s counsel, McHugh, sent a letter to the Paramus Police Department, Brighton, and Michelle Santiago, an employee at Brighton, stating “if the current unwarranted threats are followed through, I must and will respond in kind”, referencing the department’s statement to Patrick heralding his arrest for criminal trespass. [Patrick’s Answer, Pg. 38; May 21, 2008 Letter to Paramus Police Department.]

Patrick contacted the New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services (“DHSS”) on or about April 28, 2008, to report he was denied visitation. DHSS thereafter contacted Brighton to gather more information on the effects of Patrick’s visits on Ann. DHSS purportedly told Brighton the guardians had the authority to determine access to the ward. Patrick was also advised by Brighton and the Paramus Police he would be arrested for criminal trespassing if he continued to come to the facility without arranging for an aide to supervise the visit.

On or about May 13, 2008, Patrick filed a complaint with the Office of the Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly (“OOIE”) stating Brighton “was violating Ann F. McNierney’s right to visitors of her own choosing.”[Complaint, ¶4.] McHugh

3 In their brief, the OOIE provides “investigation was opened . . . after we received a complaint alleging that Mrs. McNierney’s co-guardians, Ed McNierney and Mary Ellen Hannigan, were restricting visitation with Mrs. McNierney by her son Patrick McNierney, in part, by instructing Brighton Gardens at Paramus . . . to prohibit Patrick from visiting his mother.” [OOIE Brief, Pg. 4.]
contacted Brighton on or about May 16, 2008 and was advised again of the plaintiffs’ full authority concerning visitation.

According to counsel for the OOIE, the OOIE investigated the matter from May to September meeting with Ann, Patrick, Edward and Mary Ellen, as well as reviewing the facility records and speaking with staff. [OOIE Brief, Pg. 4.]

On September 16, 2008, Field Investigator Frederick Golz (“Golz”) apparently advised Brighton he had investigated the matter and for the next sixty days Patrick was entitled to supervised visits on Sundays from 1–5 p.m. The visits were to take place in a common space with a personal aide paid for by the guardians, in an effort to determine whether Patrick’s visits were disruptive to Ann. [OOIE Brief, Pg. 5.] According to plaintiffs, Golz stated the plaintiffs, as guardians, lacked the authority to restrict visitors. This period was set to end November 15, 2008.

Golz’s report was issued to the plaintiffs, Patrick and Grace Cosgrove, the administrator at Brighton. [Orlowksi Certification, May 25, 2010, ¶13.] Plaintiffs assert they did not receive any communications from the OOIE after November. The OOIE provides from November 2008 until February 2009 its findings and recommendations were conveyed “to all interested parties.” [OOIE Brief, Pg. 5.]

After the 60 days ended, Brighton permitted Patrick unlimited visits, as per the OOIE’s decision. The “OOIE concluded that Mrs. McNierney welcomed the visits of her son Patrick (though she was sometimes confused as to who he was), and that she had enjoyed a close relationship with Patrick while still residing in her marital home.” [OOIE Brief, Pg 4–5.] Patrick’s visits were found not disruptive to Ann or the other residents at Brighton. [OOIE Brief, Pg. 5.] The OOIE apparently told Brighton to defer to them, as opposed to the guardians, on visitation issues. Brighton thereafter refused to provide the plaintiffs information on Patrick’s visits and Ann’s reactions to the same.

Plaintiffs provide, on November 23, 2008, as noted by the staff, Patrick visited Ann despite her stating she did not want to see him. For the days following the visit Ann seemed especially agitated and apparently told staff she had been assaulted and raped. On November 25, Ann was brought to the emergency room for unrelated health reasons. Brighton staff failed to report her above mentioned statements to the hospital staff.

Plaintiffs voiced concerns “they could no longer effectively monitor the effect of Patrick’s visits on their mother’s well-being and make decisions regarding visitation in her best interests.” [Complaint, ¶16.] As such, plaintiffs contacted Ombudsman Deborah Branch (“Branch”) in or around December 2008. They were then told to contact Assistant Public Advocate Jo Astrid Glading (“Glading”) which they did in early 2009.

The plaintiffs emailed John Donadio (“Donadio’) the Executive Director of Brighton on February 21, 2009 providing a background as to Ann’s recent hospital stay and medical conclusions. Importantly, the email set forth:

Mom was also seen by another psychiatrist. He confirmed that mom suffers from severe dementia and is not lucid and cannot express clear thoughts or make rational choices. We continue to give due to [sic] all of mom’s expressed preferences as we decide all matters relating to her and continue to take all 6 psychiatric evaluations we have of mom’s level of functioning into consideration when doing so. We allow mom to make as many decisions as possible while protecting her from the possible harmful effects of bad decisions she does not fully understand.

Re: IMO Estate of Ann F. McNierney, incapacitated
Docket No. P-89-10

Should you wish to challenge our authority as General Guardians, attempt to override our instructions and act in our place by creating your own visitation schedules, please do so in the Court to which we are fully answerable in our duty as General Guardians.

The plaintiffs also outlined visitation restrictions discussed below.

According to the OOIE, however, on February 21, 2009 Mary Ellen also emailed the then-Ombudsman Branch providing the co-guardians had decided to limit all visitation to Sundays between 1–4 p.m. and forbid anything be left with Ann, including photos and gifts, without their consent. Those who did not abide by these restrictions would be asked to leave Brighton. The email also states any challenges to the co-guardians “authority as General Guardians” should be addressed in court. [OOIE Brief, Exhibit C.]

On February 24, 2009, the plaintiffs wrote a letter to Glading complaining about the investigation conducted by the OOIE. Glading apparently referred the plaintiffs to Gwen Orlowski (“Orlowski”), who was then Director of the Division of Elder Advocacy at the Department of the Public Advocate (and currently is the Ombudsman).4 Orlowski reviewed the investigatory file from March 2009 to July 2009.5 [OOIE Brief, Pg. 6.]

On or about March 15, 2009, Branch told Brighton to follow her directions, not the guardians’. [OOIE Brief, Exhibit C.] Branch purportedly had not been in contact with the plaintiffs nor did she respond to their email dated February 21, 2009. [OOIE Brief, Exhibit C.]

4 According to the OOIE’s brief, Orlowski was appointed Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly on or about December 22, 2009.
5 The brief provides “March 2010 and July 2010”. However, as at the time of this decision July 2010 has yet to arrive, the court assumes this was a typographical error and 2009 was intended.
Plaintiffs also reported the alleged assault and rape to the OOIE. With respect to this allegation, the OOIE responded by letter on May 1, 2009 stating there was insufficient evidence to verify the charges. Plaintiffs provide “[r]egardless of the truth of their mother’s allegation . . . their mother’s behavior following Patrick’s visit further demonstrates that their concern about the visits on their mother’s emotional well being is warranted.” [Complaint, ¶14.] According to plaintiffs, Ann’s anxiety and agitation medication was increased at this time.

Patrick asserts any allegation Ann did not want to see him is either false or a misunderstanding based on a staff member mishearing or misconstruing his conversations with his mother. He adds it is “very odd” of the plaintiffs to make allegations of assault and rape without any evidence to justify the same. [Patrick’s Answer, Pg. 43.]

On July 31, 2009, plaintiffs received a letter from Orlowski writing on behalf of Glading. Orlowski indicated she had reviewed “their” original complaint from May 13, 2008 and the Public Advocate’s interpretation of In re M.R., 135 N.J. 155 (1994). She agreed with the findings of the OOIE that plenary guardians lack the authority to make decisions regarding the visitation rights of their ward and indicated the plaintiffs would have to make application to this court to restrict the visits of Patrick.

On October 12, 2009, Anne was sent to Valley Hospital because of abdominal pain. She was discharged soon thereafter and it was recommended she receive physical and occupational therapy, services not provided at Brighton. As such, on October 20, 2009, Ann was relocated to Van Dyck Manor Nursing Home (“Van Dyck”) to receive those services. Ann was to reside in a unit specifically for those who suffer memory impairments. However, no special units were available upon her arrival. As such, Ann currently has a twenty-four hour live-in aide until such a time that she can be transferred.

6 The court notes, according to what has been provided by counsel, Patrick filed a complaint on May 13, 2008, not the plaintiffs.

On March 8, 2010, then counsel on behalf of the plaintiffs, Amy E. Duff, Esq. (“Duff”) filed a one-count verified complaint seeking instructions regarding the scope of the guardianship. This application is the focal point of this decision and from which much of the above stated information was gleaned. Specifically, plaintiffs request, although prospectively, clarity as to whether a plenary guardian has the authority to make decisions regarding visitation, to ascertain if they must defer to the OOIE’s direction should it become an issue at Van Dyck. Plaintiffs assert the OOIE position is contrary to N.J.S.A. 3B:12-24.1(a), N.J.S.A. 3B:12-48, and N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57.

On April 12, 2010, Patrick filed an extensive objection to plaintiffs’ request for instructions. To begin, Patrick asserts the complaint was filed in retaliation for his questioning Anne Marie whether the fees paid to plaintiffs’ counsel for the initial guardianship application had been returned to the estate as they were “subsequently rejected by the court as being excessive.” Patrick recounts the final judgment did not provide for fees to Gibbons and Anne Marie had provided a check, from Edward Sr.’s account, for $40,000 to counsel when the action was initiated. Patrick adds Ann’s funds have been used to support the current application and if they were not approved by the court, he requests the court order they be returned.7

7 As Patrick’s requests were not presented by cross application, they will not be formally addressed. R. 1:6-2(a); R. 4:52.
With respect to the substantive issues in question, Patrick asserts the guardians were not given the authority to deny access to Ann in the final judgment. Furthermore, Brighton’s “Residents’ Rights”; the OOIE’s “Nursing Home Residents’ Bill of Rights” pursuant to N.J.S.A. 30:13-5; and the “Manual for Guardians” (“Manual”) issued by the Supreme Court Judiciary-Surrogates Liaison Committee, all provide Ann has the right to choose her visitors. Patrick reads the Manual to provide for the payment of legal fees from the ward’s funds only by court approval. He adds, as no order provided for fees, these payments were not lawfully provided.

Finally, Patrick seeks the court order: (1) all legal fees paid to Hinkle and Gibbons be reimbursed to Ann, (2) the cost of a 24 hour live-in aide be refunded to Ann as this expense was unnecessary and would have been avoided if she had stayed at Brighton, and (3) the cost of the aid in 2008, to supervise Patrick’s visits, be returned to Ann’s funds. Maloof provided his report to the court on April 21, 2010. In same he concludes:

> [P]roofs to support either position are lacking . . . the real issue is the ward’s right to visitation with her immediate family. No medical documentation is available to shed light on the question whether Ann McNierney has the mental capacity to make a rational choice on the issue of visitation; nor is there evident a qualified professional opinion as to the impact of visitations by family members on Ann’s physical and mental condition.

However, Maloof acknowledges Ann has expressed a desire to be visited by her children. Since Maloof’s obligation is to advocate for Anne’s preferences, not her best interest, he suggests the visits be permitted, as well as the appointment of a guardian ad litem.
Maloof apparently engaged in several conversations with the Ombudsman Orlowski who allegedly provided “her office has no authority to issue an order regarding the right of any individual to visit an elderly ward that is institutionalized in a facility such as a nursing home or an assisted living compound. . . . No order was issued to that facility but merely recommendations.” [Maloof Report, Pg. 6.]

The OOIE filed a notice of appearance on April 21, 2010. This court responded on April 23, 2010, providing the Ombudsman may submit a brief on the issue of whether guardians have the authority to determine visitation, as opposed to whether these co-guardians may limit Patrick’s visits.

By way of a letter dated April 28, 2010, S. Paul Prior, Esq. (“Prior”) of Hinkle indicated the plaintiffs terminated the firm’s representation and shall proceed in a pro se capacity. The court thereafter informed counsel he must submit a motion to withdraw. Such a motion was submitted and set to return on May 28, 2010. Prior to this date, although counsel failed to notify the court, Anne Burris (“Burris”) of Lindabury, McCormick, Estabrook & Cooper, P.C. (“Lindabury”) was substituted for Prior.

On April 29, 2010, Audrey L. Anderson, Esq. (“Anderson”), General Counsel for the Department of the Public Advocate, Division of Elder Advocacy, Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly, requested this court adjourn the matter to allow the OOIE adequate time to brief the relevant issue. Anderson received the consent of all parties involved. The matter was rescheduled to be heard on June 18, 2010.

Patrick filed a response to Maloof’s report on April 30, 2009. Patrick contests or comments on several remarks made by Maloof, as well as the letter attached as an exhibit written by Orlowski. Of relevance, Patrick states the plaintiffs have gifted “significant funds” from his parents’ joint account and he was excluded from these distributions, contrary to that which was reported by the plaintiffs. He states the Ombudsman’s role, as defined on the Office’s website, is to protect the elderly “by intervening in or instituting proceedings involving their interests” and thus is “better prepared to protect the interests of our mother than either of the guardians by employing qualified, licensed professionals.” [Patrick Letter, April 29, 2010, Pg. 4.] Patrick also points out despite plaintiffs’ assertions of ample evidence of the effect of Patrick’s visits on Ann, none has been provided nor are there certifications or affidavits to that effect. As such, Patrick concludes by requesting a guardian ad litem be appointed to work with the Ombudsman and prevent continuous and excessive legal fees from being required.

From March 2010 to May 2010, Orlowski was invited by the plaintiffs to visit Ann at Van Dyck. On May 17, 2010 such a visit was made, along with Elizabeth Speidel, Esq. (“Speidel”), an Assistant Deputy Public Advocate for the Office of the Ombudsman. Also present was Ann’s nurse, Rita Broni (“Broni”), Mary Ellen, and Mary Ellen’s attorney Sergio D. Simoes, Esq. (Simoes”). [Reply Brief, Pg. 4.] Ann was interviewed for 20-25 minutes. According to plaintiffs’ counsel, Orlowski never interviewed Patrick nor observed any of his visits with Ann.\(^8\) Ann was apparently very fragile and confused during the May meeting believing her deceased husband had been in the room and her deceased parents lived across the hallway. Several other incidents are reported as well. [Reply Brief, Pg. 4.]

\(^8\) When questioned during oral argument whether the Ombudsman had purposefully refrained from advising the court as to the nature of the May 17 visit to Ann, Speidel indicated, at the guardians’ request and as a result of the OOIE’s extensive involvement in this matter, the current Ombudsman felt it important to visit Ann. When challenged, counsel added it was not a “fact-finding mission” but just a “visit”.

On May 28, 2010, counsel on behalf of the OOIE submitted its brief in response to plaintiffs’ application. Presumably based on their earlier investigation and their meeting with Ann, the OOIE provides:

[A] general guardian cannot make the broad determination that he or she will be making all decisions as to visitation without demonstrating with clear and convincing evidence that the ward does not have the capacity to make that decision herself at this time and that there is no evidence as to what decision she would make if she had capacity.

[OOIE Brief, Pg. 3-4.]

Counsel for the plaintiffs filed the reply on June 1, 2010 along with the certifications of Mary Ellen and Broni, a Certified Nursing Assistant and Ann’s primary caretaker. Broni states Patrick’s visits are often disruptive to Ann as he appears to not understand the extent of her memory loss and constantly tries to remind her of things. [Broni Certification, ¶7.] Specifically, Broni recounts Patrick gave Ann the phone to talk to strangers, told Ann he would never marry or have kids because Ann and Edward Sr. always fought, and reminded Ann her husband was dead. [Rita Certification, ¶7–10.] All these situations resulted in Ann being very upset for several days, at least according to Broni.

Counsel for the plaintiffs asserts the co-guardians “have always endeavored to elicit from Ms. McNierney what her wishes would be, and thereafter, act accordingly, when such wishes are not adverse to her well being or in her best interests.” [Reply Brief, Pg. 5.] She adds,

Ms. McNierney however, is unable to make decision or judgment on her own or for her own best interest or safety. Thus, the objective of this application is not to permanently restrict Patrick from access to his mother, but to clarify the authority of the co-guardians to monitor, oversee, and schedule visitations so that disruptions to her are kept to a minimum and so that her treatment and care are preserved.

[Reply Brief, Pg. 5.]

As such, counsel seeks to confirm the co-guardians’ authority over Ann’s visitation. Counsel posits this is a legal, not a factual determination, and thus despite Maloof’s suggestion, a guardian ad litem is improper; Patrick improperly relies on the Manual which is non-binding; the OOIE has exceeded its authority in stating the co-guardians cannot oversee visitation as they were established to investigate matters concerning health care facilities, not guardians and their wards.

On June 20, 2010, Patrick filed an unauthorized sur-reply. Making his way through the OOIE’s submissions, Patrick first states it does not appear Edward has counsel, but rather only Mary Ellen is represented by Lindabury. Second, he argues Broni is not an expert with respect to determining “harmful behavior” but rather a lay person. In addition, Broni is paid by the plaintiffs and thus implies her assertions would obviously be consistent with theirs.

Patrick counters Broni’s allegations of being disruptive by arguing she lacks the qualifications to evaluate his ability to understand his mother’s condition or her condition. He adds several of her statements are “clearly and utterly false, rais[ing] serious questions as to her competency to serve as an aide for my mother.” [Patrick Surreply, June 10, 2010, Pg. 6, ¶9.] Patrick concludes stating plaintiffs’ allegations are not verifiable by any expert witness and “the reliance by Anne Burris to establish a causal nexus based solely on a lay witness, and not an expert witness, opens the door to disciplinary action against Anne Burris.” [Patrick Surreply, Pg. 8.] Accordingly, Patrick requests legal fees to Lindabury be denied.

Oral argument was entertained on June 18, 2010. During colloquy with Speidel, counsel for the OOIE, several positions were clarified. Speidel indicated the letters to Brighton, Patrick and the plaintiffs, in response to the OOIE’s investigation, were intended as recommendations, and not as directives. When questioned as to whether this position was made clear to the relevant parties, counsel responded “[t]he way our Office works is we don’t have any governing authority over facilities.” The following inquiries were also made:

Question: “Do you now wish to be heard for the proposition your client has and had no authority to make a direction that the facility should follow your suggestion or your directive?”
Answer: “Our role, at all times, is to advocate for the position of a resident. So, what we were doing in that case, was advocating on behalf of the resident and her rights to visitation.”
Question: “And would that role encompass a criticism of a guardian’s actions?”
Answer: “Yes. There are times that it would.”
Question: “And would it encompass the authority to direct the guardian to do x or y?”
Answer: “I do not believe we have the authority to direct the guardian to do anything.”
Question “Are you satisfied then that your client made clear that it had no authority to direct the guardian to do anything?”
Answer: “Yes. …”
Question: “Would you agree with me, Ms. Speidel, that at least from the papers, it appears the Brighton facility understood your ‘suggestion’ as a direction?”
Answer: “It seems as though they [Brighton] viewed it as a direction.”
Speidel admitted, multiple voices speaking with purported authority created confusion in this case. She added, however, her “Office does not see itself as any substitution for the court.” Importantly, the following colloquy took place:

Question: “Is it your position, or your client’s position, that it has the right to overrule the directives of the guardian as it relates to visitation.”
Answer: “No. Our role is as advocate for the resident. And we do not feel we can override what the guardian says. If there are issues between somebody who comes to us and the guardian, than that has to be resolved with the court.”
Question: “So whether it is federal law that you seek to review, or state law, you view your client’s role as either advisory, as a mediator, as a facilitator, but not as a director as it pertains to the guardian’s role concerning visitation.”
Answer: “Correct.”

9 Examining this codification, there appears to be no section “a”. In addition, N.J.S.A. 3B:12-12 only covers the “Jurisdiction of surrogate to appoint guardians for minors”. This definition, nonetheless, is provided in the definitions section of the provisions of the New Jersey Department of Human Services, Division of Development Disabilities.

10 In 1997, the New Jersey Legislature amended N.J.S.A. 3B:1-2. The amendment replaced the term “mental incompetent” with “incapacitated person” and applied same to the entire statute. 1997 N.J. Laws 379. As such, when not referencing a quotation, the proper term “incapacitated person” shall be utilized.
There are several provisions of the New Jersey Statutes Annotated that address the authority and responsibility of a plenary guardian. To begin, N.J.S.A. 3B:12-24.1, on the “[d]etermination by the court of need for guardianship services”, states:

General Guardian. If the court finds that an individual is incapacitated as defined in N.J.S.A. 3B:1-2 and is without capacity to govern himself or manage his affairs, the court may appoint a general guardian who shall exercise all rights and powers of the incapacitated person. The general guardian of the estate shall furnish a bond conditioned as required by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 3B:15-1 et seq., unless the guardian is relieved from doing so by the court.

(Emphasis added.)

N.J.S.A. 3B:12-48 addresses the power a guardian may exercise stating:

A guardian of the estate of . . . an incapacitated person has all of the powers conferred upon the guardian by law and the provisions of this chapter except as limited by the judgment. These powers shall specifically include the right to file or defend any litigation on behalf of the ward, including but not limited to, the right to bring an action for divorce or annulment on any grounds authorized by law.

(Emphasis added.)

The instant judgment provided the plaintiffs were appointed to serve as co-guardians over the person and property of Ann, were to post bond in the amount of $500,000, and had “all powers vested pursuant to N.J.S.A. 3B:12-48.” Thus, the order provided no limitations to the plaintiffs’ general guardianship.

N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57 elaborates providing the powers and duties of a guardian of the person:

f. [A] guardian of the person of a ward shall exercise authority over matters relating to the rights and best interest of the ward’s personal needs, only to the extent adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction. In taking or forbearing from any action affecting the personal needs of a ward, a guardian shall give due regard to the preferences of the ward, if known to the guardian or otherwise ascertainable upon reasonable inquiry. To the extent that it is consistent with the terms of any order by a court of competent jurisdiction, the guardian shall:

(3) provide for the care, comfort and maintenance and, whenever appropriate, the education and training of the ward;

(4) subject to the provisions of subsection c. of N.J.S.3B:12-56, give or withhold any consents or approvals that may be necessary to enable the ward to receive medical or other professional care, counsel, treatment or service;

... g. In the exercise of the foregoing powers, the guardian shall encourage the ward to participate with the guardian in the decision-making process to the maximum extent of the ward's ability in order to encourage the ward to act on his own behalf whenever he is able to do so, and to develop or regain higher capacity to make decisions in those areas in which he is in need of guardianship services, to the maximum extent possible.

[(Emphasis added).]

[C]larify that a guardian of the person of a ward is required to exercise authority over matters relating to the rights and best interest of a ward's personal needs only to the extent ordered by the court. This section provides that a guardian is required to give due regard to the preferences of the ward, if known to the guardian or otherwise ascertainable upon reasonable inquiry. This section also provides that to the extent that it is consistent with the terms of any order by a court, the guardian shall: take custody; provide for visitation; provide for the care, comfort, maintenance and education; provide for necessary consents or approvals; provide for possessions; institute any necessary actions; develop a plan of supportive services; and receive money and tangible personal property.

Although the guardian has the authority over matters relating to the rights and best interests of the ward, as stated above, this is guided by a ward’s self-determination or rather, the guardian should defer to the preferences of its ward if not contrary to the ward’s best interest.

Incompetent persons have a common-law right of self-determination, the same as that of competent persons, except that the right of self-determination of adjudicated incompetents must be balanced by the court with concern for their best interests. In re M.R., 135 N.J. 155, 167 (1994). This is because an adjudicated incompetent, “like a minor child, is a ward of the state, and the state’s parens patriae power supports the authority of its courts to allow decisions to be made for an incompetent that serve the incompetent's best interests.” In re Conroy, 98 N.J. 321, 364–65 (1985). The decision maker’s responsibility is to carefully balance the incompetent’s right to self-determination with considerations of best interests and the protection of the incompetent’s person and property. See M.R., supra, 135 N.J. at 167.

The incompetent’s right to self-determination must be preserved to the extent possible. Some elderly nursing home patients, who are generally incompetent and unable to govern their own affairs, have lucid periods during which they can once again communicate their wishes clearly. See Conroy, supra, 98 N.J. at 382. Even those who are generally incompetent vary widely in their degree of alertness and in their ability to communicate. Thus, a patient may be competent to make a decision regarding a course of medical treatment “even if the patient previously had been adjudicated an incompetent and had a general guardian appointed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 3B:12-25.” Id.
If a patient is not competent to make a particular decision, the guardian has a duty to determine subjectively, to the extent possible, the course an incompetent would have taken regarding a particular decision if competent and apply a substituted judgment or subjective test. Conroy, supra, at 361–64. If some trustworthy evidence of an incompetent's intent can be found, but not enough to fully determine subjective intent, this can be taken into account in determining the incompetent’s best interests, and a limited-objective test should be used. M.R., supra, 135 N.J. at 167; Conroy, supra, 98 N.J. at 365-66.

The above provides the groundwork to evaluate the current question presented. However, as the court sees the question presented, it need only determine whether “a” guardian may control the visitation rights of its ward, not whether “these” guardians may do so under the facts as presented.

Patient’s Bill of Rights

In 1976 the New Jersey Legislature determined “that the well-being of nursing home residents in the State of New Jersey requires a delineation of the responsibilities of nursing homes and a declaration of a bill of rights for such residents.” N.J.S.A. 30:13-1. N.J.S.A. 30:13-5 discusses the rights of nursing home residents. Specifically, it states “[e]very resident of a nursing home shall . . . [h]ave the right to unrestricted communication, including personal visitation with any persons of his choice, at any reasonable hour.” N.J.S.A. 30:13-5(h). The legislative findings in support of the statute state “that the well-being of nursing home residents in the State of New Jersey requires a delineation of the responsibilities of nursing homes and a declaration of a bill of rights for such residents.” N.J.S.A. 30:13-1.
Manual for Guardians

In the 1990’s, Chief Justice Robert N. Wilentz requested recommendations from the Judiciary-Surrogates Liaison Committee Concerning Guardianships ("JSLCCG") to better address guardianship matters. The February 1995 “Report of the Supreme Court Committee on Court Appointment of Fiduciaries” discusses a report issued by the JSLCCG recommending training materials be provided by the court to guardians at the time of their appointment. As of April 4, 2004 a “manual” was created for this purpose.\(^\text{11}\)

Office of the Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly

In January of 2006, the Legislature reconstituted the Department of the Public Advocate ("DPA") and the Division of Elder Advocacy ("DEA") See \textit{N.J.S.A.} 52:27EE-2(a). The Office of the Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly ("OOIE"), which was already in existence, was then subsumed within the DEA. See \textit{N.J.S.A.} 52:27EE-61 to -65. [OOIE Brief, Pg. 1.]\(^\text{12}\) The current hierarchy is as follows: the OOIE is a part of the DEA, which is a division of the DPA.\(^\text{13}\)

\(^\text{12}\) Orlowski certifies the DPA, as per \textit{N.J.S.A.} 52:27EE-5(f), has the authority to “issue subpoenas to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses or the production of books, papers and other documents.” Citing to \textit{N.J.S.A.} 52:27EE-63(a), (c), -64(a)–(c), Orlowski implicates certain authority as a result of her position as Director of Elder Advocacy. Specifically, to “represent the public interest in such administrative and court proceedings as the Public Advocate deems shall best serve the interests of elderly adults.” [Orlowski Certification, May 25, 2010, ¶ 5.] The Court notes, however, as of December 22, 2009, Orlowski was appointed the Ombudman for the Institutionalized Elderly and no longer is the Director of the Division of Elder Advocacy.

Orlowski notes “public interest” is defined as "an interest or right arising from the Constitution, decisions of court, common law or other laws of the United States or of this State inhering in the citizens of this State or in a broad class of such citizens.” \textit{N.J.S.A.} 52:27EE-12.

Finally Orlowski states the Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly is charged under the Federal Older American Act, \textit{42 U.S.C.} 3058g(a)(1)(E) (2000). This position is called a “State Long-Term Care Ombudsman”. The functions include:

\begin{itemize}
  \item[(i)] are made by, or on behalf of, residents; and \item[(ii)] relate to action, inaction, or decisions, that may adversely affect the health, safety, welfare, or rights of the residents \end{itemize}
(including the welfare and rights of the residents with respect to the appointment and activities of guardians and representative payees), of—

(I) providers, or representatives of providers, of long-term care services;
(II) public agencies; or
(III) health and social service agencies;

(B) provide services to assist the residents in protecting the health, safety, welfare, and rights of the residents;
(C) inform the residents about means of obtaining services provided by providers or agencies described in subparagraph (A)(ii) or services described in subparagraph (B);
(D) ensure that the residents have regular and timely access to the services provided through the Office and that the residents and complainants receive timely responses from representatives of the Office to complaints;
(E) represent the interests of the residents before governmental agencies and seek administrative, legal, and other remedies to protect the health, safety, welfare, and rights of the residents;
(F) provide administrative and technical assistance to entities designated under paragraph (5) to assist the entities in participating in the program;

13 The DEA, according to N.J.S.A. 52:27EE-63:

[M]ay protect the interests of the elderly by:

a. intervening in or instituting proceedings involving the interests of the elderly before any department, commission, agency, or board of the State leading to an administrative adjudication or administrative rule as defined in section 2 of P.L.1968, c.410 (C.52:14B-2);

b. instituting litigation on behalf of the elderly when authorized to do so by the Public Advocate; and

c. commencing negotiation, mediation, or alternative dispute resolution prior to, or in lieu of, the initiation of any litigation.

N.J.S.A. 52:27EE-64 provides for the “additional powers and duties” of the DEA stating:
Codified in 1977, N.J.S.A. 52:27G-1 provides:

[T]here should be established as an agency of the State Government the Office of the Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly, to receive, investigate and resolve complaints concerning certain health care facilities serving the elderly, and to initiate actions to secure, preserve and promote the health, safety and welfare, and the civil and human rights, of the elderly patients, residents and clients of such facilities.

The Office’s objective is “that of promoting, advocating and insuring, as a whole and in particular cases, the adequacy of the care received, and the quality of life experienced, by elderly patients, residents and clients of facilities within this State.” N.J.S.A. 52:27G-6. The Office is to investigate, respond and resolve any complaints; a. The Division of Elder Advocacy shall report to the Governor and the Legislature on recommendations that will further the State's ability to secure, preserve, and promote the health, safety, and welfare of New Jersey's elderly.

b. The Division of Elder Advocacy shall have the authority to hold a public hearing on the subject of any investigation or study. The division shall hear testimony from agency and program representatives, the public in general, and such others as may be deemed appropriate.
c. The Division of Elder Advocacy shall have access to the records and facilities of every agency, funded entity, or other recipient of public funds to the extent that any such records and facilities are related to the expenditure of public funds, provided that the division complies with all privacy and confidentiality protections applicable to those records and facilities, notwithstanding any contrary provision of law. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Division of Elder Advocacy shall have access to any facility or institution, whether public or private, offering health or health-related services for the institutionalized elderly which is subject to regulation, visitation, inspection or supervision by any government agency, provided such access is permitted by State or federal law. All agencies shall cooperate with the Division of Elder Advocacy and, when requested, shall provide specific information in the form requested.
however the statute refers specifically to complaints against facilities and/or their employees, not individual persons or guardians. N.J.S.A. 52:27G-7.

Importantly, it is the responsibility of the Office to:

c. [R]ecommend to the relevant government agency changes in the rules and regulations adopted or proposed by such government agency, which do or may adversely affect the health, safety, welfare or civil or human rights of any patient, resident or client in a facility.

h. [R]eport to the Governor and the Legislature on or before September 30 of each year, which report shall summarize its activities for the preceding fiscal year, document the significant problems in the systems of care and services for the elderly, indicate and analyze the trends in such systems of care and services, and set forth any opinions or recommendations which will further the State's capacity in resolving complaints, encouraging quality care and ensuring the health, safety, welfare or civil and human rights of elderly patients, residents and clients of facilities, including suggestions or recommendations for legislative consideration and for changes in the policy or rules and regulations of government agencies. The annual report shall be available to the public.

DHSS

The Health Care Facilities Planning Act, N.J.S.A. 26:2H, provides for the responsibilities and regulations health care facilities, including assisted-living facilities, must provide their patients. The “Declaration of Public Policy” generally provides:

[T]he State Department of Health shall have the central responsibility for the development and administration of the State's policy with respect to health planning, hospital and related health care services and health care facility cost containment programs, and all public and private institutions, whether State, county, municipal, incorporated or not incorporated, serving principally as residential health care facilities, nursing or maternity homes or as facilities for the prevention, diagnosis, or treatment of human disease, pain, injury, deformity or physical condition, shall be subject to the provisions of this act.

[N.J.S.A. 26:2H-1.]

Although a patient’s rights to visitation do not appear to be specifically codified, the rights of a domestic partner to visit are explicitly provided inferring domestic partners are entitled to equal rights under the law as a spouse or familial relation. As such, this codification may provide a useful parallel to the facts of this case, regarding access to a parent. It states:

a. A health care facility . . . shall allow a patient's domestic partner . . . the children of the patient's domestic partner, and the domestic partner of the patient's parent or child to visit, unless one of the following conditions is met:
   (1) No visitors are allowed;
   (2) The health care facility reasonably determines that the presence of a particular visitor would endanger the health or safety of a patient, a member of the staff of the facility, or another visitor to the facility, or would significantly disrupt the operations of the facility; or
   (3) The patient has indicated to health care facility staff that the patient does not want the person to visit.

b. The provisions of subsection a. of this section shall not be construed as prohibiting a health care facility from otherwise establishing reasonable restrictions upon visitations, including restrictions upon the hours of visitation and number of visitors.

[N.J.S.A. 26:2H-12.22 (emphasis added).]

Analysis

To begin, the defendant asserts his right to visit his mother has been improperly restricted. Defendant correctly argues plaintiffs’ allegations of problems, abuse, agitation, and causing harm are speculative and “not supported by any verifiable facts or any statements from any witnesses. The mere allegation that our mother was seen agitated AFTER my visit to her does not create a causal nexus for the source of her agitation and my visit to her.” [Patrick’s Answer, Pg. 7, 25.] In addition, substantially all allegations made are based on apparent events which occurred over two years ago.

The court agrees with this proposition. However, the plaintiffs seek a very narrow determination. Specifically, clarity as to whether a plenary guardian has the authority to make decisions regarding visitation, particularly as to a ward living in a residential facility. The plaintiffs do not seek a court determination on the authority to restrict Patrick from visiting Ann. As such, although Patrick correctly points out evidence as to allegations of abuse and agitation appear to be lacking, these proofs are not required for the determination currently posed.

By way of summary, the DHSS was involved in this matter in April 2008 when Patrick contacted them to report he was denied visitation. The DHSS apparently thereafter contacted Brighton to gather information on Ann’s response to Patrick’s visits. The DHSS then told Brighton the guardian determines who may see the ward. Thereafter, no party makes mention of the DHSS’s involvement in this matter.

As discussed above, it appears the DHSS is to provide certain regulations for “the prevention, diagnosis, or treatment of human disease, pain, injury, deformity or physical condition.” N.J.S.A. 26:2H-1. Subsumed within this legislation are certain rights, including those specified above for domestic partners. However, beyond the same, while the DHSS may, though there is no evidence it has, dictate what an assisted living facility must do, this is not the relevant question. Rather, the focus here is on the extent of a plenary guardian’s authority. Thus, while a facility may be required to provide visitation, which is within the DHSS’s realm, whether the guardian may then restrict the same is not within its scope of authority.

Nonetheless, the DHSS maintained a limited role in this conflict. The input made, importantly, informed the facility the guardian has discretion concerning visitors.
Accordingly, a more detailed and evaluative discussion of the scope and extent of the DHSS’s authority are not necessary.

The OOIE, on the other hand, has become significantly involved in this family dispute. To begin, on or about May 13, 2008, Patrick filed a complaint with the OOIE again stating Brighton was violating Ann’s rights to choose her visitors. The OOIE then sent an investigator to Brighton who determined Patrick should have supervised visits for sixty days to evaluate the issue. The OOIE states this was merely a suggestion and not an order. However, the OOIE purportedly told Brighton to defer to their “suggestions” as opposed to the directions of the guardians.

The guardians were thereafter denied access to records of Ann’s visitors. Finding no reports had been made of the alleged assault and abuse of Ann, the plaintiffs reported the allegations to the OOIE in the winter of 2008. The OOIE responded by letter stating the OOIE lacked sufficient evidence to properly investigate the allegations.

McHugh states in his letter to plaintiffs’ counsel dated May 21, 2008 “[t]his is not a situation for the Ombudsman’s involvement since there is no allegation of abuse of the erlder by the institution which is the sole jurisdiction of the Ombudsman’s Office. They do not serve as a mediator in a family feud.” This court agrees.

In its brief, the OOIE argues “an individual retains her fundamental rights after she is adjudicated incapacitated and appointed a general guardian” and “when making a decision on behalf of a ward, the guardian is required to preserve the fundamental rights of the ward to the greatest extent possible.” The OOIE provides a guardian is appointed to assist and encourage but not to control a ward.14

Importantly, there are additional fundamental rights, counsel asserts, incapacitated individuals maintain such as the right to vote, see IMO Absentee Ballots Case by Five Residents of Trenton Psychiatric Hospital, 331 N.J. Super. 31 (App. Div. 2000) (holding voters who are involuntarily committed residents of a psychiatric hospital are presumed 14 For this proposition counsel cites to an unpublished opinion In re Goldemberg, No. BER-P-460-05, which was decided by this court on February 7, 2006. Rule 1:36-3 states “[n]o unpublished opinion shall constitute precedent or be binding upon any court.” For thoroughness alone, this court will briefly discuss Goldemberg.

In this opinion this court discussed the role and use of a limited guardianship to “protect the person while limiting the intrusion on the incapacitated person’s autonomy and independence.” It acknowledged:

Individuals like [the ward] suffering from dementia, may retain some competent mental functioning, such that their best interest might be better served by limited guardianship. The doctrine of the least restrictive alternate should be considered when an individual’s liberty interests are at issue, and where not contraindicated by health and safety concerns. This would permit each individual’s particular disability to be addressed, while respecting the individual’s right to the dignity of self determination.

[Internal citation omitted].]

Thus, it is recognized where a “limited” guardianship is in place, the incapacitated may still possess the competence to make certain decisions.

On the other hand, where there is a plenary guardianship, these rights are not necessarily preserved. This court found:

Incompetent persons have a common-law right of self-determination, the same as that of competent persons, except that the right of self-determination of the adjudicated incompetents must be balanced by the court with concern for their best interests...The decision maker’s responsibility is to carefully balance the incompetent’s right to self-determination with considerations of bests interests and the protection of the incompetent’s person and property.

Therefore, it appears, where best interests and self-determination align, the wishes of an incapacitated should be followed.
competent and therefore to challenge their votes requires a particularized showing of incompetence), and privacy rights, see In re Grady, 85 N.J. 235, 261 (1981) (finding sterilization of an incapacitated nineteen year old called for court intervention, as opposed to the parental guardians ability to decide alone). Lastly, the freedom of association is protected by the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution and applies to visits with family. Shaumbaugh v. Wolk, 302 N.J. Super. 380 (Ch. Div. 1996) (holding a hearing should be held to determine whether a mother, who was committed to a psychiatric unit, desires to be visited by her daughter where the daughter was restricted from visiting her by her step-father).

Understanding these rights and the balance with best interests, the Ombudsman further cites to the guardianship statute and the regard due to a ward’s preferences and involvement in the decision-making process “to the maximum extent of the award’s ability”. See N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57(f), (g). The OOIE applies a three-prong test, usually employed in the context of privacy issues and disputes over physical autonomy. The first prong “assumes a person retains the capacity to exercise their fundamental rights unless the challenger shows specific incapacity by clear and convincing evidence.” See M.R., supra, 135 N.J. at 168-69; IMO Absentee Ballots, supra, 247 N.J. Super. at 470; D.R., supra, 331 N.J. Super. at 38. Counsel cites to M.R, and the proposition although a person is generally incapacitated does not direct they are incapacitated for all purposes. Rather, the decision as to what an incapacitated can determine is fact-specific and must consider the potential risks associated with the decision. Id. at 169.

Upon demonstrating clear and convincing evidence of a lack of capacity to make a specific decision, the court employs the second, or “substituted judgment”, prong. In re
Conroy, supra, 98 N.J. at 360. When exercising substituted judgment, the guardian must effectuate, as far as possible, the decision the patient would have made if competent, as determined from their actions, statements, prior relevant decisions, or intent. Id. at 361-63.

Where there is no evidence as to how the ward would decide, the final prong requires an analysis of the ward’s “best interest”. Id. at 364–66.

The OOIE concludes “given the broad request of the guardians to give them the authority to make all decisions regarding visitation” and the potential for the same to violate Ann’s fundamental rights of self-determination, the OOIE request this court deny the request pending further evidence. For example, as set out above, clear and convincing evidence Ann can not make the decision; if this is satisfied, whether she would decide this way if she had capacity; and if her decision is unknown, whether denial of certain visitation is in her best interest.

The OOIE provided incapacitated individuals are entitled to fundamental rights, such as voting. However, the legal support cited for this proposition is not factually parallel to the facts at hand. In In re Absentee Ballots, the Appellate Division held “voters who are involuntarily committed residents of a psychiatric hospital pursuant to N.J.S.A. 30:4-24 to -80 are presumed competent to vote. Therefore, they cannot be challenged as voters nor their ballots segregated, absent a particularized showing of incompetence.” Supra, 331 N.J. Super. 31, 34 (App. Div. 2000). The court explicitly stated the individuals were not presumed incapacitated and thus can not be challenged as voters. In this case, Ann’s incapacity is not in question. Thus, apparently, the OOIE attempts to argue despite incapacity, certain rights remain.
This conclusion is supported by In re Grady, also cited by the OOIE, when the Supreme Court addressed whether a nineteen year old with severe mental retardation was able to decide between sterilization or procreation. Supra, 85 N.J. at 250-251. The Supreme Court determined:

[B]ecause of her severe mental impairment, Lee Ann does not have the ability to make a choice between sterilization and procreation, or between sterilization and other methods of contraception a choice which she would presumably make in her “best interests” had she such ability. But her inability should not result in the forfeit of this constitutional interest or of the effective protection of her “best interests.” If the decision whether or not to procreate is “a valuable incident of her right of privacy, as we believe it to be, then it should not be discarded solely on the basis that her condition prevents her conscious exercise of the choice.” To preserve that right and the benefits that a meaningful decision would bring to her life, it may be necessary to assert it on her behalf. . . . The question of who besides the parents has standing to represent the purported interests of the incompetent can await future determination. Nevertheless, we believe that an appropriate court must make the final determination whether consent to sterilization should be given on behalf of an incompetent individual. It must be the court's judgment, and not just the parents' good faith decision, that substitutes for the incompetent's consent.

The Supreme Court’s distinguished In re Quinlan, 70 N.J. 10, cert. denied, 429 U.S. 922 (1976), from the facts in Grady. Specifically, the Court found the “only practical way to preserve the comatose patient's right to discontinue artificial life-support was to allow the guardian and family ‘to render their best judgment, subject to . . . qualifications . . . as to whether she would exercise it in these circumstances.’” Grady, supra, 85 N.J. at 251. In Grady, however, the court felt the issue of sterilization, especially with respect to incapacitated persons, had historically been abused. Thus, “[s]ince the sterilization decision involves a variety of factors well suited to rational development in judicial proceedings, a court can take cognizance of these factors and reach a fair decision of what is the incompetent's best interest”, as opposed to deferring to parental guardians.

The best interest standard is then evaluated at length by the Court.

Although these cases provide guidance concerning guardianship authority, as this court need not determine whether the current co-guardians are permitted to restrict Patrick’s visitation, but rather only whether a guardian may do so, further discussion of or elaboration on Grady or Quinlan is unnecessary. Furthermore, although these cases reflect a respect for the fundamental rights of incapacitated individuals, the factual context is so dissimilar from the matter at hand as to provide little illumination on the issue presented.

As provided above, the OOIE is to “to receive, investigate and resolve complaints concerning certain health care facilities serving the elderly, and to initiate actions to secure, preserve and promote the health, safety and welfare, and the civil and human rights, of the elderly patients, residents and clients of such facilities.”

15 The Court outlines a four-step evaluation process a trial court should follow when determining whether to authorize the sterilization of an incapacitated person.  First, as it “is ultimately the duty of the court rather than the parents to determine the need for sterilization…the court must be satisfied that sterilization is in the best interests of the incompetent person”.

Second, the court should appoint an independent guardian ad litem as soon as possible and receive independent medical and psychological evaluations by qualified professional.

Third, “the trial judge must find that the individual lacks capacity to make a decision about sterilization and that the incapacity is not likely to change in the foreseeable future. …The trial court should be reluctant to substitute its consent for any person who may be capable of making a decision for himself. Therefore, the proponent of sterilization should have the burden of proving by clear and convincing evidence that the person to be sterilized lacks the capacity to consent or withhold consent.”

Lastly, “the trial court must be persuaded by clear and convincing proof that sterilization is in the incompetent person's best interests.”
Sections G-6 and G-7 thereafter provide the Office is to investigate complaints against facilities, etc. Here, Patrick did present the OOIE with a complaint against the facility as they denied him access to his mother. However, this restriction was provided by the guardian, not the facility. Thus, the issue presented is not the extent to which a facility must follow the guardian, but rather, whether the guardian has discretion over visitation. This again, as discussed in the context of the DHSS, is not within the scope of responsibilities of the OOIE.

The OOIE may appropriately attempt to determine whether a facility is abusing or creating a situation in which it is risking the safety and welfare of its patients. Nothing in the enabling legislation appears to reference or discuss the OOIE’s role with respect to enforcing the rights of a ward against the guardian. However, a facility, which is subject to the OOIE, is required to bow to the discretion of the guardian who is, in essence, stepping into the shoes of his or her ward.

In the present case, although the OOIE addressed its communications to Brighton, as Brighton was abiding by the expressed preferences of the guardian, Brighton did not engage in any abuse or otherwise impair the health and safety of Ann. Rather, Brighton attempted to follow the wishes of Ann, as expressed through her guardian. Were these wishes deemed to be inappropriate or abusive, Brighton, the defendant, or possibly the OOIE should have sought the appropriate relief from the court. The OOIE lacked authority to dictate what actions the guardian could exercise with regard to visitation, thereafter command Brighton to confer with them on future visitation decisions, and restrict the guardians’ access to files and reports concerning Ann.
Importantly, the OOIE is granted the task of informing the Legislature and relevant government agencies of suggested changes in rules and regulations. N.J.S.A. 52:27G-9. This responsibility should permit the OOIE to take the necessary steps to address the current difficulty or request the Legislature examine the scope of a guardian’s authority to determine rights which may conflict with the obligations of a facility. This, however, does not appear to have been done.

In addition to the authority of the DHSS and the OOIE, Patrick appears to rely almost entirely on the Manual. [Def. Answer, Pg. 21.] He argues if it were correct a plenary guardianship trumps the regulatory rights outlined in N.J.S.A. 26:2H-1; N.J.A.C. 8:36-1 to -21, “then why [would] the above mentioned ‘Statement of Resident’s rights’ … be posted in both the assisted living areas and the dementia wing.” [Def. Answer, Pg. 26.] Finally, Patrick states if the plaintiffs wish to limit or deny visitation, they need to apply to the court for a restraining order. [Def. Answer, Pg. 28.] Patrick provides no legal authority supporting the proposition a guardian must seek a restraining order to limit visitation to its ward.

To begin, the Manual was issued by the Supreme Court Judiciary-Surrogates Liaison Committee in an effort to provide guidance for guardians. This court has been unable to identify a directive the Manual is to be given the force of law or is anything other than a useful layman’s guide to the responsibilities of a guardian. It was not passed by the Legislature and is not authoritative with respect to the law or legal interpretation.

What is evident, however, is a guardian should look to the Manual as a precept for appropriate behavior. Therefore, although Patrick rightly examined the Manual for direction, he incorrectly, but understandably, viewed it as the rule of law. As discussed at length above, there are numerous provisions of the New Jersey Statutes Annotated which discuss the authority of guardians and subsequent case law which elaborate on these principles. Furthermore, and importantly, there is nothing in the Manual which contradicts that which is set forth herein.

Patrick adds the plaintiffs must seek a restraining order to bar or limit his visitation. However, to the contrary, as this court’s prior judgment established, and as will be discussed further below, a plenary guardian subsumes the rights of his or her ward. Thus, the guardian is capable of making all decisions with respect to financial and personal matters without further court intervention. On the other hand, one who objects to those actions or decisions may seek a restraining order or the removal or replacement of the guardian. As such, the burden lies with the challenger, in this case Patrick, not the converse.

Lastly, a plenary guardian has “all of the powers conferred upon the guardian by law and the provisions of this chapter except as limited by the judgment.” N.J.S.A.
3B:12-48 (emphasis added). The judgment herein provides no limit to the guardians’ authority. The Legislature appears to have intended the guardian make all decisions with the consideration of the ward’s preferences and consent, where the same can be expressed and completely obtained. Roche, supra, 296 N.J. Super. at 588-589.

In Shambaugh v. Wolk, 302 N.J. Super. 380, 406 (Ch. Div. 1996), the court was asked to determine whether a daughter had certain visitation rights with her institutionalized mother despite her stepfather’s efforts to limit the same. The court determined the “plaintiff continues to enjoy the right to visitational access to and privacy with her natural mother to the extent that her natural mother thus consents, on her own, and without undue or inappropriate interference.” Id. Interestingly, the court made clear to differentiate a situation where the mother still had the ability to make such determinations, and those where a guardian or healthcare agent had been appointed. Specifically, the court emphasized this was not a guardianship situation and thus, visitational access was warranted “but only to the extent to which [the mother] affirmatively consents.” Id. at 403. Deductively, therefore, it may be concluded where a guardian is in place, the wishes or consent of the incapacitated do not carry the same level of persuasion or influence, but rather should be considered along with the individual’s best interests. Ibid. (stating “defendant’s stated concerns about his wife’s mental competency and physical condition may ultimately warrant a different result than the decision herein reached.”).

Thus, the guardian is expected to fulfill both the preferences of the incapacitated and their best interests. Where those two considerations are mutually exclusive the guardian must make a decision. Should a party disagree with the choice elected or if the guardian is not fulfilling his or her statutory responsibilities, that individual may seek the court’s intervention.

Conclusion

A guardian is appointed by the court who determines the extent to which the guardian may exercise decision-making choices with respect to his or her ward. Here, a state agency has unreasonably interfered without authority. It has acted to restrict the autonomy of the guardian not previously limited by the court. Had the plaintiffs’ not filed the current request, it could be suggested the agency’s actions created disorder in the realm of guardianships by attempting to act in an unauthorized jural manner. These actions, albeit in good faith, have engendered confusion and uncertainty for the guardians, interested parties, facilities and others. As such, this decision is afforded to reestablish the rights of plenary guardians to utilize the appropriate discretion to determine the visitation rights of his or her ward. Should anyone disagree with the determinations of the guardian, he or she may seek the court’s intervention.

For the foregoing reasons, this court finds the plaintiffs, as plenary guardians, possess the authority to control, monitor and schedule visitation with the incapacitated consistent with N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57.

Plaintiffs’ counsel shall prepare and submit an appropriate form of order in conformity with this decision pursuant to the five day rule.

Explanation of the position, including any recommended amendments:
The Probate & Estate Planning Section has concerns regarding the adoption and dissemination of certain "policy" statements from the office of the Michigan State Long Term Care Ombudsman. Specifically, the Probate & Estate Planning Section is concerned with the manner in which policy statements are being adopted and the legal interpretations contained in such statements. The position of the Probate & Estate Planning Section is shared by the Michigan Probate Judges' Association.

Dear Mr. Gadola:

On behalf of the Probate & Estate Planning Section of the State Bar of Michigan and the Michigan Probate Judges Association (MPJA), we are writing to you to express the concerns of our organizations related to information being disseminated by Mr. Bradley Geller in his role as Assistant State Long Term Care Ombudsman in Michigan.

In January 2013, Mr. Geller published and disseminated a Policy Statement of the Michigan State Long Term Care Ombudsman’s Program entitled “Health Care Decision-Making for a Resident in a Nursing Home.” Mr. Geller refers to this publication as Project Wildcat (the “Policy Statement”). Although Project Wildcat was disseminated as a Policy Statement of the State Long Term Care Ombudsman (“Ombudsman”), it is our understanding that such Policy Statement was not promulgated pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act of 1969, which includes “policy” in its definition of a “rule” subject to the requirements of the Act.

Our concern is not only the failure of Mr. Geller and the Ombudsman to follow the procedures necessary to promulgate a Policy Statement, but also the content of the Policy Statement. Mr. Geller attempts to interpret Michigan law in the Policy Statement, particularly in areas of the law in which clear authority is absent. Mr. Geller may express his personal views of the law in many forums, but to express his opinions in an Ombudsman’s Policy Statement as the proper interpretation of Michigan law is not within his authority and puts the executive branch of our government at risk. For Mr. Geller to share his opinions in a Policy Statement being relied upon by nursing homes across the State of Michigan is inappropriate and alarming to members of our organizations.

In an email recently posted by Mr. Geller on the listserv of the Elder Law Section of the State Bar of Michigan, in conjunction with the completion of Project Wildcat, Mr. Geller expresses the following:

“The purpose of this endeavor is to offer Michigan nursing homes a comprehensive, understandable presentation of the (not always logical) law of surrogate decision-making in healthcare.”

Of the Policy Statement, Mr. Geller also writes to certain interested persons:

“I recently mailed you a copy of Project Wildcat, a policy paper of the Michigan State Long Term Care Ombudsman Program. The policy paper discusses the STCO's view of the state of the law in surrogate decision-making for healthcare [sic].

The information is directed primarily at nursing home administrators and nursing home social workers.

The policy paper was not promulgated by the Michigan Department of Community Health, the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs or the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, and these agencies are not responsible for its content.

The Michigan Long Term Care Ombudsman Program, while part of state government, has a role defined in large part by the federal Older Americans Act. Under the Act, the ombudsman program independently advocates for and with residents in long term care facilities, with the aim of improving residents' quality of care and quality of life.”

Mr. Geller suggests that the Policy Statement, Project Wildcat, was created as part of the Ombudsman’s role under the Older American’s Act, but he acknowledges that the Policy Statement addresses the Ombudsman’s view of the “state of the law in surrogate decision-making for healthcare.” This is a matter of State law, not Federal law.

Other initiatives in Michigan are relying upon Mr. Geller's Policy Statement as authority. For example, the Michigan Physician’s Orders for Scope of Treatment (MI-POST) program, which was initiated by the Michigan Coalition for Honoring Healthcare Choices, has relied upon Mr. Geller’s Policy Statement as authority for its position that a “surrogate” may refuse life sustaining care for an incompetent person in a nursing home. In this context, a surrogate would be a person other than a patient, patient advocate or guardian.

“Family Consent
Michigan does not have a Family Consent law; however the position of the State Long Term Care Ombudsman Program is that there are two relevant laws, The Michigan Social Welfare Act and the Dignified Death Act.4

4 Gellar [sic], Brad. Project Wildcat”

And as you know, the POST form allows a surrogate to withdraw life-sustaining treatment from a person who may or may not be terminally ill.

Our goal in writing you is two-fold. We seek a full retraction of the Policy Statement disseminated by Mr. Geller on behalf of the Ombudsman’s office; we do not believe it accurately interprets Michigan law, nor should Mr. Geller be interpreting State law and giving the weight of law to his personal positions. Furthermore, we do not believe the Policy Statement was properly promulgated. The applicable sections of the Administrative Procedures Act are appended to this correspondence. We also request future oversight of the activities of Mr. Geller, the Ombudsman's office, and materials being disseminated by the Ombudsman and its representatives.

We believe that there are others who share these serious concerns. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Very truly yours,

Attachment
