4	There currently isn't a metric in place that would allow us to measure if/where the students taking the course are coming from, so it is hard to determine how effective the recruiting of students really was.	4/12/2017 12:56 PM
5	Good promotion for our course	4/12/2017 10:34 AM
6	Our organization did not attend	4/11/2017 9:46 PM
7	I have to believe that the more the message is pushed out, the better chance we have of getting positive results.	4/11/2017 12:51 PM
8	Any effort to enhance boating education is important.	4/11/2017 10:25 AM
9	I hope so; however, our current data tracking system does not allow us to track the information to see what impact our advertising did.	4/11/2017 8:43 AM
10	Definitely! It's our first campaign prior to boating season. Spring Aboard gets the public thinking about safety and is worth it!	4/11/2017 8:34 AM
11	My service providers will be taking courses anyhow	4/10/2017 7:12 PM
12	Our training staff had many in-seat classes available, but the online is still a draw	4/10/2017 11:55 AM
13	I was initially skeptical the concept would be beneficial, but quickly realized it was helpful in getting more students earlier in the year. It's typically tough to get a good turnout at our adult courses in March, but our attendance was up significantly during that week.	4/10/2017 11:28 AM

14	We really didn't have a way to measure our results so hopefully next year we can do that and possibly get our volunteer organization to take the lead on the campaign.	4/10/2017 11:02 AM
15	Yes, the timing is right for this kind of campaign. Although we promote taking a course all year long, this is the best time to get people to take some action.	4/10/2017 10:40 AM
16	I don't know how to use the materials efficiently for the best results.	4/10/2017 9:10 AM
17	I think it is important to highlight taking a boating safety class even if we didn't get more people to enroll. If there is a national campaign (like Spring Aboard) - my agency will participate and it will get the word out that classes are important and available.	4/10/2017 8:35 AM
18	Any type of reminder or encouragement to get into a class is a good thing.	4/10/2017 8:29 AM
19	I have no way at this time of measuring the results.	4/10/2017 7:31 AM

1	If you expanded the campaign for 1-month you could hold it the last 2 weeks in March and the first 2 weeks in April.	4/25/2017 4:38 PM
2	I will it is a little too early, but it did appear to be successful for NYS	4/25/2017 1:24 PM
3	I support the change yet think it might be beneficial to have it a month long campaign to all for the Northern States to participate when it is truly Spring for them	4/20/2017 3:56 PM
4	-	4/13/2017 10:12 AM
5	The campaign is too early for a lot of Northern state. People don't start thinking about boating for another month or so.	4/12/2017 12:58 PM
6	Did not attend	4/11/2017 9:47 PM
7	I really think it would be more effective in late April or early May when the weather begins to warm up and people begin to think more about boating and being on the water.	4/11/2017 12:53 PM
8	April is the big push for our season.	4/11/2017 10:25 AM
9	I fully support this change. By April we are already into busy season with student enrollments but March is just the beginning of the season so kick-starting the season in March makes the most sense. I could even be persuaded to move it earlier, but you would lose the tie in with the vernal equinox.	4/11/2017 9:02 AM
10	I think the best recruitment effort will be when the ice is gone and warmer weather hits.	4/11/2017 8:44 AM
11	I believe we can have a higher number of participants if the campaign was schedule in mid-April. Either way, promoting boating safety to the public is always a good thing!	4/11/2017 8:40 AM
12	A bit too early for us. Public is not quite thinking about boating courses this early.	4/10/2017 1:49 PM
13	feel it could be held a little later in the spring	4/10/2017 12:55 PM

14	Earlier the better	4/10/2017 11:56 AM
15	The end of March seemed to work out okay.	4/10/2017 11:29 AM
16	A busy time but definitely a good time for getting people out of their winter doldrums and focusing on getting prepared for the season.	4/10/2017 11:06 AM
17	Seemed to line up with boaters getting the itch to get out on the water. Also aligned with some schools spring break.	4/10/2017 11:00 AM
18	It's about the same time we traditionally start our classes	4/10/2017 9:11 AM
19	Too early for us here in Vermont. Late April/early May would be more appropriate for us.	4/10/2017 8:51 AM
20	Earlier is better so if someone couldn't take a class during that week - there are plenty of other classes later in the spring for them to attend.	4/10/2017 8:37 AM
21	I'm not informed enough to make a valid comment regarding the level of participation of one date over another. Though I believe an argument good be made for "any" week as being good, depending on the value of taking a course during the "off-season" to get ready for boating, or doing it during the season when it'll be fresh.	4/10/2017 8:32 AM
22	Our courses start earlier than this campaign date.	4/10/2017 7:32 AM
23	To early	4/10/2017 7:11 AM

2	It would be good to have site bought specifically for Spring Aboard (ei: www.SpringAboard.com or .org) This would allow the organizers to have all content (social media, information, links etc..) in once place. It would also allow you to LINK from various media platforms but also direct students to the course providers. We could easily monitor the traffic and determine how many students are coming from the site and how much media attention it is getting.	4/12/2017 1:00 PM
