Up your game as a school nurse- our role frequently places us in situations much larger than we can completely understand. There are many times when an issue at hand will leave you feeling insecure and poorly prepared to competently address and remedy. By being alert to new challenges and receptive to the influence placed before you, you can become a more confident and more capable school nurse

Indiana School Nurse Fall Conference - Elevating your worth

NOVEMBER 6, 2019

7:30 am – 8:30 am Registration

8:30 am – Welcome

*Key Note: “Are You My School NURSE” - Dr. Jane Chevako

Dr. Jane starts as a zebra, a reminder of the sharp contrast of how a school nurse’s job is NOT black and white. She reviews what makes school nurses the super heroes for our students. Taking care of others is a priority of all healthcare providers, who ironically often fail to take care of themselves. Dr. Jane will emphasize many ways in which we need to make ourselves a priority. She finishes as a student, thankful for the multitude of things that school nurses do every day! She wants each school nurse to be proud of their work, energized and motivated to be the best school nurse they can be.

*Vendors: Explore and discuss the newest trends, equipment and learning opportunities.

*Vaping: Clearing the air about Vaping- more dangerous than you think.

*Human Trafficking: We are fighting an industry that hides in plain sight. It is shattering lives, destroying families, and rendering victims hopeless and isolated. Human trafficking is a large, very complex issue that is entangled in many other issues like broken families, cultural sexualization, drugs, runaways, ect. It’s all about manipulation and vulnerability. The industry is domestic human trafficking; its leaders are the pimps/traffickers, the products are human lives, and the demand of buyers are growing exponentially through the ease and anonymity of technology. It may seem overwhelming, but together we can make a difference.

*GI, Ostomy, Incontinence: Latest trends in GT, JT, Ostomies, incontinence, bowel and bladder training techniques.

*Indiana Legislative updates: Panel discussion, seizure education, THC, laws impacting schools and health services. Field trips, who is responsible before and after the bell, adolescent consent and confidentiality.

4:30 pm – closure Dinner and evening on your own.

8:15 am Welcome

*Whole student – Whole employee – Whole Community: When we know better, we do better and the science has clearly proven that in order to improve our own wellbeing as well as student outcomes, we must first address social and emotional needs. The beautiful thing is this also allows us to preventatively address so many other issues such as bullying, suicide prevention, school safety, substance use prevention, poor health outcomes later in life, mental illness, workforce, suspension/expulsions, and the school to prison pipeline,”

* Vendors: Explore and discuss the newest trends, equipment and learning opportunities.

* “Hots, Snots and Trots”: The most common issues of pediatrics that generate the vast majority of visits to health care providers and the greatest concerns for parents! She will begin with a definition of a fever, when to worry and the benefits of fevers that may be overlooked in those with “fever-phobia”. She will discuss the infections of the eyes, ears, nose and throat. She will review the anatomy of these structures and the mechanism of infections. She will discuss the most common bacterial and viral causes of diarrhea. For school nurses, Dr. Jane will focus on the care that is within the school nurse’s scope of practice and will emphasize when the school nurse may send a student back to class and when they need to be sent home.
