NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF SCHOOL NURSES ACCEPTED INTO FORBES NONPROFIT COUNCIL

Forbes Nonprofit Council Is an Invitation-Only Community for Chief Executives in Successful Nonprofit Organizations

(Silver Spring, MD) – The National Association of School Nurses (NASN), based in Silver Spring, Maryland, a non-profit specialty nursing organization representing school nurses exclusively, has been accepted into Forbes Nonprofit Council, an invitation-only community for chief executives in successful nonprofit organizations.

Donna Mazyck was vetted and selected by a review committee based on the depth and diversity of her experience. Criteria for acceptance include a track record of successfully impacting business growth metrics, as well as personal and professional achievements and honors.

“We are honored to welcome Donna Mazyck into the community,” said Scott Gerber, founder of Forbes Councils, the collective that includes Forbes Nonprofit Council. “Our mission with Forbes Councils is to bring together proven leaders from every industry, creating a curated, social capital-driven network that helps every member grow professionally and make an even greater impact on the business world.”

As an accepted member of the Council, Donna has access to a variety of exclusive opportunities designed to help her reach peak professional influence. She will connect and collaborate with other respected local leaders in a private forum. Donna will also be invited to work with a professional editorial team to share her expert insights in original business articles on Forbes.com, and to contribute to published Q&A panels alongside other experts.

Finally, Donna Mazyck will benefit from exclusive access to vetted business service partners, membership-branded marketing collateral, and the high-touch support of the Forbes Councils member concierge team.

“I am delighted to join the Forbes Nonprofit Council. In today’s world, collaboration with a community of leaders such as those in the Council increases opportunities for generative conversations,” said Donna Mazyck, NASN Executive Director. “My participation in this community will enable NASN to deepen its influence in business development that positively impacts child and adolescent health and well-being by shaping and strengthening the future of school nursing.”
