Dear Senators Shelby and Mikulski and Congressmen Culberson and Fattah:

We, the undersigned national groups representing a broad cross-section of the criminal and juvenile justice systems, thank you for your strong, consistent and thoughtful leadership and support for the Byrne Justice Assistance Grant (Byrne JAG) program, and we respectfully request that Byrne JAG is provided at least level funding in FY16.

Byrne JAG is the cornerstone federal crime-fighting program, supporting the federal government’s crucial role in spurring innovation, as well as testing and replicating evidence-based practices nationwide. States and localities use Byrne JAG to test emerging and evidence-based approaches to the public safety challenges in their jurisdictions. Because Byrne JAG is flexible, states and local communities are able to use funding to address needs and fill gaps across the entire juvenile and criminal justice systems – in prevention, enforcement, courts, prosecution and indigent defense, corrections, victim assistance, treatment, and other community support. This flexibility is the hallmark of the Byrne JAG program and is vitally important because when the juvenile and criminal justice systems are in balance, the system functions with efficiency and effectiveness.

Byrne JAG is advancing the evidence-based practices movement within the criminal justice field at a remarkable pace. In most states, the state formula grant awards are made using a peer-reviewed, competitive application process based on a statewide strategic plan developed in conjunction with the state’s system stakeholders. The State Administering Agencies (SAAs) invest in evidence-based programs and innovative strategies that can be measured and are replicable. Byrne JAG grants have also been the catalyst for building collaboration within communities and across states, including the critical role multijurisdictional task forces play in targeting gangs, drug violence, human trafficking, cyber crime and other cross-boundary criminal activity.

The National Criminal Justice Association (NCJA) periodically surveys the SAAs, gathering a wealth of information about how states and local governments allocate Byrne JAG funding to meet system needs. From that survey, we know that Byrne JAG dollars are invested broadly across all segments of the juvenile and criminal justice systems, as depicted in the chart below.
Byrne JAG is supported by a broad and dedicated coalition of national organizations from across the juvenile and criminal justice systems. We come together on this letter recognizing the central role Byrne JAG plays in preventing victimization, supporting innovative law enforcement practices, supporting the fair administration of and access to justice, serving and protecting crime victims, and leveraging other federal, state, local and private dollars in the balanced functioning of the juvenile and criminal justice systems.

We recognize the competing pressures you face to prioritize funding for many important programs in the Commerce, Justice, Science and Related Agencies (CJS) bill. We recognize also that the federal justice assistance grant programs declined steeply in FY11 and FY12 to achieve deficit reduction, resulting in a cut to Byrne JAG funding of 35 percent, and we remain appreciative to you for limiting further reductions in the succeeding recent years. These reductions have come with a cost, as many proven programs and new innovations to protect victims, hold offenders accountable, prevent crime, and reduce recidivism have been curbed or eliminated entirely.

We deeply appreciate your leadership in fighting for a strong, vibrant Byrne JAG program. We thank you for your steadfast support and respectfully request that Byrne JAG is protected from further cuts in FY16.

Thank you for considering our views.

Sincerely,
