Karen “Gets Real” With Prospective Owners At African American Expo

By Steve Eubanks, Contributor, Golf Business

MARIETTA, GA | NGCOA chief executive officer Jay Karen did not hold back when he spoke to a group of prospective Black owners at the African American Golf Expo and Forum held in the northern Atlanta suburb of Marietta. To be clear, Karen wasn’t negative in his presentation on what it means to own a golf course. But he didn’t sugarcoat it, either. “What does it take to be a golf course owner?” Karen asked rhetorically in his opening remarks before a room of prospective Black course owners. “It takes getting real.” The seminar was the first of its kind for the NGCOA, which, according to Karen, has worked for years in the area of minority advancement... ### Golf Courses + Extreme Weather – A Chat with "Super-Super" Dan Meersman

By Larry Hirsh, President, Golf Property Analysts

While the cause is debated, there is no argument that climate change is a real phenomenon. The broad reach of destruction from Hurricane Ida in August impacted many golf courses from the Gulf Coast to the Northeast and got me thinking about how golf course superintendents are impacted and how they plan and prepare for extreme weather as it becomes more extreme and more frequent. Dan Meersman, Director of Grounds at Philadelphia Cricket Club (PA) is what I call a super-super. He’s a superstar superintendent who’s been named national superintendent of the year and stands out among his peers, who include his father and brothers. I had the chance to quiz Dan on some of these issues recently... READ MORE >>
