

BRENT MARAVILLA

Brent Maravilla is an independent consultant and an Acquisition Strategist at the U.S. Digital Service (USDS) within the Office of Management of Budget. He works on initiatives and experiments with acquisition strategies and tactics that make buying digital services faster, more transparent, less confusing, and result in building digital products that improve citizens lives. He has been working in public procurement for a total of 12 years, including the U.S. Postal Service, U.S. Army, Environmental Protection Agency, and the U.S. Digital Service. In addition to providing support to government at the level of the individual buy, he also helps teach and support the scaling of a unique, 6-month long development program. This program, Digital IT Acquisition Professional (DITAP), trains federal IT procurement professionals about modern technology approaches (agile software development, UX and design, DevOps, cloud computing, modern technology stacks, and open source software), how to buy those technologies, and the bureaucracy hacking skills needed to advance the digital services movement within civic tech.